FOREWORD

A year ago Congress decided that the time had come to establish a system for the regular review of the salaries of top level officials of the three branches of Government. In implementing Congressional policy on salary rates for Career Service employees, it had been necessary to make compromises and piecemeal adjustments in salaries for this group (who constitute the great majority of all Federal employees) in order to avoid their materially overlapping the salary schedules for top officials.

To meet the immediate problem and insure periodic review in the future, the Commission on Executive, Legislative, and Judicial Salaries was created. Of its nine members, three are appointed by the President of the United States, two by the President of the Senate, two by the Speaker of the House of Representatives, and two by the Chief Justice of the United States. The first appointees serve for the fiscal year 1969. Every four years thereafter others are to be appointed to review and recommend the rates of pay of the Congress, the Judiciary, and the principal officials of the Executive Branch.

These quadrennial reviews and recommendations of the Commission are to be reported to the President, who, in turn, shall include in his next budget his recommendations as to the exact rates of pay he deems advisable.

The President's recommendations become effective after ³⁰thirty days unless in that period either House of Congress specifically disapproves any or all of them, or a statute has been enacted into law establishing different rates of pay.

LETTER OF TRANSMITTAL

The President
The White House

December 2, 1968

Dear Mr. President:

We have the honor to present to you the first report of the Commission on Executive, Legislative, and Judicial Salaries.

Our review convinces us that the compensation of the key leadership in each of the three branches of Government is seriously out of step with today's standards. We should not permit this to continue at a time when the problems facing our country demand that we attract men of great talent and capacity to public office. When salaries in the business world, in State and Local Government, in the universities have moved and continue to move ahead of Federal Government rates, we may well fear an erosion in the quality of leadership throughout the fabric of Government.

We believe the salary rates proposed in this report will improve our capacity to attract and retain men of ability and dedication. We believe they will lessen the need to make personal sacrifices to accept and carry the burdens of public office.

In this report we have pointed out other areas that do not fall within our purview but that we believe require further attention. One is the proper utilization of expense allowances in determining total compensation. We suggest that this be the subject of an early study. The second is the obvious need to adjust promptly the salaries of the Vice President, the Speaker, and the Majority and Minority Leaders of the two Houses of Congress. Finally, in our view there should be a reassessment of the compensation of the President.

Respectfully submitted,

Frederick R. Kappel, Chairman

INTRODUCTION

The ability of our nation to meet the challenges of these troubled times depends on the leadership of those who place their talents and energies at the service of their country. It is with the maintenance of the quality of that leadership that we are concerned here.

What are the incentives for able men and women to assume positions of leadership? Among them are prestige, the challenge of public service, the opportunity to help solve problems of national and international import, the sense of mission to act for the public good. All are powerfully attractive. At the same time, however, salary inducements must meet the realities of personal and family obligations. They should also reflect in some appreciable degree the level of responsibility involved in the office held.

The action of Congress in providing for a review of the pay structure of the top levels of the Executive Branch, the Members of Congress, and the Judiciary is timely. It is made at a time when the complexity of problems at home and abroad demands the service of the best, most capable men and women our country can attract to high public office. The review also comes at a time of Presidential change, with its attendant reorganization in positions of leadership. And it comes at a propitious moment, when the study of salary compensation can be raised above political implications and its objectivity be recognized.

In accordance with the provisions of the statute creating the Commission, we have reviewed the rates of pay of the designated offices in the three Branches of Government.

The conclusion to us is inescapable that present salary levels are not commensurate with the importance of the positions held. They are not sufficient to support a standard of living that individuals qualified for such posts can fairly expect to enjoy and in many instances have established. We should expect the compensation of those to whom we entrust high responsibilities and authority in government to bear some reasonable relationship to that received by their peers in private life. This expectation, however, is not now met.

In this report, accordingly, we set forth our reasons for the above conclusion and our recommendations as to appropriate pay levels and relationships among top-level positions—and recommendations also as to the relationships between these positions and career service positions subject to the General Schedule pay scale.

We have sought to propose a reasonable and up-to-date relationship within the Federal structure, as well as between the Federal Government and other sectors, including private industry, education, and State and Local Government. Those sectors need and seek the same talents as does Government.

Orderly periodic reviews will disclose inequities that creep into the pay system. They will be essential, we believe, to enable Government to attract in a competitive market the quality of men and women needed to discharge effectively the functions of Government. The record of the past is one of piecemeal adjustments, varied only occasionally by broadscale revision when pressures built up to the breaking point.

We believe the recommendations summarized below represent an appropriate initial step in modernizing the top pay structure of the Executive, Legislative, and Judicial Branches of the Government.

SUMMARY OF RECOMMENDATIONS

Because of

- the long intervals between past adjustments in top level Federal salaries, so that salaries now paid no longer relate to current economic realities,
- the importance of the positions involved, and
- comparative salaries in other fields,

we find that present salary levels are inadequate, and we recommend:

1. That in the Executive Branch the annual salary levels be as follows:
 - Heads of Departments, Level I, $60,000
 - Agency Heads and other Level II positions $50,000
 - Under Secretaries and other Level III positions $46,000
 - Assistant Secretaries and other Level IV positions $43,000
 - Major Bureau Heads and other Level V positions $40,000
2. That in the Legislative Branch the annual salary levels be as follows:
 - Senators, Representatives, and the Resident Commissioner from Puerto Rico $50,000
 - The Comptroller General $50,000
 - The Assistant Comptroller General $46,000
 - The Public Printer, Librarian of Congress, Architect of the Capitol, and General Counsel of the General Accounting Office $43,000
 - The Deputy Public Printer, Deputy Librarian of Congress, and Assistant Architect of the Capitol $40,000
3. That in the Judicial Branch the annual salary levels be as follows:
 - The Chief Justice of the United States $67,500
 - Associate Justices of the Supreme Court $65,000
 - Judges, Circuit Courts, Court of Claims, Court of Customs and Patent Appeals, Court of Military Appeals $50,000
 - Judges, District Courts, Customs Court, Tax Court of the United States, and Director, Administrative Office of the United States Courts $47,500
 - Commissioners, Court of Claims $40,000
 - Deputy Director, Administrative Office of the United States Courts $40,000
 - Referees in Bankruptcy—full time—a maximum of $40,000
 - Referees in Bankruptcy—part time—a maximum of $20,000

The total annual cost of all increases proposed for the Executive, Legislative and Judicial Branches is $34,700,000.

THE TASK OF THE COMMISSION

The law establishing this Commission requires it to review the rates of pay of the Members of Congress; certain offices and positions in the Legislative Branch; the Justices, Judges and specific other personnel in the Judicial Branch; and the offices and positions in the upper levels in the Executive Branch of the Government, designated as Levels I to V of the Executive Schedule.

One purpose of this review is to determine appropriate pay levels and relationships among the respective offices and positions covered, and between those positions and positions in the General Pay Schedules of the Federal Government. Most importantly, our concern is to establish levels of compensation for those top offices that will, when coupled with the prestige they give and the opportunity for service they offer, induce men both to accept and to retain them.

The Congress has established a regular procedure for fixing the pay of the vast majority of Federal employees on the basis of comparability with the rates paid in the private sector. It has provided for an annual review and recommendation as to necessary adjustments. Experience of the past few years has shown that it is possible to fix with a reasonable degree of accuracy and certainty standards of comparison between a great number of jobs in Government and private industry.

With respect to the top offices in Government, however, the situation is different, for it is difficult to find positions in the private sector that are directly comparable. For example, no direct comparisons are possible between our Legislators and Judges and the Executives in business and industry. Nor is the concept of service and prestige that accompany high Federal office measurable in terms of the dollar value in the salary. On the other hand, we can draw comparisons between the top levels of the Career Service and the Executive levels in Government. We can also compare trends in compensation in government with trends in the business world, the universities, the foundations, and State and Local Government.

THE OUTDATED PAY STRUCTURE

The failure of Congress to provide for regular review and revision of the compensation of the top officials in the Executive, Legislative, and Judicial Branches of Government has resulted in their salaries remaining almost static at a time when those in private business, in State and Local Government, and in education, as well as salaries in the Career Service of Federal Government, were moving steadily upward. An American Management Association study published in 1967 (Appendix F) shows that in the last five years Executive Salaries in the business community have risen an average of 3.5% per year. The increase in the salary structure for Federal officials since 1964, however, has been far less than 1% per year.

| | 1926 | 1946 | 1949 | 1956 | 1964 |
|--------------------------------------|-------------|-------------|-------------|-------------|-------------|
| Associate Justices, Supreme Court | $20,000 | $25,000 | | $35,000 | $39,500 |
| Heads of Departments | 15,000 | | $22,500 | 25,000 | 35,000 |
| Members of Congress | 10,000 | 15,000 | | 22,500 | 30,000 |

Though each group that has studied the subject in recent years has come to the conclusion that material increases are necessary to establish a reasonable and rational pay structure, action has been neither timely nor realistic.

We have the task of evaluating the salaries of positions of the highest importance not only within Government but in the nation and, indeed, the world. The statute (Public Law 90-206) lists them as:

- (A) Senators, Members of the House of Representatives, and the Resident Commissioner from Puerto Rico.
- (B) The following offices and positions in the Legislative Branch: Comptroller General, the Librarian of Congress, the Public Printer, the Architect of the Capitol and their principal assistants.
- (C) Justices, Judges, Director and Deputy Director of the Administrative Office of United States Courts, Commissioners of the Court of Claims, and Referees in Bankruptcy.
- (D) Offices and positions in the Executive Schedule (Levels I to V) set forth in title 5 of the United States code. (This includes top Executive officials up to and including Department Heads.)

The General Counsel of the Civil Service Commission has advised us that the law does not cover the offices of the Vice President, the Speaker, and the Majority and Minority Leaders of the two Houses of Congress. (See Appendix B). We believe it is essential that traditional relationships between these offices, the Supreme Court, and the Cabinet be preserved. We shall deal with this matter later in this report.

Because the actions and decisions of those who occupy the positions named in the statute so deeply affect all of us, every factor that can contribute to securing the ablest and best qualified people must be carefully weighed.

One of those factors is compensation. It is true, of course, that more than money is involved in attracting and retaining men and women of the highest competence. Prestige, the challenge of public service, the opportunity to contribute to the solution of pressing national and international problems all have their drawing power. But they must be weighed, even by the dedicated, against the realities of personal and family responsibilities.

There are many examples of distinguished service by men and women of independent wealth, but we cannot and must not rely on this as a means of filling the top ranks. Such a policy would deny the nation the service of many other great and gifted leaders. Nor is the answer to rely on those who can devote a brief absence from private affairs. This, too, presents obvious disadvantages.

To repeat here the conclusion emphasized in the introduction to this report, present salary levels are not commensurate with the importance of top level positions or offices in Government. They are not sufficient to support a standard of living that individuals qualified for such posts can fairly expect to enjoy and in many instances have established. We should expect the compensation given to those to whom we entrust the powers of government to bear some reasonable relationship to that received by their peers in private life.

RELATIONSHIPS BETWEEN TOP-LEVEL AND CAREER SERVICE COMPENSATION

Another important consideration is the relationship of the salaries for top-level positions to the General Pay Schedule for career service employees.

The pay for the latter group, who constitute the vast majority of Federal employees, is fixed annually on the principle established in the Federal Salary Reform Act of 1962. This is that "Federal salary rates shall be comparable with private enterprise salary rates for the same levels of work."

An annual survey is made by the Bureau of Labor Statistics of private enterprise rates. These are then examined by the Bureau of the Budget and the Civil Service Commission and fitted to a comparability pay line. The pay line is established for the various levels of the General Schedule salaries and reported annually to Congress.

The Salary Act of 1967 provided that the President, by Executive Order, would establish rates for the Career Service that would achieve comparability in two stages. On July 1 of this year rates were increased by the amount necessary to move 50% of the way toward comparability. Next July 1 they will be adjusted to achieve full comparability.

However, the principle of comparability has not been made fully effective in 1968 because of a restriction in the 1967 Act that no level in the General Schedule may exceed the rate provided for the Level V of the Executive pay scale, namely, $28,000. The result of this statutory provision is that the top two rates of pay in Grade GS-16, the top three rates in GS-17, and the single rate for GS-18 are all limited to the $28,000 ceiling. For GS-18 this is $2,239 less than the comparability principle would have required for 1968, and $5,422 less than the requirement for July 1, 1969.

Based on the average increase in wages in this decade and the great body of economic thought, the upward trend will continue even though the rate of increase may be somewhat slowed down. Looking ahead four years, the rate for the lowest Level of the Executive pay scale would have to be at least $40,000 to permit the top rates of the Career Service to achieve the comparability that Congress has declared to be the Federal pay policy, and to provide an appropriate pay relationship between the Executive and Career levels.

SALARY LEVELS IN OTHER SECTORS

We turn now to significant information on salary levels and trends in other sectors of the economy, both public and private.

1. In State and Local Governments

From a salary point of view, numerous positions in State and Local Governments are equally or more attractive to individuals of the calibre sought for Federal posts. They offer similar professional opportunities. They offer the chance to render a public service. They offer substantial prestige and as great or greater monetary rewards. Comprehensive studies of State and Local Government salaries made by the U.S. Civil Service Commission in March 1963, January 1967, and August 1968 show in detail the situation in the upper salary levels.

It is significant that in the past year there has been a 70% increase in the number of those officials paid $35,000 or more. This trend is a continuing one. In September judicial salaries in California were increased over 20%. The New York State Legislature, a few months ago, voted significant increases to the Governor and other top State officials.

The following summary shows the increases that have taken place in the last five years in the number of positions paid at $35,000 and above.

|---------------------------------|------|------|------|
| Governors | 8 | 23 | 26 |
| Mayors and City Managers | 2 | 12 | 22 |
| Administrative and Professional | 15 | 43 | 123 |
| Public Corporations | 13 | 29 | 32 |
| Judges | 7 | 212 | 328 |

The details of the 1968 report are attached as Appendix D. The tabulations therein show the positions in summary and in detail by occupation, jurisdiction, and salary.

2. In Public Education

These studies also reveal a rather spectacular climb in the number of positions in the field of public education for which annual compensation of $35,000 or more is provided.

| | 1963 | 1967 | 1968 |
|--|------|------|------|
| School Superintendents | 3 | 10 | 25 |
| Public University Presidents, Officers, and Department Heads | 11 | 60 | 178 |

By way of contrast, the Assistant Secretary for Education in the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, and the Commissioner of Education, who exercise responsibilities that sweep across the whole spectrum of educational problems, are compensated at $28,750 and $28,000 respectively.

3. In Tax-Exempt Foundations

Tax-exempt foundations are another field which competes for the talent required by Government. The latest data available on compensation for presidents of ten of the large tax-exempt foundations for the fiscal year 1965-66 show a salary range from $30,000 to $100,000, an increase of $4,000 over the 1964-65 average.

4. In the Federal Reserve Banks

Another field of employment having some of the aspects of public service and some of private enterprise is in the Federal Reserve Banks. A recent report shows that the salaries of the presidents of Federal Reserve Banks range from $35,000 to $75,000. (See Appendix H). It might be pointed out that in all but two cases their salaries exceed those of the Chairman of the Federal Reserve Board and the Secretary of the Treasury, and in one case the bank salary more than doubles them.

5. In Private Industry

The differences between public service and private employment make direct dollar-for-dollar comparisons between salary levels prevailing in private business and those at the top strata of government difficult and inconclusive. There is no doubt, however, that salaries in the private sector offer a yardstick that individuals who are sought for top Government positions may use in measuring alternative opportunities, or in evaluating the financial aspect against the satisfaction of service to one's country and the challenge of the job, or perhaps the future benefits to one's career in business or in a profession.

There is a good deal of information available on salaries in the private sector. One source is the National Industrial Conference Board study on annual compensation at the highest-paid corporation Executive levels in 1304 corporations for the year 1965. The study shows a range of median salaries, depending upon the type of business, from $45,000 to $100,000. (See Appendix G)

Again, the American Management Association study of November 1967 on the average compensation rates of over 2,500 chief executive officers, ranked according to the sales in varying industry groups, shows amounts ranging well into six figures. (See Appendix E) Perhaps it is pertinent to point out that one of the industry groups included in the report was "Utilities." In the sales category of $200 to $500 million, the average compensation of the Chief Executive Officers was $110,000. The Tennessee Valley Authority had power sales of $369 million in 1968. The compensation of its Chief Executive Officer, in contrast, was $28,750. The Bonneville Power Administration and Bureau of Reclamation fall into the class of $100 million to $200 million in sales, for which the average industry salary is $87,000 for the Chief Executive. The salary of the Government Executives is $28,000.

In June of this year Business Week published its annual computation of top Executive salaries in 130 large corporations in some 25 different fields. It shows that over 300 of those Executives are compensated at the rate of $100,000 and above. The salaries of the top Executives of the four airlines listed were at least three times that of the Secretary of the Department of Transportation who has substantial responsibilities in the field of air transport.

These figures are not cited as the goal or the ideal Federal salary but are given to emphasize the problem with which the Government is faced in seeking men of the competence and quality needed to insure success in vital programs. Some men, fortunately, are in a position to make the change. Others, however, feel they cannot afford the financial sacrifice required.

THE PROBLEM OF COMPRESSION

One of the most serious inequities in the present salary structure is the narrow differential between the various levels of pay, particularly in the Executive pay scale. There is an almost total failure to recognize in terms of compensation the differences in duties and responsibilities between the levels of the Executive Schedule.

The following table shows the levels of the Executive pay scale as established in 1964 and at present, and the percentage differential as compared to the private industry average differential.

| Salary as percentage of | | Federal Executive Salary Schedule | | | | |
|-------------------------------------|-----|-----------------------------------|----------|---------|----------|------|
| Chief Executive salary ¹ | | 1964 | | Present | | |
| Average | % | | % | | % | |
| Private Industry | | | | | | |
| Chief Executive | 100 | Level I | $35,000 | 100 | $35,000 | 100 |
| 2d highest paid | 70 | Level II | 30,000 | 85.7 | 30,000 | 85.7 |
| 3d highest paid | 60 | Level III | 28,500 | 81.4 | 29,500 | 84.3 |
| 4th highest paid | 55 | Level IV | 27,000 | 77.1 | 28,750 | 82.1 |

The differential between Level V and Level II in 1964 was about 11%, or roughly half the typical differential in private enterprise. It is now only 5.7%.

The increasingly small differentials between Levels II and V are partly due to upward adjustments necessary at the lower levels to permit the top civil service grades to make some progress toward comparability.

Even so, it is now possible for the head of a major Bureau in Executive Level V and subordinates in the three upper civil service grades to receive identical compensation even though they are at successive steps in a direct line of authority and responsibility. Obviously, it is time for a change.

RECOMMENDED SALARIES FOR TOP LEVEL OFFICIALS IN THE EXECUTIVE BRANCH

We have striven to meet these objectives in formulating our recommendations:

1. To establish a compensation plan which will be logical and equitable in its internal and external relationships.
2. To establish compensation more nearly commensurate with the importance and responsibilities of these positions.
3. To establish levels that will increase the ability of the Federal Government to attract and retain the highest possible talent.

The following table sets forth the present and proposed rates for the 665 top officials of the Executive Branch.

| | | Present Salary Rate | Proposed Salary Rate |
|---|-----|---------------------------|----------------------------|
| Level I—Heads of Departments | 12 | $35,000 | $60,000 |
| Level II—Heads of major agencies, etc. | 64 | 30,000 | 50,000 |
| Level III—Under Secretaries, etc. | 88 | 29,500 | 46,000 |
| Level IV—Assistant Secretaries, etc. | 261 | 28,750 | 43,000 |
| Level V—Heads of Bureaus, etc. | 240 | 28,000 | 40,000 |
| Annual cost of these proposed increases | | $9,631,250 | |

These proposals recognize that the opportunity to serve one's country and the prestige of public office are a form of compensation. They further recognize that there is not the freedom to tailor compensation to particular individuals or circumstances. On the other hand, the proposals do recognize the very substantial responsibility of these positions, the high level of competence required, and the importance of making sure we continue to secure and retain men and women of top quality. To hold Federal compensation on a scale that is substantially lower than equivalent talent can command in other fields, public as well as private, is the road to mediocrity.

RECOMMENDED LEGISLATIVE SALARIES

In addition to the Members of Congress, nine other offices and positions in the Legislative Branch are within the scope of the Commission's study and review. These offices can be directly related to offices and positions in the Executive Branch, and on the basis of that comparison we have included them in the following recommendations:

| | Number | Present Salary Rate | Proposed Salary Rate |
|---|--------|---------------------------|----------------------------|
| Senators, Representatives, and the Resident Commissioner from Puerto Rico | 531 | $30,000 | $50,000 |
| Other offices in the Legislative Branch | | | |
| Comptroller General | 1 | 30,000 | 50,000 |
| Assistant Comptroller General | 1 | 29,500 | 46,000 |
| General Counsel, General Accounting Office | 1 | 28,750 | 43,000 |
| Librarian of Congress | 1 | 28,750 | 43,000 |
| Public Printer | 1 | 28,750 | 43,000 |
| Architect of the Capitol | 1 | 28,750 | 43,000 |
| Deputy Librarian of Congress | 1 | 27,500 | 40,000 |
| Deputy Public Printer | 1 | 27,500 | 40,000 |
| Assistant Architect of the Capitol | 1 | 27,500 | 40,000 |
| Annual cost of these proposed increases | | $10,751,000 | |

It is difficult to obtain data that may suitably be used as a basis for comparison with Congressional salaries. The Senators and Representatives and the Resident Commissioner from Puerto Rico are in a class not directly comparable with any other group. State Legislators in most cases play a vastly different role from that of a Member of Congress. This is true with respect to the time devoted to the position, the variety and complexity of the problems covered, and the number of citizens to whom they are responsible.

Unlike the circumstances in the Executive area of government and in private industry, there are no varying levels of responsibility among the Members, at least with respect to the enactment of legislation—their major task. The vote of the newest Congressman counts exactly the same as that of a long-time member. Perhaps the experienced legislator serving as a committee chairman has a more arduous task and performs at a greater level of effectiveness, but his basic responsibilities to his constituents are the same. There may be material differences in service rendered but these cannot be expressed in terms of compensation.

Other factors bearing on the compensation of Members of Congress include the necessity of running for office every two years or six years, and the cost of living in Washington for most of the year while maintaining a residence in home district or State.

It is our feeling that Members' salaries should be adjusted to compensate for the substantial and unique responsibilities they bear, to meet the cost peculiar to elective rather than appointive office, and to minimize the need to rely on other means of augmenting income. There is a real question, however, as to whether the problem of adequately compensating the holder of elective office can be solved entirely by salary adjustment. The burdens placed on the individual legislator are not uniform. The type of his constituency, its geographical location, and its legislative interests affect him alone just as do his housing requirements and his business or professional interests. Later in this report we discuss some further steps that should be considered.

RECOMMENDED JUDICIAL SALARIES

The table following sets forth the recommended salaries for Justices, Judges, and other officers of the Judicial Branch, totaling 842.

| | Number ¹ | Present Salary Rate | Proposed Salary Rate |
|---|---------------------|---------------------------|----------------------------|
| Chief Justice of the United States | 1 | $40,000 | $67,500 |
| Associate Justices, Supreme Court | 10 | 39,500 | 65,000 |
| Judges, Circuit Court of Appeals | 134 | 33,000 | 50,000 |
| Judges, Court of Claims | 9 | 33,000 | 50,000 |

³ Salary for Referees set by Judicial Conference within the maximum

We have recommended that the compensation of the Justices of the Supreme Court be fixed at $65,000, a rate which reflects the importance and dignity of the office. As the role of the Federal Government has expanded, the burden on the Judicial system has grown and its sphere of influence has broadened to embrace an increasing percentage of our citizens. This is particularly true of the Court, which is the capstone of our legal system. Yet in the past forty years the rate of increase in the compensation of its members has lagged far behind that of the other groups we have reviewed.

We have established a differential of $2,500 between the salary of the Chief Justice and the Associate Justices that more truly reflects the relative responsibilities than does the $500 which was first set in 1789.

We believe the rates for Judges of the other courts result in an equitable compensation for their responsibilities and are in line with the recommendations for Legislative and Executive salaries.

In determining appropriate salary rates for the Judiciary, we must rely on the traditional values that have been attached to the work of the courts. To attempt to find valid comparisons on the basis of tasks performed between those who formulate the laws, those who interpret them, and those who execute them would be a fruitless task.

Traditionally, there has been high prestige value attached to Federal judgeships, and, particularly, to membership on the Supreme Court. There is the factor of the added value of lifetime tenure. These may be sufficient inducements to many who have made their mark in other fields of legal endeavor. But will they remain so if there is not some recognition of present-day trends in compensation?

One area with which we may make some comparison comprises the State and Local judicial systems. There we find that some 1,150 Judges are paid at the same rate as Judges in Federal District Courts, that more than 300 are paid more than the Judges of the Appellate Courts, and that 35 are paid at rates that equal or slightly exceed Justices of the Supreme Court of the United States.

The Act creating this Commission also provides for review and recommendations as to the salaries of the Commissioners of the Court of Claims, Referees in Bankruptcy, and the Director and Deputy Director of the Administrative Office of the United States Courts.

The Commissioners of the Court of Claims act as trial Judges for the Court. After proceedings before them are completed, the Commissioners prepare findings of fact and conclusions of law which are then submitted to the parties and the Court. If there is no appeal by the parties to the case, the Court, after review, will normally adopt the Commissioner's decision as its own.

The Referees in Bankruptcy recommend decisions on both law and facts to the Judge of the District Court, who then renders the Court's decision. Certain aspects of bankruptcy cases are, by statute, reserved to the District Judge. At present the Judicial Conference sets the salary rate within the maximum established by law.

SUPPLEMENTARY COMPENSATION

In the first draft of the 1967 Salary Act, there was a provision that the Commission on Salaries should also study the kinds and amounts of expenses and allowances for Federal Executives, Judges, and Members of Congress. However, this was eliminated before final passage. Although such factors are not part of the study, they cannot be ignored in arriving at an understanding of the comparative compensation of Executives in industry and in government.

A salary study is not really valid if compensation in addition to salary is ignored. If housing is furnished, or an expense allowance provided, or bonuses and stock options are offered in lieu of, or in addition to, salary, the monetary value of the job may be greatly altered. In many instances, such benefits provided by the employer might greatly influence a person to accept or to reject a position.

The nature and extent of supplementary benefits may vary considerably according to the characteristics of positions held. Thus a Judge retired from active service at full salary may still from time to time perform services of the same character as are performed by active Judges. Accordingly, the Government's contribution to his retirement is quite different from the contribution it makes toward the retirement of a Member of Congress who is elected for a term, or an official of the Executive Branch whose position is subject to change as political control changes.

The opportunities open to Government officials to acquire supplementary income through the practice of a profession or by engaging in private business vary according to the Branch in which they serve. Each Branch makes its own rules and applies its own standards.

This Commission has made no attempt to evaluate supplementary payments or allowances to determine their exact effect on total compensation. It is aware that there are inequities needing correction, but it is not part of the Commission's task to make recommendations concerning them. We also recognize that adjustments of salaries are not the appropriate way to meet the expenses attached to public office any more than they are to meet business expenses in private enterprise. These expenses, while job-related, are not uniform in their application to the holders of positions in the same class, nor are they uniform as between classes.

The Commission feels that existing laws and regulations should be reviewed to determine whether present supplementary compensation, such as expenses, allowances, retirement income, insurance, etc., are adequate or inadequate, equitable or discriminatory, or well- or ill-suited to the purpose for which they were designed. If there are deficiencies, they should be remedied promptly through changes in legislation or regulations.

IN CONCLUSION

The Commission urges that immediate action be taken at the next session of Congress to establish new salary rates for the office of Vice President, Speaker of the House of Representatives, and the Majority and Minority Leaders of both Houses of Congress.

Had these offices been within our purview, we would have recommended no less than a salary equivalent to that of the Chief Justice ($67,500) for the Vice President and the Speaker, and maintenance of the present differential ($5,000) between the Majority and Minority Leaders and the other Members of the Senate and House of Representatives.

Finally, we point out that the Presidential salary has remained unchanged since 1949, a period of nearly 20 years. There is no compelling reason to exempt this salary from evaluation and revision in the light of present day values and standards of compensation other than that the position is unique in the true sense of the word. We recognize that evaluating the Presidential responsibilities in terms of remuneration just cannot be done. Nevertheless, we urge you, Mr. President, to bring this matter to the attention of the Congress at the earliest possible moment. We believe that to preserve equity and balance in the pay structure of Government the salary of the President should be changed from $100,000 to $200,000.

EXTENT OF COMMISSION'S JURISDICTION

(Opinion furnished by the General Counsel of the U.S. Civil Service Commission)

QUESTION: Does the jurisdiction of the Commission on Executive, Legislative, and Judicial Salaries (CELJS) extend to the compensation of the Vice President, the Speaker of the House of Representatives, and the Majority and Minority leaders of both Houses?

ANSWER: No.

DISCUSSION: The review authority of the CELJS is set out in §225(f) of Public Law 90-206. That subsection authorizes the CELJS to review the rates of pay of:

(A) Senators, Members of the House of Representatives, and the Resident Commissioner from Puerto Rico;

(B) offices and positions in the legislative branch referred to in subsections (a), (b), (c), and (d) of section 203 of the Federal Legislative Salary Act of 1964 (78 Stat. 415; Public Law 88-426);

(C) justices, judges, and other personnel in the judicial branch referred to in sections 402(d) and 403 of the Federal Judicial Salary Act of 1964 (78 Stat. 434; Public Law 88-426); and

(D) offices and positions under the Executive Schedule in subchapter II of chapter 53 of title 5, United States Code.

Subparagraphs (C) and (D) of §225(f) are clearly inapplicable as (C) relates only to the judicial branch and as (D) relates only to the Executive Schedule which contains no reference to the offices under consideration.

Subparagraph (A), which refers specifically to the rates of pay of "Senators" and "Members of the House of Representatives" cannot be considered to extend to the rates of pay of the Vice President, the Speaker of the House of Representatives, and the Majority and Minority Leaders. This is so because the rate of pay for each of these offices is expressly fixed by a statutory authority that is separate from the statutory authority that fixes the rate of pay for Senators and Members of Congress.

The $30,000 annual rate for Senators and Members of Congress is fixed by the first sentence of section 601(a) of the Legislative Reorganization Act of 1946, as amended by §11(e) of Public Law 89-301, 2 U.S.C. 31. The $43,000 annual rate for the Speaker of the House of Representatives is fixed by the second sentence of that section (2 U.S.C. 31). The $35,000 annual rate for the Majority and Minority Leaders is fixed by the last sentence of that section (2 U.S.C. 31). The $43,000 annual rate for the Vice President is fixed by section 104 of title 3, United States Code. Finally, whatever may be said of the functions of the Vice President as presiding officer of the Senate, he is not nominated nor elected as, nor is he designated to be, a Senator.

In view of the foregoing, it is evident that the express mention of the rates of pay for Senators and Members of the House of Representatives in paragraph (A) of §225(f) does not include the rates of pay for the Vice President, the Speaker of the House of Representatives, and the Majority and Minority Leaders.

It is significant to note that when the Congress created a former Commission on Judicial and Congressional Salaries in 1953 (Public Law 83-220, 67 Stat. 485) it expressly directed that Commission to determine appropriate rates of salaries for, among others, "the Vice President, the Speaker of the House of Representatives, and Members of Congress". Also in that legislation, the Congress referred to "the presiding officers and Members of the Congress". Thus it is evident that the Congress, from its experience with the earlier enactment, was aware of how to express an intention to review the salaries of legislative branch officers other than Members of the Congress. The omission of similar language in Public Law 90-206 is even more significant under these circumstances.

Finally, with respect to subparagraph (B) of §225(f) (the offices and positions in the legislative branch referred to in §203(a)-(d) of the Federal Legislative Salary Act of 1964) a study of that section establishes that it does not refer to any of the offices with which we are concerned. That section specifically refers to the Comptroller General, the Assistant Comptroller General, the General Counsel of the General Accounting Office, the Librarian and Deputy Librarian of Congress, the Public Printer and his Deputy, and the Architect of the Capitol and his Assistant.

The importance of the CELJS limiting its review to the offices and positions referred to in §225(f)(A)-(D) of Public Law 90-206 is made clear by §225(h) of that statute. Section 225(h) relates to the President's recommendations to the Congress after his receipt of the report from the CELJS. It specifically states that the President's recommendations shall relate to "those officers and positions within the purview of subparagraphs (A), (B), (C), and (D) of subsection (f) of this section."

PAY RATES OF $30,000 OR MORE IN STATE AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

This study by the United States Civil Service Commission sets forth the compensation rates in effect September 1, 1968, for 2,316 positions in state and local government.

Tabulations which follow do not include all state and local government positions paying $30,000 or more. For example, only a few localities of less than 350,000 population are covered and there are, no doubt, school superintendents and city managers paid $30,000 or more in other localities in the lower population brackets. Hence, the term "Partial" appears on each tabulation.

Table I summarizes the positions by Occupation and Pay Bracket, Table II summarizes them by State and Occupation, and Table III lists them in detail by Occupation, Jurisdiction, and Salary under the following categories:

- A. Governors
- B. State Administrative and Professional Positions
- C. Mayors, City and County Managers
- D. City and County Administrative and Professional Positions
- E. Superintendents and Other Public School Officers
- F. Presidents, Officers, Faculty Members, etc., of Public Educational Institutions
- G. Public Corporation Positions
- H. Judiciary

Press Secretary to the President.

SALARY RECOMMENDATIONS

Executive, Legislative, and Judicial Salaries

Public Law 90-206, approved December 16, 1967, established the Commission on Executive, Legislative, and Judicial Salaries. The Commission is required to make recommendations to the President, at 4-year intervals, on the rates of pay for Senators, Representatives, Federal judges, Cabinet officers and other agency heads, and certain other officials in the executive, legislative, and judicial branches. The law requires that the President, in the budget next submitted by him after receipt of a report of the Commission, set forth his recommendations with respect to the exact rates of pay he deems advisable for those offices and positions covered by the law. The President's recommendations become effective 30 days following transmittal of the budget, unless in the meantime other rates have been enacted by law or at least one House of Congress has enacted legislation which specifically disapproves of all or part of the recommendations.

At the request of the President, the first report of the Commission was submitted to him in December 1968. The report has been considered by the President and, in accordance with section 225(h) of Public Law 90-206, approved December 16, 1967, 81 Stat. 644, the President recommends the following rates of pay for executive, legislative, and judicial offices and positions within the purview of subsection (f) of that section:

REPORT
No. 722

POSTAL REVENUE AND FEDERAL SALARY ACT OF 1967

SEPTEMBER 28, 1967.—Committed to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union and ordered to be printed

Mr. DULSKI, from the Committee on Post Office and Civil Service, submitted the following

together with

INDIVIDUAL AND MINORITY VIEWS

[To accompany H.R. 7977]

The Committee on Post Office and Civil Service, to whom was referred the bill (H.R. 7977) to adjust certain postage rates, and for other purposes, having considered the same, report favorably thereon with amendments and recommend that the bill as amended do pass.

AMENDMENTS

The committee proposes two amendments to the bill: "An amendment to the text and an amendment to the title."

AMENDMENT TO THE TEXT

The amendment proposed by the committee to the text of the bill strikes out all after the enacting clause and inserts in lieu thereof a substitute text which is contained in italic type in the reported bill. The explanation of the provisions of the substitute text is contained in the explanation of the bill set forth hereinafter in this report.

AMENDMENT TO THE TITLE

The amendment proposed by the committee to the title of the bill is intended to reflect more accurately the text of the bill as proposed to be amended by the committee.

PURPOSE

The major purposes of this legislation are—

To increase postal rates in order to provide postal revenues approximately equal to postal operating costs after public service expenses have been deducted, as authorized by the congressional policy set forth in 39 U.S.C. 2202(c)(4);

To increase salaries of Government employees and provide authority to complete the implementation of the congressional policy specified in 1962, 5 U.S.C. 5301(2), to bring Federal salary schedules to levels that are comparable to those in private enterprise; and

To regulate the mailings of pandering advertisements.

It is also the purpose of this legislation—

To improve the mailing privileges for members of the Armed Forces; and

To modernize the provisions relating to mail matter for the blind, and to include within the benefits of such provisions persons who cannot read conventionally printed material because of physical impairment.

EXECUTIVE RECOMMENDATIONS

The postal rate legislation is based on the recommendations of the President included in his message to the Congress on April 5, 1967, House Document No. 95, 90th Congress. A detailed explanation of the recommendations is included in the Postmaster General's report to the Congress dated April 17, 1967, entitled "Survey of Postal Rates," House Document No. 106, 90th Congress. The draft of legislation on postal rates was submitted by the Postmaster General to the Congress by letter dated April 5, 1967. The legislation recommended is included in H.R. 7977 as introduced.

The draft of legislation on Federal salaries was submitted by the Chairman, U.S. Civil Service Commission, on April 5, 1967, and is included in H.R. 8261 as introduced.

The President's message is set forth, as follows:

To the Congress of the United States:

Two weeks ago in my Message to the Congress on the Quality of American Government, I stated:

"The machinery of our Government has served us well. It has been the vehicle of the greatest progress and prosperity any nation has ever achieved.

"But this record should give us no cause for complacency. For any realistic review today reveals that there are substantial improvements to be made."

Today I ask the Congress to take two vital steps to help bring about those improvements:

—Increase the salaries of Government employees.

—Increase postal rates and improve postal services.

In America we demand the highest level of excellence in the public service. If we expect high quality,

—We must be able to attract and keep highly competent career employees.

—We must be willing to give them the machinery they need to do an effective job.

SALARY INCREASES

Through the years, this Nation has built a corps of public servants whose quality is unmatched by any other country in the world.

Our career employees are well-trained and experienced. In ever-increasing numbers, they are skilled professionals. They include not only administrators and managers, but doctors, lawyers, diplomats, economists, scientists, engineers, actuaries, systems analysts, law enforcement officers, nurses—and many others critically needed to provide public services in a complex world.

These men and women come to the public service not by chance, but by choice. They come because they are challenged by problems that are far-reaching—and fateful. They come because Government offers unique opportunities for unselfish service.

From them, we expect unusual dedication. In turn, they have a right to expect from their Government rewards that match their contributions.

We have made great progress recently toward a pay scale which approaches that of private industry. Since 1962, civilian employees have received pay increases amounting to more than 23 percent. We have improved retirement and other fringe benefits so that they now compare favorably with benefits in private industry. There have been corresponding increases in military pay, and fringe benefits have been improved substantially.

Yet we still fall short of comparability with private industry. The Annual Report of the Chairman of the Civil Service Commission and the Director of the Bureau of the Budget describes the gap which remains between Government and industry pay scales. I am transmitting that report to the Congress today with the renewed conviction that this gap must be closed.

To close the gap in one year would require an average pay increase of 7.2 percent. With a similar increase for the Armed Forces, the cost would be more than $2.5 billion per year.

In view of today's fiscal and economic conditions, my advisers inform me that a pay raise of this magnitude would not be prudent. While inflationary pressures in the economy have lessened in recent months, they have not disappeared. They could easily recur. We must therefore continue to seek restraint in private wage settlements and to exercise restraint in the operations of Government.

But a pay raise for the Government's employees clearly is needed. We must avoid placing the Government at a serious disadvantage in recruiting and retaining competent workers—and we must keep faith with our employees.

To do so requires that we achieve comparability with private pay levels—and that we do it in a way which does not endanger our unparalleled economic prosperity.

As President Kennedy said five years ago, "to pay more than this is to be unfair to American taxpayers—to pay less is to degrade the public service and endanger our national security."

I recommend a 4.5 percent pay increase for civilian employees effective October 1, 1967.

I recommend that the Congress take the final step this year to achieve full comparability with private industry. I propose a two stage plan to remove the remaining comparability lag in all grades by October 1, 1969. The first step would take effect in October 1968 and the second a year later.

For our military personnel, pay alone can never reflect the full measure of our debt. On the battlefields, in outposts where there is tension but no battle, in the vast defense installations of our country, these men and women protect our national security. We must assure them and their families that they will be compensated for their service on a scale which is comparable to that of their 2.5 million civilian co-workers. As civilian pay goes up, so should the pay of the armed services.

I recommend an increase in regular military pay similar to the raise for civilians—an average 4.5 percent effective October 1, 1967.

This year the Secretary of Defense has been conducting a searching review of the principles underlying the military compensation system. When these studies have been completed, I will recommend further changes in the Armed Forces pay system.

We must also take steps to ensure the adequacy of salaries for top officials in the Legislative, Judicial and Executive Branches of the Government. To this end, I have established a special Commission headed by Frederick R. Kappel to study executive pay in the three branches of the Federal Government. When I have reviewed its report, I will make recommendations for appropriate adjustments in these areas.

Salary reform for the government of an increasingly complex and ever-changing society is never complete. The entire structure and interrelationships of all Federal pay systems, civilian and military, should be continually reviewed and improved. The adequacy of the basic pay system itself must be periodically re-examined.

I recommend that a special Joint Salary Commission, representing the Executive, Legislative, and Judicial Branches, be established to examine all Federal pay systems and report to the President and Congress within two years.

POSTAL RATES AND SERVICES

The postal service is the key link of the Nation's commerce. It is also the personal communications network of some 200 million private citizens. It must be responsive to the needs of the public and the needs of the business community.

That system now bears a tremendous burden. Each year the Post Office Department processes as much mail as the rest of the world combined. To cope with the great outpouring of mail created by our country's increasing social and economic activity, we must have a modern, highly mechanized postal service.

We do not have such a postal service today.

The post offices in many of our major cities were built during the 1930's—built to handle between 25 and 30 billion pieces of mail a year. This year, nearly 80 billion items will move through the postal system. Next year still another 3 billion pieces of mail will be processed. If this growth rate continues, mail volume will exceed 100 billion pieces a year by 1976.

These figures make it dramatically clear that we must remodel old post offices and build new facilities. We must equip them with modern, high-speed mail processing machines—the most efficient our Nation's technology can produce.

We have made a good start in the past few years on modernizing and mechanizing the postal service. That pace must now be quickened. We must place even greater emphasis on research, engineering and new technology. We must intensify our efforts to enlist the support of all Americans to increase their use of the ZIP code.

In the 1968 budget I have recommended more than $300 million for postal modernization. This represents a 40-percent increase in expenditures for research and engineering and a 46-percent increase in funds for plant and equipment.

These are substantial increases. But they are fully justified by the planning that has preceded them and the size of the task that lies ahead.

To keep pace with the demands of a growing Nation, we must also modernize the postal rate structure. We must bring postal revenues into line with operating costs.

Present rates do not provide sufficient funds for necessary improvements in postal facilities and equipment. Indeed, present revenues do not even cover normal operating costs.

For fiscal 1968, the Post Office Department deficit will be about $1.2 billion—and this does not include the pay increase I am recommending today. Less than half of this deficit is attributable to the "public service" functions of the Department.

Yet the Postal Policy Act of 1958 calls for postal revenues "approximately equal" to operating costs after public service expenses have been deducted.

I recommend that the Congress increase postal rates for all classes of mail:

- First class and airmail:* a 1-cent increase in postage for cards and letters sent first-class or airmail, effective July 1, 1967.
- Second class:* an average increase of 22 percent for all categories of second-class mail, phased over a 3-year period beginning January 1, 1968.
- Third class:* an average increase of 28 percent for all categories of third-class mail. The rate increase for single pieces of mail will go into effect July 1, 1967, and the bulk rate increase on January 1, 1968.

—Fourth class: an average increase of 21 percent for special rate fourth-class mail (mainly books and records,) effective July 1, 1967.

—A special surcharge on odd-sized envelopes which cannot be processed by postal machinery. This surcharge, which will go into effect in 2 years, is designed to discourage the use of envelopes which cannot be rapidly processed through postal machinery.

The rate increases for second and third class bulk mail would have been substantially higher and would have been needed sooner if the ZIP code presorting regulations had not become effective on January 1 of this year. In recognition of the cost to mailers of ZIP coding and the savings anticipated from this program, I am recommending that the effective date for second class and bulk rate third class increases be delayed until January 1, 1968.

These postal rate increases will produce $700 million in postal revenues in fiscal 1968. When fully effective, they will add more than $800 million annually to postal revenues.

This legislation will provide the necessary funds for postal modernization and the proposed pay increase for postal employees. It will enable the Post Office Department to begin immediately to provide better services for all Americans:

- Faster and more efficient delivery of the mails,
- Restoration of six-day parcel post service,
- Door delivery in some residential areas now served by roadside boxes.

A BETTER GOVERNMENT

The pay and postal rate increases I recommend in this message are essential if we are to have a government of responsive and talented people and an efficient postal system.

Delay in attaining comparability beyond the effective dates I have suggested is inexcusable. To neglect—and thus impair—the public service would be far more expensive for the American people in the long run.

Delay in enacting the postal rate increases I request will hamper significantly our efforts to build a modern and efficient postal system.

The government of this Nation can never be any better than the people who work for it, the tools they have, and the people whom they serve.

I urge the Congress to act promptly on these proposals to insure those who work in our government just pay for the dedication they bring to the task of serving every one of us.

LYNDON B. JOHNSON.

THE WHITE HOUSE, April 5, 1967.

TITLE I—POSTAL REVENUE ACT OF 1967

REVENUE-COST

The postal rate increases provided by this legislation, when fully effective, will add more than $884 million annually to postal revenue.

The Post Office Department's operating deficit in fiscal year 1967 was $1,148 million, up from $942 million in fiscal year 1966.

Of the total 1967 deficit, $557 million was estimated as public service costs. These costs, enumerated in 39 U.S.C. 2303, are associated with the services performed by the Post Office Department to benefit the Nation as a whole rather than any one mail user group.

The difference between public service costs ($557 million) and the operating deficit ($1,148 million) is termed the "postal deficiency," which was $591 million for fiscal year 1967.

The additional revenue of over $884 million, expected to result in this legislation when fully effective, is expected to be sufficient to reduce the estimated postal deficiency and cover such increases in cost as can be expected due to—

- (1) Major service improvements now being initiated or planned to meet the unprecedented increase in mail volume;
- (2) The pending pay increases for postal employees; and
- (3) Postal modernization projects.

The provisions of title I of the bill extending the mailing privileges for the U.S. Armed Forces (secs. 101 (b) and (c), 102(b)(3), 116, and 117) will add approximately $6.5 million in costs for the Department of Defense, which is responsible for such costs for the Armed Forces.

Nonprofit publications (sec. 103)

At present a flat rate of 1.8 cents a pound with a minimum of 0.125 cent per piece, is charged for qualified nonprofit second-class mail. The Postmaster General proposed an increase to 0.2 cent on the minimum rate and increases over a 3-year period on the pound rates in proportion to the amount of advertising content. The committee increases the existing minimum charge per piece of 0.125 cent to 0.2 cent, prescribes a three-step increase for the nonadvertising portion, and provides that the advertising portion of nonprofit publications would be subject to zone rates that increase in six steps during the period 1968-73. The Postmaster General's and the committee's proposals, beginning on January 7, 1968, are set forth below:

The committee made the per copy rates applicable only to publications mailed for delivery at the post office of original entry and adopted a rate schedule which is the same as that recommended by the Postmaster General, as follows:

SPECIAL RATE FOURTH-CLASS MAIL

General rate (sec. 108)

The general rate for books, films, records, and other special items, which is now 10 cents for the first pound and 5 cents for each additional pound, was increased to 16 cents for the first 2 pounds and 6 cents for each additional pound, as recommended by the Postmaster General.

COST ASCERTAINMENT AND POSTAL RATE-FIXING POLICY

The cost ascertainment system is a statistical-accounting system. It develops the ratio of revenue to cost for each class of mail or services, showing the percentage of cost coverage for each class. The system does not take into account factors, other than cost, which generally are to be considered in fixing postal rates and fees under policies established by law (39 U.S.C. 2301-2306).

For example, the system does not attempt to evaluate such service differences as—

1. The value of priority given first-class and airmail, or the deferment given to any other class of mail;
2. The relative values of the various services to the public; or
3. The relative intrinsic values of the items handled.

Some people consistently try to justify postage rate adjustments solely on cost coverage percentages, which is contrary to congressional policy based on law.

The cost coverage percentages are merely one of the many factors that, under the statutory policy, should be considered and weighed in the congressional rate-fixing process.

Cost ascertainment

The cost ascertainment system is required by law (39 U.S.C. 2331) to state the revenues derived from and cost of—

1. Carrying and handling the several classes of mail matter; and
2. Performing special services.

The system is designed to credit to each of the classes of mail and services the portion of revenue it has earned, and to assess against each its portion of the cost of the postal service.

The principal source of postal revenue is from the sale of stamps and from postage which is paid under a permit. In many cases, there is no possible way to identify postal revenues by class of mail as stamps may be used for service on any class of mail and on special services requiring stamps.

Revenues are distributed—

1. By direct identification of the class of mail where possible;
2. By assignment of amounts computed from administrative records; or
3. By apportionment based on the accounting and sampling at designated cost ascertainment post offices (500 in fiscal year 1966).

Costs distributed include those financed from revenues and reimbursements and those charged against appropriation limitations.

The assignment of costs is made by—

1. Direct allocation to each class of mail wherever possible;
2. Assignment of amounts computed from administrative records; or
3. Apportionment based on tests and sampling reflecting the use of facilities and personal services for each class of mail or category for special services.

The tests and sampling during fiscal year 1966 were conducted at 500 cost ascertainment offices during four specified periods of 7 consecutive days each.

On January 1, 1967, the Post Office Department installed a new system for collecting data on revenue, pieces, and weight of mail, by classes of mail and type of service. This new system is based on probability sampling.

Under the new method of probability sampling, the Department employs random samples of the mail. The data-collection effort is dispersed throughout the entire year, thereby reflecting daily and seasonal variations. The old method concentrated data collection during 4 weeks of the year, one in each calendar quarter. Under that method, special adjustments were required to reflect seasonal variations.

The Post Office cost ascertainment system has been studied many times in its history, and it is under continual study by the Post Office Department itself. This is, as nearly as it can be at any point in time, an unbiased system of revenue allocation and cost allocation which seeks to portray the financial aspect of things as they actually are. It ascribes to each class of service the portion of the revenues that that class brings in. And it ascribes to each class of service or other activity the costs that are involved in performing the service or conducting the activity. The system uses scientific sampling and other statistical techniques, and conventional cost accounting principles.

Postal rate-fixing policy

It is the declared policy of the Congress (39 U.S.C. 2301-2306) that the Congress will fix and adjust from time to time the postal rate structure as the public interest may require in accordance with the general principles, standards, and related requirements specified in the law.

Historically, and as a matter of public policy, the Congress has recognized and accepted certain relationships among the several classes of mail. The major principles, standards, and related requirements, as set forth in the law, which justify the relationship among the several classes of mail are—

1. Postal rates and fees shall be adjusted from time to time as may be required to produce the amount of revenue approximately equal to the total cost of operating the postal establishment less the amount deemed attributable to the performance of public service;

2. First-class mail constitutes a preferred service and therefore, the postage for first-class mail should be sufficient to cover the entire amount of the expenses allocated to first-class mail, plus an additional amount representing the quality and character of the service rendered in terms of priority, secrecy, security, and speed of transmission;

3. All classes of mail, particularly second- and third-class mail, have been instrumental in providing one or more of the following—communication of intelligence, dissemination of information, the advancement of education and culture, the distribution of articles of commerce and industry, and the growth of many commercial enterprises which contribute materially to the national economy and to the public welfare.

The mailers of second- and third-class mail are required to process and present their mailings as directed by the Postmaster General. The steps involved in the preparation by the mailer represent, in most cases, at least one-half of the mail-handling steps. In the case of first-class mail, all of these steps are performed by postal employees. The material which follows highlights this point.

Establishment of the rates to be charged for postal services is only partially a problem in financial management. Much more importantly, it is a problem in specifying or respecifying national public policy. Important segments of commerce and industry, and important segments of social activity, have grown up around the postal service and its rate structure over the years, and it is fair to say that there is now and has long been a built-in interdependence which must always be carefully considered when postal rate revision is proposed. Also, of course, there is a built-in tendency for mail users to defend the status quo, or even simply to delay the effectiveness of change. Drastic or sudden revision of the postal rate structure could produce wholly unwanted side effects, as many interested parties are quick to point out whenever it is suggested that there should be a rate revision.

There are classes of mail which are carried at revenue rates that do not contemplate full recovery of cost. There are classes of mail which are carried at revenue rates intended to provide full cost recovery but not more than that. There are classes of mail, or classes of auxiliary service, that produce no revenues at all, these being deemed necessary or desirable public services to be paid for with money raised by general taxation. And then there is the first-class mail service which produces revenues from which, in the view of many people, something more than cost recovery should be expected.

Based on all of these factors, the Congress has encouraged the use of second- and third-class mail through reasonable and special postal rates.

As evidence of the congressional rate-fixing policy, the historical relationship among the various classes of mail is shown in the table which follows.

NONMACHINABLE MAIL

The provisions recommended by the Postmaster General and included in H.R. 7977, defining "nonmachinable mail" and the provisions imposing a surcharge on such mail, all have been eliminated from the bill as reported.

The Postmaster General recommended provisions (section 4, 9(c), and 9(d), of H.R. 7977) which defined such size mail to mean mail which has size dimensions greater than 5 1/4 inches wide or 11 1/2 inches long, nonuniform thickness or thickness which exceeds one-quarter inch, and ratio of width to length of less than 1 to 1.414. Extra charges were recommended on nonmachinable first-class mail and nonmachinable airmail weighing not more than 2 ounces; on nonmachinable size matter weighing not more than 4 ounces mailed at the third-class single piece rate; on nonmachinable size merchandise samples; and on all nonmachinable size pieces subject to the third-class bulk minimum piece rates.

The committee did not have an opportunity to examine these provisions in depth or to take extensive testimony from the Department in justification of the recommendation. The Department witnesses stated that the purpose of the standards of nonmachinability and the surcharges was not to raise additional revenue but to discourage the use of envelopes and other pieces of mail that cannot be readily handled by postal machinery or that create other mail processing or delivery problems.

The witnesses that testified before the Subcommittee on Postal Rates, who had vital interests in these provisions, unanimously recognized and supported the proposition that mechanized mail handling operations will require standardization of sizes of mail, and most witnesses indicated a willingness to pay a fair surcharge to cover the real difference in cost between machine and hand operations.

The recommendation seeks to resolve a question of machinability through the device of increasing postal rates, but cost figures to justify those rates are not available, nor was convincing testimony presented as to the machinability or the nonmachinability of any particular size of mail. Moreover, the committee was not advised of any justification for applying the "machinability" standards to third-class mail which, in most instances, is not processed by machinery.

Several witnesses presented evidence which raised grave doubts as to whether the sizes recommended can be justified.

The subcommittee developed, considered, but delayed for further study, provisions which would have defined "standard-size mail."

It was the unanimous view of the Subcommittee on Postal Rates which was agreed to by the full committee, that the provision, recommended by the Postmaster General should be eliminated from this legislation.

The committee is convinced that a careful and complete study should be undertaken before dimensional characteristics of mail are prescribed, either by law or by regulation, or before surcharges are imposed for mail not within such characteristics.

The committee wishes to emphasize that it has long recognized the need for standardization of mail. The problems concerning standardized mail were a subject of considerable concern to the committee in connection with the review by the committee of the postal systems of certain European countries (H. Rept. 1226, 89th Cong.).

As early as 1948, Public Law 900, 80th Congress, prescribed a penalty rate for odd-sized third-class mail. The Postal Rate Act of 1958 (Public Law 85-426), enacted May 27, 1958, increased the rate for the odd-size category third-class mail from 3 to 6 cents per piece. Also, section 210 of the 1958 act required the Postmaster General to conduct a thorough investigation and study of the feasibility of establishing by regulations of the Postmaster General standard sizes for first- and third-class mail, and additional charges for mail not within those standards.

The increase from 3 to 6 cents was due to take effect August 1, 1958. However, Public Law 85-893 postponed the effective date until May 1, 1959, because of a serious problem which arose with regard to the catalog mailings by seed and nursery companies. Public Law 86-56 revised the minimum per piece charge from 6 to 3½ cents, because mailers of odd-sized pieces weighing not more than 1 ounce began to mail their pieces at the lower 4-cent rate for first class. The 3½-cent penalty rate continued until 1962, when it was eliminated by the Postal Rate Act of 1962 (Public Law 87-793).

The Postmaster General's report required by the 1958 act was submitted on March 11, 1959, and includes the following recommendations:

(b) With respect to machinability.—Since the Department's objective is to develop machines with which to handle larger volumes of future mail and since it is essential that mail of the future conform to machine use, the Department will recommend to the Congress at its session beginning in 1961 that a differential in rates be established which will give preference to mail which the Department, by administrative action, shall have declared machinable.

Mail not conforming to machinable categories would take higher rates since the time and labor cost of handling, sorting, canceling, etc., will justify such higher rates.

Our recommendations concerning these rates must await another year's experience in the use of machine versus hand methods and upon a more widespread use of machines in post offices. By presenting recommendations to the Congress in 1961 and by giving several years' advance notice of regulations of mail size and other characteristics to be effective July 1, 1961, a suitable period for public consideration and for adjustment of inventories, production, and other market operations will be provided.

Legislation

The Department, by administrative action, can adopt regulations establishing categories of nonmailability and of machinable versus nonmachinable mail. Rate differentials applying to machinable and to nonmachinable mail will require legislation which will be recommended at the appropriate time.

In accordance with our assurances to you when these matters were first taken under advisement a year ago, we wish to point out that no action will be taken on these decisions until you have had an opportunity to study this letter and at that time we will be happy to discuss the matter with you at your convenience.

With this background in mind, it becomes readily apparent that the problem relating to the dimensional characteristics of mail has been batted back and forth for over 20 years, and the time is long since past when it must be resolved by the Congress and the Post Office Department. The committee intends to conduct a thorough study of this problem at the earliest practicable time.

JUSTIFICATION FOR POSTAGE REVISIONS

FINANCIAL SUMMARY

The Post Office Department's net operating loss in fiscal 1967 was $1,148 million, up from $942 million in fiscal year 1966. These amounts must be financed from general funds of the Treasury.

Of the total 1967 deficit, $557 million was estimated as public service costs. These costs, enumerated in the Postal Policy Act (39 U.S.C. 2303), are associated with services performed by the Post Office Department to benefit the Nation as a whole rather than any one mail user group. The difference between public service costs and the Treasury financing—$591 million—is termed the postal deficiency.

The Department's "Survey of Postal Rates," submitted to the Congress on April 15, 1966, (H. Doc. 420, 89th Cong.) anticipated a postal deficiency of $187 million. The much higher deficiency estimated at this time is largely the result of the following developments:

1. Higher postal salaries and fringe benefits approved in July 1966 (Public Law 89-504).
2. Higher operating costs imposed by the terms of Public Law 89-301, which greatly reduced flexibility in scheduling personnel and caused high turnover with attendant costs of recruiting, training, and loss of efficiency.

3. Delay in enacting parcel post rate and size-weight increases (Public Law 89-593). These were expected to net $107 million in fiscal 1967. Instead, the gain will be about $31 million.

4. Unanticipated volume increases. While volume increased in all major classes of mail, impact on postal finances was particularly severe in rate-deficient services. On top of a 5.2-percent increase in all mail in fiscal 1966, an increase of about 4.5 percent is now expected for fiscal 1967.

The postal deficiency

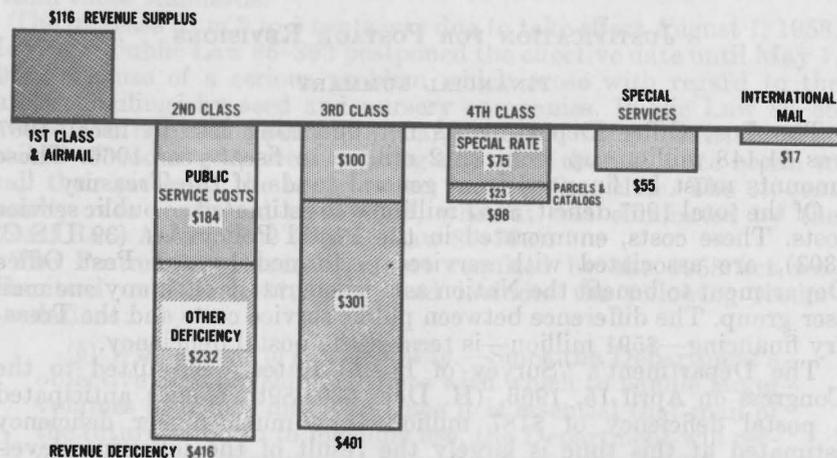

The following analysis of the postal revenue deficiency is based on estimates of costs and revenues for fiscal 1967 experience. On that basis, the key figures are:

| | Millions |
|--------------------------------|-----------------|
| Treasury financing..... | $1, 148 |
| Less public service costs..... | 557 |
| Postal deficiency..... | 591 |

Revenues from second- and third-class mails are far below allocated costs. Moreover, while revenues from first-class mail currently exceed costs, a 3-year downtrend in cost coverage has narrowed the surplus from that service to a level that is incompatible with Postal Policy Act guidelines. These require first-class revenues to cover costs plus "an additional amount" for the value of preferential service.

Pinpointing the Postal Deficit

($ MILLIONS)

Comparing revenues and fully allocated costs, for fiscal year 1966, before and after crediting public services, the principal cost-revenue relationships are as follows:

(Dollar amounts in millions)

| Service | Revenues | Costs | Revenue deficiency or surplus | Cost coverage (percent) | |
|-----------------------------|-------------|-------------|-------------------------------|-------------------------|-----------------------|
| | | | | Before public services | After public services |

| Airmail..... | 277. 0 | 228. 4 | +48. 6 | 121. 3 | (1) |
| Second class..... | 126. 3 | 542. 5 | -416. 2 | 23. 3 | 35. 2 |
| Controlled circulation..... | 18. 9 | 32. 7 | -13. 8 | 57. 9 | (1) |
| Third class..... | 681. 6 | 1, 082. 8 | -401. 2 | 62. 9 | 69. 3 |
| Fourth class..... | 870. 8 | 968. 6 | -97. 8 | 89. 9 | 97. 5 |
| International..... | 157. 9 | 174. 5 | -16. 7 | 90. 4 | 90. 6 |
| Special services..... | 278. 3 | 333. 2 | -55. 0 | 83. 5 | 100. 0 |

While first class and airmail have a combined surplus of $116.3 million, cost coverage is at its lowest level since 1962, just slightly above the breakeven point.

The favorable 121-percent cost coverage for airmail is mainly the result of a 175-percent cost coverage for air parcel post. Stripping out that service leaves a cost coverage on other airmail of only 105 percent.

Second- and third-class mail have revenue deficiencies of $416.2 million and $401.2 million, respectively, including losses offset by public service allowances. Thus, these services account for about 80 percent of the total adjusted deficit figure of $1,009.7 million. Reflecting these sizable deficiencies, second class has a cost coverage of only 23.3 percent before public service costs. Third-class cost coverage is 62.9 percent.

The fourth-class deficiency of $97.8 million is attributable largely to special rates for parcels of books and recordings. After anticipating the full effects of Public Law 89-593, enacted September 20, 1966, the deficiency for zone-rate fourth-class mail (parcels and catalogs) is down to $22.6 million, from $107.1 million a year ago.

The deficiency reported for special services, $55 million, is identified as a public service charge.

International mail recorded a deficit of over $16 million in fiscal 1966 and prompted the Department to seek rate revisions in surface and airmail rates through administrative procedure. These were effective on May 1, 1967, except for publications mailed to Canada. For such publications, increases will be phased in two steps: On November 1, 1967, and November 1, 1968.

Public service costs

On a fiscal 1966 adjusted basis, $547 million—about 54 percent of the entire postal deficit—is identified as public service cost in accordance with the provisions of the Postal Policy Act.

In the Postal Policy Act of 1958, as amended in 1962, Public Law 87-793, the Congress directed that revenues must be kept in line with the total allocated cost of operating the postal establishment less the amount deemed to be attributable to the performance of public services.

A breakdown of fiscal 1966 (adjusted) public service costs, shown in the table below, indicates that free or reduced-rate postage accounts for about 66 percent of total public service costs. Operating costs for third-class offices and star routes, fourth-class post offices and rural routes account for just over 19 percent. The balance is attributable to losses incurred in performing special services, nonpostal services, and to the premium cost of employing foreign-flag air carriers.

Public Service Costs

($ MILLIONS)

Mail volume

Mail volume increased 5.2 percent in fiscal 1966, reaching a level of 75.6 billion pieces. A further substantial rise to about 79 billion pieces is expected in fiscal 1967.

In the 20 years since 1946, mail volume increased some 40 billion pieces, more than in all the preceding years since establishment of the postal service. This unusual rise in mail volume was reflected in a significant per capita increase in the mails. In 1946 an average of 258 pieces of mail was dispatched for each person in the United States; by 1966 that count had risen to 386, an increase of about 50 percent.

MAIL VOLUME, PERSONAL INCOME, POPULATION

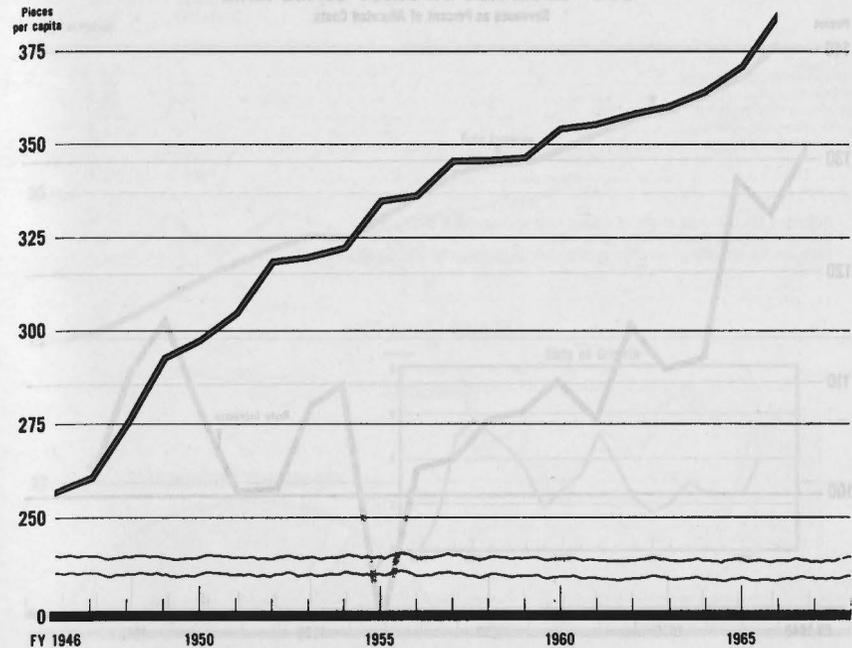

Not all mail volumes have changed uniformly. Parcel post, for example, experienced a sharp downtrend after 1951. Congressional limitations on size and weight of parcels, higher rates, and diversions to private carriers were the main causes of the decline. In contrast, the volume of special rate fourth-class mail—mainly books and recordings—has risen sharply. Preferential rates, increased college attendance, the affluence of our society, and intensive promotional efforts of book and record clubs all contributed to impressive volume gains.

Third-class mail, which is largely advertising matter, has continued to increase at a faster rate than most other mails. From 1953, the total volume of third-class mail has risen 69 percent. In contrast, all other mails increased only 42 percent. These disparate changes had a marked effect on the mix of mails during that period. Third-class mail accounted for 23.6 percent of all volume in 1953; but in 1966 it had risen to 26.9 percent of the total.

Divergent rates of growth in the various classes of mail and the consequent shifts in mail mix had a significant impact on the Department's mounting level of deficit financing. The fastest growth took place in the rate categories, in each class, having the lowest revenue-cost relationships.

MAIL VOLUME PER CAPITA

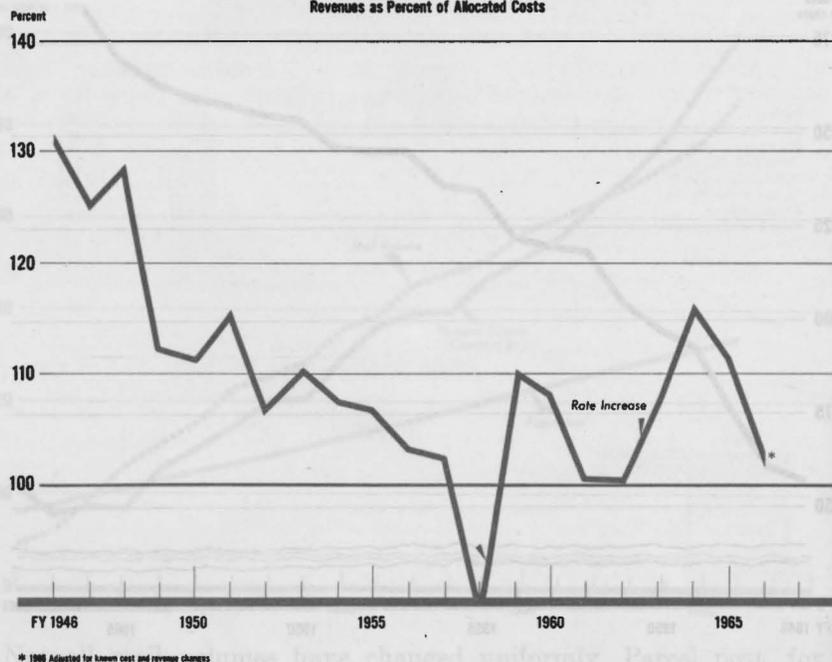

FIRST CLASS AND AIRMAIL

Following the rate increase of January 1963 (Public Law 87-793), the revenue surplus from first-class mail dropped from $295 million in fiscal 1964 to $68 million on a 1966 adjusted basis. Concurrently, cost coverage dropped from 116 percent to 103 percent. This decline in revenue surplus reflected rising costs, largely the result of three increases in salary and fringe benefits for postal employees.

COST COVERAGE ON FIRST CLASS MAIL

Revenues as Percent of Allocated Costs

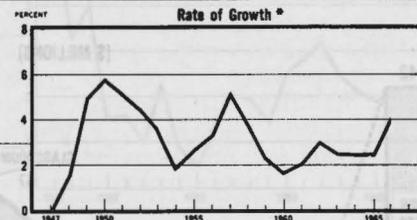

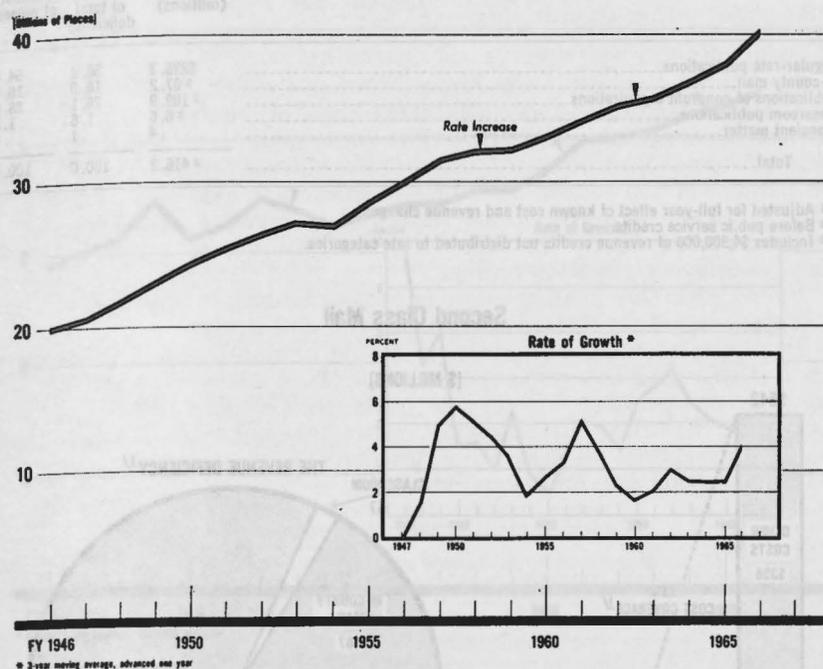

The Postal Policy Act guideline for first-class mail requires that postage cover costs plus "an additional amount" to reflect the value of preferential service. Clearly, the 3-percent revenue surplus fails to meet that standard. Moreover, that modest surplus is earned mainly on heavier pieces and the 5-cent rate fails to cover costs on most 1-ounce letters. It is conceivable, recognizing cost-increase trends, that cost coverage in the next several years would fall below 100 percent, as it did in 1958.

Annual volume growth between fiscal 1958 and 1965 ranged between 0.2 percent and 3.2 percent. In 1966, however, volume surged upward more than 6 percent, reaching a high of 40.4 billion pieces. A further substantial increase is now evident for fiscal year 1967.

In airmail, the excess of revenues over costs increased $12 million last year, raising the 1966 (adjusted) surplus to $48.6 million. This was mainly attributable to a $39 million surplus for air parcel post.

Cost coverage for all airmail is currently 121 percent. But after excluding the highly profitable air parcel post service, cost coverage on all other airmail is only 105 percent. In these circumstances revenues from most 1-ounce airmail letters are insufficient to cover their fully allocated costs.

FIRST CLASS MAIL VOLUME

SECOND-CLASS MAIL

The revenue deficiency for second-class mail in fiscal 1966 is over $416 million on an adjusted basis, before public service allowances are subtracted from costs. This record deficiency is reflected in a cost coverage of less than 24 percent for the entire class, the lowest among all major mail classes.

Adjusted postal revenues from second-class mail are $126 million. In contrast, transportation costs alone are $58 million, leaving only $68 million to meet additional expenses of $485 million for mail handling, carrier deliveries, and other expenses.

Although rate increases since 1951 have been fairly steep, percentage-wise, they have not been large enough to offset the rise in costs. When cost coverage is greatly deficient—as it is in second class—cost increases must be met by much sharper percentage increases in rates, just to avoid losing ground financially.

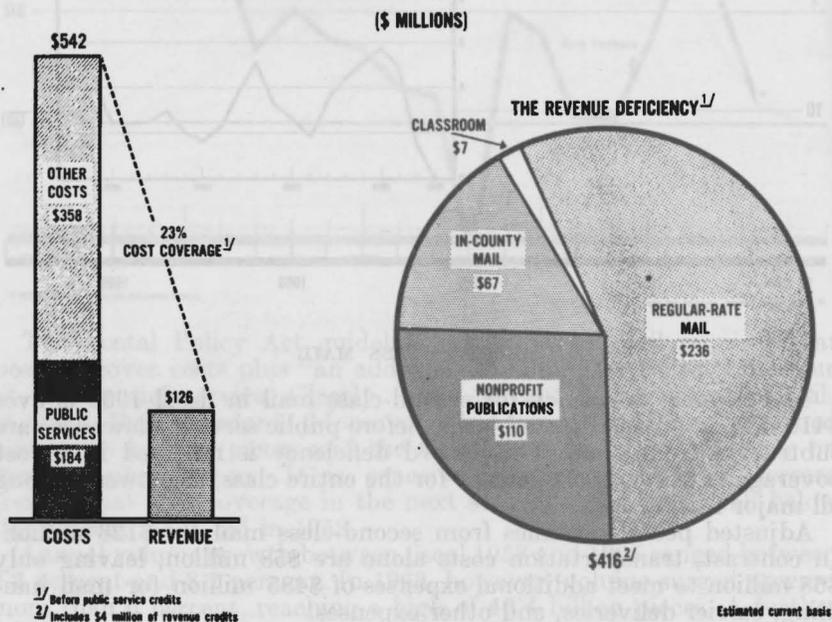

Full recovery of costs is not a congressional objective in second-class mail. In this instance, the Postal Policy Act continues the long-standing practice of differential pricing among the several classes of mail. Rates in each class of mail are expected to range above and below costs in accordance with value of service. In addition to priority of service and the intrinsic value of the mail, the Congress has given great weight to the contribution of each mail class to the social and economic betterment of the Nation. In formulating its proposed rate revisions, the committee has given full recognition to this concept.

The deficits for the five separate rate categories closely relate to their respective volumes, as indicated below:

| | Deficiency ¹ (millions) | Percent of total deficiency | Percent of pieces |
|---|---------------------------------------|-----------------------------------|----------------------|
| Regular-rate publications | $236.3 | 56.2 | 54.8 |

Growth of second-class mail

While the rate of volume growth trended downward from 1947 to 1955, there has been a reversal in the last decade. Volume growth has been generally upward since 1955. Many factors contributed to that uptrend, including higher disposable personal income, more families, more leisure time, and increased school and college enrollment. But the upward trend was also the result of greater emphasis by publishers on magazine subscriptions rather than newsstand sales. This was reflected in promotional pricing efforts aimed at expanding advertising revenues through greater subscription circulation.

SECOND CLASS MAIL VOLUME

MAGAZINE AND NEWSPAPER VOLUME*

As the accompanying chart shows, there has been a shift in second-class mail mix over the past 20 years. The major share is now in magazines rather than in newspapers.

Regular-rate publications

In order of magnitude, the largest share of the second-class deficiency stems from publishers' zone-rate mailings of "outside the county" matter. Cost coverage is higher than for second class as a whole: 29.3 percent versus 23.3 percent, before public service credits. But, because 55 percent of the second-class mail volume is in this rate category, it also accounts for most of the second-class revenue deficiency. On a 1966 adjusted basis, the deficiency attributable to publications in this classification is $236 million.

Faced with this peak revenue gap, the committee is proposing rate increases based on costs, value of service, and equity.

In regard to value of service, it should be noted that a substantial part of this mail receives expedited handling. All newspapers—representing 38 percent of regular rate second-class pieces—receive expedited handling. In addition, news magazines and other time-value publications receive the equivalent of "newspaper treatment," without paying any additional charge.

Publications of nonprofit organizations

Second-class mailings in this category include publications of religious, educational, scientific, philanthropic, agricultural, labor, veterans, and fraternal organizations. To this list, legislation enacted in 1962 added the publications of associations of REA cooperatives and one publication by the official highway or development agency of any State.

During fiscal 1966, mailings by authorized nonprofit organizations, including their in-county copies, were 2.3 billion pieces and accounted for more than 26 percent of all second-class mail. These mailings also accounted for over a fourth of the second-class mail deficiency. The "total loss" incurred in handling these publications—$110 million—is earmarked as a public service cost.

Volume growth has been particularly rapid in recent years. In the last 7 years, 1959 to 1966, mail pieces increased from 1.5 to 2.3 billion, a 53-percent gain compared with 14 percent for all other second-class mail during the same period.

Cost coverage is the lowest among all mail categories. In the past 10 years it has ranged between 7.0 and 8.7 percent. It is currently at the lower end of that range.

There are some 10,000 publications that are authorized to be mailed at the special rates for nonprofit organizations. But among these, some 200 account for nearly 60 percent of copies mailed and almost 70 percent of their weight.

Partly because postage is unrelated to distance, nonlocal copies of these publications are hauled an average of 838 miles compared with only 358 miles for regular rate, second-class mail. Also, many of the nonprofit publications carry substantial amounts of advertising, resulting in an unfavorable advantage over taxpaying commercial publishers because of the competition from a source that is subsidized through reduced postage and tax preferences.

Within-county mail

On a current basis, fully allocated costs exceed revenues by about $67 million yearly and the full amount of that deficit is added to public service costs. This represents the third largest share of the second-class deficiency. Before reflecting these public service costs, revenues are equal to about 13 percent of fully allocated costs.

There were roughly 1.5 billion pieces of "within-county" matter mailed in fiscal 1966, or 15 percent of all second-class mail. (These excluded mailings of nonprofit and classroom publications.)

This mail has continued to grow over the long run even though population has been shifting steadily from rural to urban areas. With a burgeoning suburban population, demand for community newspapers has now increased to a point where there is a substantial increase in paid circulation, mostly in the areas around metropolitan cities.

² Not including copies of nonprofit and classroom publications delivered within counties of publication.

These trends point up how in-county rates are being turned to different ends than Congress envisioned more than a century ago when in-county rates were first established. While these rates were intended to help the rural press, volume growth is taking place largely around metropolitan areas.

Classroom publications

The adjusted fiscal 1966 revenue deficiency in this rate category amounts to $6.6 million and the entire amount is credited to public service. Cost coverage is about 18 percent before public service allowances.

These include about 140 classroom publications covering religious, educational, and scientific magazines and pamphlets. They amount to about 1 percent of second-class volume in pieces and weight.

Transient matter

The fifth and smallest category of second-class mail consists of "transient" matter—generally publications not entitled to publishers' bulk rates. These publications have been charged higher rates of postage than other second-class matter.

In fiscal 1966, transient matter produced adjusted revenues of $4.4 million and adjusted costs of $4.8 million resulting in a cost coverage of over 92 percent. The deficit portion is not credited to public service.

CONTROLLED CIRCULATION PUBLICATIONS

On a 1966-adjusted basis, these publications account for nearly $19 million in revenues and nearly $33 million in costs, resulting in a deficiency of about $14 million.

These are publications which do not qualify for second class because, for the most part, addressees do not pay a subscription price. Publishers build circulation by distributing copies, without subscription charge, to selected readers. They rely on advertising as their principal revenue source. Circulation is usually "controlled" and subject to independent audit so that advertisers have some guarantee of readership volume.

Historically, the controlled circulation group has included mainly trade, technical, and industrial publications. More recently, a substantial number of shopper-guide publications have joined the group.

A controlled-circulation rate category was first set up in 1935 as an extension of third class, which then had an 8-ounce limit. The creation of this new category permitted heavier trade publications to break away from parcel post. Initially, controlled-circulation rates were closely related to third-class rates. But, over the years, the minimum rate for controlled-circulation mail has held at 1 cent while the third-class minimum has increased to 2½ cents.

Prior to the enactment of the 1962 rate law, the Department urged adoption of a minimum rate for controlled circulation to match the minimum for bulk third class. The Congress rejected that proposal and the minimum rate for controlled-circulation publications remains at 1 cent.

The Post Office Department has stressed that shopper guides and other lightweight publications had found the controlled-circulation classification a profitable escape from the higher third-class minimum rates. The recent increase in third class furnished an even greater incentive for that diversion.

Publications formerly mailed as third class were able to shift to controlled circulation when they met the following major requirements:

1. Issued regularly, at least four times yearly.
2. Contained at least 25 percent nonadvertising.
3. Contained 24 or more pages.

Very frequently the 24-page requirement could be met, not by adding to content of publications, but simply by transforming format into more pages of smaller size.

As evidence of the major shifts that are taking place, apparently due to rate anomalies, the volume of controlled circulation pieces increased about 110 percent in 4 years, since 1962. Currently volume is close to 350 million pieces annually.

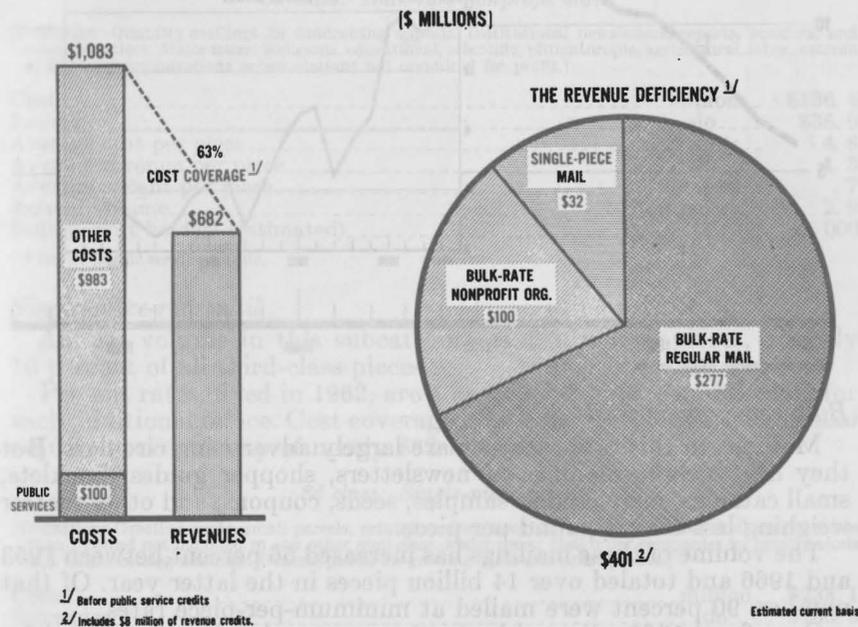

When evidence of these major shifts became apparent, the Department undertook a series of field surveys in order to get a clearer picture of where the volume increases were centered.

A study conducted by the Department in 1966 indicated there were 882 different publications identified with the controlled-circulation classification. Similar studies in earlier years indicated there were about 700 publications employing that mail service in 1964 and only 600 in 1961. Significantly, the increases in recent years occurred despite the demise of a very substantial number of publications that appeared in the first and second studies.

THIRD-CLASS MAIL

After giving full effect to the latest cost increases, the revenue deficiency in the third-class mail service is over $401 million. Cost coverage is 63 percent, before public service credits. Excluding mailings by authorized nonprofit organizations, cost coverage for "regular" third-class mail is 67 percent.

Third Class Mail

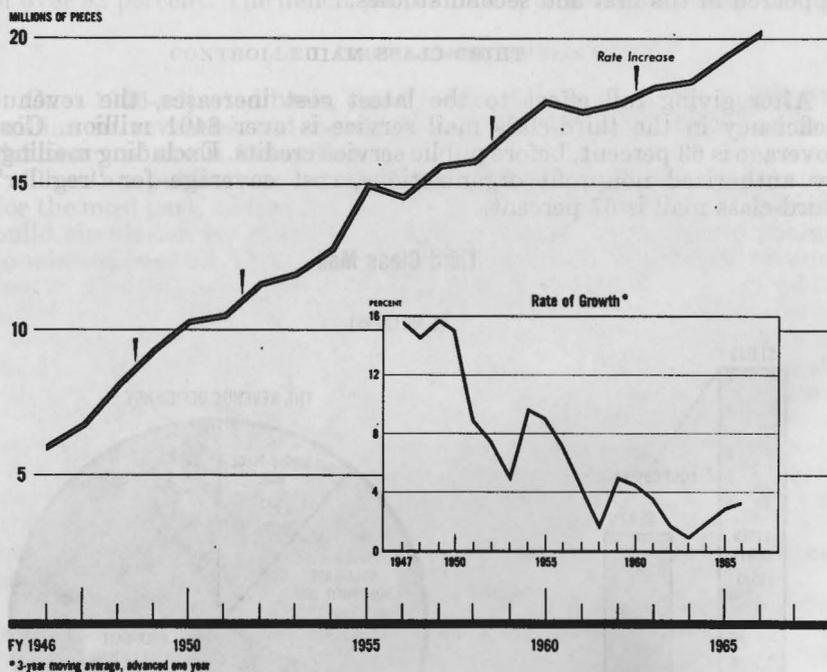

In 1958, cost coverage for third class was only 47 percent. But there has been a significant upward trend since then, aided by an increase from 1½ cents to 2½ cents in the minimum rate. Nevertheless, owing to volume increases, the current revenue deficiency for third-class mail is at a record high.

Third-class mail volume

Among the major classes of mail, volume growth in third class has led all others. For example, in the period from 1953 to 1966, third-class volume rose 69 percent, compared with a 42-percent increase for all other mails combined. As a result, third class now accounts for about 27 percent of total volume in contrast with nearly 24 percent in the earlier year. While growth has been steep, there has been a marked slowing of the uptrend in recent years.

THIRD CLASS MAIL VOLUME

Bulk-rate regular mail

Mailings in this rate category are largely advertising circulars. But they also include mailings of newsletters, shopper guides, booklets, small catalogs, merchandise samples, seeds, coupons, and other matter weighing less than 1 pound per piece.

The volume of these mailings has increased 56 percent between 1953 and 1966 and totaled over 14 billion pieces in the latter year. Of that number, 90 percent were mailed at minimum-per-piece rates.

On a fiscal 1966 adjusted basis, the revenue deficiency recorded for these mailings—at minimum-per-piece and bulk-pound rates is $277 million. Cost coverage is 61 percent.

Bulk-rate nonprofit mail

The revenue deficiency in this mail class, fully covered by public service allowances, is nearly $100 million annually, on a 1966 adjusted basis. Cost coverage is about 27 percent.

Eligible mailers number about 82,000 in eight different organizational categories. In 1966, these nonprofit organizations mailed about 2.9 billion pieces, largely at the minimum rate of 1¼ cents per piece, the same rate that has been in effect for such mailings since July 1, 1960. For heavier pieces, pound rates are half the rates for comparable mailings at regular bulk rates: 9 cents for circulars and merchandise, and 6 cents for books, catalogs, etc.

Third-class mailings by nonprofit organizations increased nearly 280 percent in the period from 1953 to 1966. In contrast, the volume of other bulk-rate third-class mail rose 56 percent. Mailings by these organizations now account for about 17 percent of all bulk-rate third-class mail compared with only 8 percent 13 years ago.

Single-piece-rate mail

Present rates, fixed in 1962, are 4 cents for 2 ounces and 2 cents for each additional ounce. Cost coverage is 86.2 percent, leaving an annual adjusted revenue gap of nearly $32 million.

FOURTH-CLASS MAIL

On a fiscal 1966 basis, adjusted for known changes in revenues and costs, fourth-class mail services operate with a deficiency of nearly $98 million.

Fourth-class special-rate mailings

The largest losses are incurred for handling special-rate materials, consisting mainly of books and recordings. The deficiency here is over $75 million on a 1966 adjusted basis, the entire amount chargeable to public service costs.

Although volume is still relatively small, it increased some 135 percent after 1958, under the combined impetus of changes in mail classification, growing membership in book and record clubs, the boom in college attendance, and low postage rates. In 1966 mailings at special rates totaled about 219 million pieces: 203 million at the general rate and 16 million at the library rate.

While most mailings are books and recordings, others include manuscripts, academic theses, printed music, periodicals, 16-millimeter films, filmstrips, transparencies, slides, microfilms, scientific kits and catalogs.

The special-rate category was first set up in 1938 by proclamation of the President. At that time it was strictly a "book rate." But nearly every rate bill since 1938 wedged additional items into that once-limited rate category. The biggest change took place in 1958 when recordings were added.

The size of the current revenue deficiency for special-rate parcels may be reason enough to increase their postage. Moreover, these special rates are being used in large measure to subsidize entertainment rather than education.

EXPLANATION OF TITLE I BY SECTIONS

TITLE I—POSTAL RATES

Section 101. First-class mail

Subsection (a) rewrites sections 4252 and 4253, title 39, United States Code.

Section 4252 provides a maximum size for first-class mail of 100 inches in length and girth combined and a maximum weight of 70 pounds. Existing law prescribes a weight limitation of 70 pounds, but does not provide any maximum limitation on the size. The committee recommends such maximum size and weight limitations to correspond with the maximum size and weight limitations now provided for domestic airmail and air parcel post pursuant to section 4305. This change is recommended because the postage rates for first-class mail weighing more than 13 ounces will be the rates prescribed for air parcel post.

Section 4253 provides a postal rate of 6 cents for each ounce or fraction of an ounce for first-class mail weighing 13 ounces or less and a rate of 5 cents for cards. First-class mail weighing over 13 ounces will have the rates of postage established for air parcel post pursuant to section 4303(d), and shall be entitled to the most expeditious handling and transportation practicable. Thus, the rate for first-class mail weighing 13 ounces at 6 cents per ounce would be 78 cents, and under the parcel post rates such mail weighing not over 16 ounces would be 80 cents. First-class mail weighing in excess of 1 pound would be subject to the same rate system established for air parcel post. The expeditious handling and transportation to be given first-class mail weighing more than 13 ounces normally is expected to be air transportation when such transportation will speed the delivery of the mail. This application reflects the priority mail principle and is a step toward the ultimate goal of establishing a single class of priority mail.

The special rate category for drop letters is eliminated. The postage rates on such matter will be 6 cents per ounce, the same as for other letters.

The rate of postage on business reply mail will continue to be the same as the regular rate plus an additional charge of 2 cents for each piece weighing 2 ounces or less, and 5 cents for each piece weighing more than 2 ounces. There are no changes in these additional charges.

Subsection (b) of section 101 rewrites subparagraphs (A) and (B) of section 4169(a)(1) of title 39, United States Code, relating to free mail for certain members of the U.S. Armed Forces and of friendly foreign nations for letters and sound-recorded communications having the character of personal correspondence.

The existing provisions of subparagraph (A) limit the free mailing privilege to servicemen in an overseas combat area as designated by the President.

Subparagraph (A), as amended by this bill, would extend the free mailing privilege to all servicemen when the letter or sound-recorded communication is mailed at an Armed Forces post office located outside the 48 contiguous States of the United States.

The existing provisions of subparagraph (B) authorize the free mailing privilege for servicemen hospitalized in a facility under the jurisdiction of the Armed Forces, but limit the application to servicemen who are hospitalized as a result of disease or injury incurred as a result of service in an overseas combat area as designated by the President.

Subparagraph (B), as amended by this bill, would extend the free mailing privilege to servicemen hospitalized as a result of disease or injury incurred while on active duty, without regard to where the disease or injury was incurred.

Subsection (c) of section 101 extends the free mailing privileges, in a manner similar to that provided by subsection (b) for a member of the armed forces of a friendly foreign nation serving with the U.S. Armed Forces.

Subsection (d) amends section 4251(a), to include within the definition of first-class mail "bills and statements of account."

Section 4451(b) of title 39, United States Code, now provides that bills and statements of account may be mailed at the lower third-class postage rate if produced by any photographic or mechanical process "other than typewriting," and if 20 or more identical copies are mailed at one time. This provision is repealed by section 107(b) of the bill.

For a number of years, bills and statements of account prepared by computers were considered as being produced by a typewriting process, and, therefore, required to be classified as first-class mail. In 1966, the question arose as to whether matter produced by electronic data processing equipment should be considered as being produced by a typewriting process, and it was concluded that computers produced matter by a mechanical process which more closely resembled printing and that such matter should be considered as having been produced by a mechanical process "other than typewriting." Consequently, as a result of the new interpretation, matter which for years had been classified as first-class mail, now, under existing law, can be mailed at the lower third-class rate. This amendment is intended to require that bills and statements of account, regardless of how produced, shall be mailed as first-class mail.

Concern has been expressed as to the effect the amendment made by section 101(d), requiring "bills and statements of account" to be mailed at first-class postage rates, will have on the provisions of 39 U.S.C. 4365(b), which authorizes publishers and news agents to enclose in their second-class publications "bills, receipts, and orders for subscriptions."

Such enclosures authorized by section 4365(b) are considered a part of the publication for postage purposes and currently are subject to second-class postage rates.

The amendment made by subsection (d) of the bill to section 4251(a) has no effect on such provisions of section 4365(b) insofar as those provisions relate to "orders for subscriptions."

A subscription renewal notice or an order for a subscription ordinarily informs the customer, not of charges incurred as a bill does, but of the expiration of his old subscription and the cost of renewal if the customer should elect to continue the subscription. Such a renewal notice or an order for a subscription is not a bill or statement of account within the meaning of this amendment.

While this amendment by itself has no effect on the postage to be paid for a bill or a receipt enclosed with a second-class publication, section 4656 of title 39, United States Code, as added by section 115 of this bill, will require first-class postage to be paid on a bill or a receipt mailed with a second-class publication.

Also a question has been raised whether the words "bills and statements of account" would be interpreted as including invoices.

Pursuant to section 4555 of title 39, United States Code and predecessor provisions of law authorizing the enclosure in fourth class mail of a description of the article mailed (which also applies to third class under section 4453), the Department has, at least since the 1913 edition of the Postal Laws and Regulations, authorized invoices to be enclosed.

The amendment makes no change with respect to the enclosure of invoices.

Subsection (e) repeals subsection (d) of section 4251, which contains the definition of drop letters, in order to conform with the amendment in subsection (a) which removes the special rate category for drop letters.

Subsection (f) makes the necessary technical adjustments in the table of contents of chapter 59, to conform with the changes made by the other provisions of this section.

Section 102. Airmail

Subsection (a) of section 102 of the bill rewrites subsections (a) and (b) of section 4303 of title 39, United States Code. The new subsection (a) prescribes a rate of postage on domestic airmail weighing not more than 7 ounces of 10 cents for each ounce or fraction thereof. This change represents an increase in the rate from 8 to 10 cents, and a reduction from 8 to 7 ounces. The reduction to 7 ounces is necessitated by the new 10-cent rate in order to keep the total rate for 7 ounces (70 cents) below the lowest air parcel post rate of 80 cents.

Subsection (d) amends the definition of air parcel post contained in section 4301(2) to change the "eight" to "seven" ounces to conform with the adjustment indicated above.

The existing provisions of subsection (b) of section 4303, prescribing the rate of postage on postal cards and post cards sent as domestic airmail, are amended to increase the rate for cards from 6 to 8 cents.

Subsection (b) of section 102 of the bill amends subsection (d) of section 4303, relating, in part, to the rates of postage on air parcel post. Three changes are made in air parcel post postage rates.

The first is the establishment of one-half pound postage increments between 1 and 5 pounds, which will result in the reduction of postage on some parcels.

The second is to provide a single rate of 80 cents for all zones for matter weighing not over 1 pound. Otherwise, the air parcel post rates remain unchanged.

The third change is the elimination of paragraph (2) of subsection (d), which requires that first-class mail sent as air parcel post pay postage not less than 8 cents an ounce for the first 8 ounces, and 5 cents for each ounce in excess of 8 ounces. This requirement is no longer appropriate as the rates for first-class mail over 13 ounces and for air parcel post are the same.

Paragraph (3) of section 102(b) strikes out subparagraphs (A), (B), and (C) of section 4303(d)(5) of title 39, United States Code, relating to airlift for servicemen overseas of certain categories of mail, and inserts new subparagraphs (A) and (B) with two substantive changes.

Subparagraph (B) of section 4303(d)(5) currently authorizes an airlift for second-class news publications only when addressed to a serviceman in an overseas combat area as designated by the President. The first amendment adds the second-class news publications to the category of mail covered by subparagraph (A), which authorizes airlift to all servicemen outside the 48 contiguous States of the United States.

The second amendment adds surface-type official mail to the category of mail entitled to airlift when mailed at or addressed to any Armed Forces post office where adequate surface transportation is not available. This category of airlift was included in subparagraph (C) of section 4303(d)(5), but the designation of the paragraph is changed to subparagraph (B) under the amendment.

Subsection (c) of section 102 makes technical amendments in section 4303(f) of title 39, United States Code, to conform with the new section 4170 added to title 39, United States Code, by section 116 of the bill.

Sections 103 and 104. Second-class mail, effective January 7, 1968

Sections 103 and 104 rewrite sections 4358, relating to within county rates for second-class publications, and 4359, relating to outside county rates, of title 39, United States Code, to place all the preferred rate categories under section 4358, and the regular rate categories under section 4359.

Section 4358, rates of postage; preferred

This section is amended to provide rates of postage for the following publications.

1. Within county publications, subsection (a).—The pound rate is increased in three steps, to take effect in 1968, 1969, and 1970. The minimum charge per piece is increased from 0.125 to 0.2 cent per piece.

Subsection (i) of section 4358 will apply the within county rates to each publication, if otherwise entitled to within county rates, having original entry at an independent incorporated city, an incorporated city which is situated entirely within a county, or which is situated contiguous to one of more counties in the same State but which is politically independent of such county or counties. The rates will apply to the county with which the independent city is principally contiguous.

2. Nonprofit publications, subsection (d).—At present, a flat rate of 1.8 cents per pound, subject to a minimum charge of 0.125 cent per piece, is charged for this category of mail. The bill increases the minimum charge per piece of 0.125 cent to 0.2 cent and provides a three-step increase (1968—1.9 cents, 1969—2.0 cents, 1970—2.1 cents) in the rate of 1.8 cents per pound for the nonadvertising portion of the nonprofit publication. Six-phase zone-based rates (1968–73) are prescribed for the advertising portions of such publications.

3. Classroom publications, subsection (e).—The postage on classroom publications will continue to be 60 percent of the pound rates and of the minimum charge per piece for regular outside county publications prescribed by section 4359(b).

4. Agricultural publications, subsection (f).—The rate of 4.2 cents per pound now prescribed on the advertising portion of publications mailed for delivery in zones 1 and 2 outside the county of publication is continued for publications devoted to promoting the science of agriculture when mailed for delivery in zones 1 or 2. The special rate will apply only to such publications when the total number of copies furnished during any 12-month period to subscribers in rural areas consists of at least 70 percent of the total number of copies distributed.

5. Publications mailed in quantities of fewer than 5,000, subsection (g).—The regular rate publications mailed in quantities of fewer than 5,000 copies for delivery outside the county of publication will continue to be subject to a lower minimum charge per piece, which is increased in three steps from 0.5 cent to 0.6, 0.7, and 0.8 cent. However, the existing provisions which prescribed a preferred rate for publications having 5 percent or less advertising are eliminated.

Subsections (h) and (j) of section 4358 contain conforming amendments to include within section 4358, provisions relating to classroom publications, publications of nonprofit organizations, and the definition of the term "zones," which are now contained in section 4359.

Subsection (b) of section 103 makes conforming changes in the table of contents of chapter 63, title 39, United States Code.

Section 4359, rates of postage; regular

No change is made in the provisions of subsection (a) of section 4359, describing the conditions that must be met before copies of a publication are entitled to second-class postage rates.

Subsection (b) of section 4359 provides a three-phase increase (1968, 1969, and 1970) in the pound rates and the minimum charge per piece for regular rate publications mailed in accordance with subsection (a), and not subject to a preferred rate prescribed by section 4358.

The existing provisions of subsection (b)(2) of section 4359, relating to classroom publications, subsection (b)(3), relating to nonprofit publications, and subsection (b)(4), relating to publications mailing fewer than 5,000 copies per issue, have been included in section 4358.

Subsection (c) of section 4359, relating to the portion of a publication devoted to advertisements for purposes of determining that portion of the publication subject to the advertising rate of postage, is amended so as to apply the provisions of such subsection (c) to publications covered by both sections 4358 and 4359, and to exclude from such portion the advertisements subject to the new section 4656 added by section 115 of the bill. The new section 4656 requires advertising supplements, mailed with publications entered as second-class mail, to pay the appropriate postage rate had such supplements been mailed other than with the publication.

Subsection (d) of section 4359 authorizes publications to be transported by air on a space-available basis upon the request of the publisher or news agent and upon payment of the regular postage plus an additional charge to be fixed by the Postmaster General. The additional charge may not be adjusted more frequently than once every 2 years and when prescribed or adjusted, shall equal as nearly as practicable the amount by which the allocated cost incurred by the Department for the delivery of such publications by air is in excess of the allocated cost the Department would have incurred had such publications been delivered by surface transportation.

The transportation of publications by air, pursuant to this section, will be permitted only when such transportation does not impede the transportation of airmail, air parcel post, or first-class mail.

The existing provisions of subsections (d) and (e)(1) and (2) of section 4359, relating to proof of qualifications and definitions of classroom publications and of a nonprofit publication, have been included in section 4358.

Subsection (e) of section 4359 updates and continues the definition of the term "zones" which was contained in the existing provisions of section 4359(e)(3).

Paragraph (2) of section 104(a) and section 104(b) of the bill make the necessary technical adjustments in the heading of section 4359, and in the table of contents of chapter 63, respectively.

Subsection (c) of section 104 amends section 4369(a)(4) to remove "trade publications serving the performing arts" from the exemption to the requirement that owners of publications having second-class mailing privileges furnish to the Postmaster General and publish in their publication certain information such as the number of copies distributed.

Section 105. Second-class transient mail

This section amends section 4362 of title 39, United States Code, to increase the rates for transient mail from 4 cents to 5 cents for the first 2 ounces. No increase is made in the 1-cent rate for each additional ounce or fraction thereof.

Section 106. Controlled circulation publications

This section amends section 4422 of title 39, United States Code, to provide a three-phase increase in both the rate per pound and the minimum charge per piece for controlled circulations during 1968, 1969, and 1970.

Section 107. Third-class mail

Subsection (a) of section 107 of the bill rewrites subsections (a) and (b) of section 4452 of title 39, United States Code, prescribing postage rates for third-class mail.

Individual piece and bulk rate, subsection (a)

The individual piece rate is increased from 4 cents to 6 cents for the first 2 ounces, and the 2-cent rate for each additional ounce is continued without change. The bulk rates per pound and the bulk minimum charge per piece are continued at the existing rates until January 7, 1968, and then are increased.

Minimum rates

Subsection (b) of section 4452 requires all bulk third-class mail to be subject to the applicable minimum charge per piece, as prescribed in the various provisions of section 4452. Also, a minimum charge per piece of 1.3 cents is prescribed for such matter mailed on and after January 7, 1968, by (1) qualified nonprofit organizations which are organized for charitable, religious, or general health purposes, and are engaged predominantly in the accomplishment of such purposes, or (2) when such matter mailed by a qualified nonprofit organization consists wholly of solicitations of funds to be used for charitable, religious, or general health purposes.

Bills and statements of account, subsection (b) of section 107 of the bill

Subsection (b) repeals section 4451(b) of title 39, United States Code, to conform with an amendment made by section 101(d) of the bill to section 4251(a), relating to the requirement that bills and statements of account be mailed as first-class mail.

Section 108. Special rate fourth-class mail

This section amends section 4554 of title 39, United States Code, in several major respects.

The section heading of section 4554 and the corresponding table of contents are amended by subsections (b) and (c) of section 108 to remove the implication that all items entitled to the preferred rates prescribed by this section consist of educational material. While the provisions of this section originally included only educational items, there now are included in the section many items which have doubtful, if any, educational value. For example, the preferred rates apply to all "books" and to all "sound recordings."

The general rate under subsection (a) of section 4554 is increased from 10 cents for the first pound to 16 cents for the first 2 pounds or fraction thereof, and from 5 cents to 6 cents for each additional pound or fraction thereof. The lower rates under subsection (b) for certain mailings between libraries, schools, and certain nonprofit organizations are increased from 4 cents for the first pound to 8 cents for the first 2 pounds, and from 1 cent to 3 cents for each additional pound.

Subsection (a)(1) of section 4554 is amended to clarify the provisions so that they will not be interpreted to deny the special fourth-class rates to book supplements; such as, for example, single volumes belonging to multivolume sets, or law or medical books issued serially. Public Law 89-593 redefined the definition of books so as to extend the special rates to complete looseleaf books, excluding replacement pages thereafter mailed. The language included in the amendment could be interpreted to exclude book supplements such as those described above, which was not intended by the Congress. This amendment simply clarifies the existing state of the law since book supplements are, and have been, entitled to the special fourth-class postage rates.

Subsection (a)(2) is amended to include films narrower than 16-millimeter films within the items that are entitled to the preferred rates under section 4554.

Subsection (c) of section 4554 is amended to include films narrower than 16 millimeters.

A new subsection (e) is added to section 4554, authorizing the Postmaster General to prescribe the manner of preparation for mailing items at the preferred rates when items are mailed in quantities of 1,000 or more.

Section 109. Keys and other small articles

This section amends section 4651(b) of title 39, United States Code, to increase the rate for keys and other small articles from 6 cents for each 2 ounces or fraction thereof, to 14 cents for the first 2 ounces or fraction thereof, and 7 cents for each additional 2 ounces or fraction thereof.

Section 110. Special handling service

This section amends section 6008 of title 39, United States Code.

The existing provisions of section 6008 are amended to include third-class mail (limited in weight to less than 16 ounces) within the authority of the provisions entitling fourth-class mail (minimum weight limit of 16 ounces) to the most expeditious handling and transportation practicable. Such special service is available only upon payment of a special handling fee, which is authorized to be fixed by the Postmaster General. The amendment adds a further provision to make it clear that such special handling does not require handling and transportation as airmail.

Section 111. Separation by mailer of second-class mail

This section rewrites section 4363 of title 39, United States Code, to require publishers and news agents to mail second-class matter in the manner directed by the Postmaster General.

This section eliminates the words "to zones" from the present law on sorting and separating of second-class mail.

The Postmaster General has not required zone separation for many years. Instead, city and State separation was required. More recently the requirement is to separate by ZIP codes.

Section 112. Printing on second-class covers

This section adds a new subsection (d) to section 4365 of title 39, United States Code, relating to permissible marks and enclosures on or in second-class mail matter.

Under subsection (d), there may be included, in accordance with uniform regulations which the Postmaster General shall prescribe, on the envelopes, wrappers, and other covers in which copies of publications are mailed, messages and notices of a civic or public-service nature, if no charge is made for the inclusion of such messages and notices on such envelopes, wrappers, and covers.

Many publications issuing a special edition in honor of a centennial or anniversary celebration of a community, have printed matter on the envelopes or covers, identifying the centennial or anniversary, which makes the publication nonmailable at second-class rates under the existing provisions of law. The Department has found that enforcement of the provisions presents an unnecessary administrative burden. There are no restrictions of this kind applicable to other classes of mail.

The amendment made by this section will remove the administrative burden and permit certain writing or printing as indicated above to be included on the outside wrappers or envelopes in which copies of second-class publications are mailed.

Section 113. Additional entry points

This section adds a new subsection (k) to section 4358 of title 39, United States Code, as amended by this bill. Under this amendment, special local rates for mailings at additional entry points would be eliminated. Under present law, publications issued more often than once a week pay a flat rate of 1 cent per copy for local delivery by city carriers from the post office where they are entered for mailing. Publications issued less often than once a week pay 1 cent per copy if they weigh 2 ounces or less, and a flat 2 cents if they weigh more for local delivery by city carriers from the office of mailing. These special local delivery rates apply at every post office where the publication is entered for mailing, even at post offices outside the actual county of publication. Mailings at post offices outside the county of publication are called additional entry points. A number of mass-circulation magazines have taken advantage of this rate by shipping their publications to major cities outside the county of publication, entering the publication for mailing in these cities, and receiving the special reduced local delivery rate. The Department has just completed a survey of mailing patterns of 20 major nonweekly magazines which employ additional entry points and are now subject to the special 1- and 2-cent-per-copy rates at such points. The results indicate a loss of $1 million a year in postal revenue, representing the difference between the postage and the 1-cent and 2-cent-per-copy rates for the local deliveries at the additional entry points and the postage that would have to be paid if the publications were charged the regular zone rates. The bill would eliminate the per-copy rates for publications mailed at additional points of entry. The per-copy rates would continue to apply to local delivery from the post office of original entry in the county of publication.

This amendment does not affect the practice of using additional entry points upon payment of the appropriate zone rate but does eliminate the use of the within-county rates or the per copy rates at the additional entry points.

Section 114. Matter for the blind and other handicapped persons

This section strikes out sections 4653 and 4654 of title 39, United States Code, and adds new sections 4653, 4654, and 4655. Also, existing section 4451(d) of title 39 is repealed. This section relates to the mailing as third-class mail of unsealed letters written in point print or raised characters, or sound reproduction records.

The new section 4653 would extend the free mailing privileges currently provided only for matter mailed to the blind, to include other persons who cannot use or read conventionally printed material because of a physical impairment. The Library of Congress has for over 35 years administered the national books for the blind program. Public Law 89-522, July 30, 1966, authorized the Library of Congress to provide books and other reading materials to those persons who, because of physical handicaps, cannot read or hold ordinary printed materials. The amendment made by this section will include such persons within the benefits of the free mailing privilege.

The free postage is available when the matter mailed has no charge, or rental, subscription, or other fee, or the fee required is not in excess of the cost thereof. The matter may be opened by the Postmaster General for inspection, it must contain no advertising, and is subject to size and weight limitations prescribed by the Postmaster General. The free mailing privilege is extended to reading matter and musical scores; sound reproductions; paper, records, tapes, and other material for the production of reading matter, musical scores, or sound reproductions; reproducers, or parts thereof, for sound reproductions; and braille writers, typewriters, educational or other materials or devices, or parts thereof, used for writing by, or specifically designed or adapted for use of, a blind person or a person having a physical impairment within the meaning of this section.

The new section 4654 would restate the present provisions of section 4451(d), which is repealed, under which unsealed letters written in raised characters or sightsaving type, or in the form of sound recordings, may be mailed free of postage by a blind person or a person having a physical impairment, as described in section 4653(a)(1).

The new section 4655 would include in the law a new requirement that all matter mailed free under sections 4653 and 4654 be appropriately marked "Free Matter for the Blind or Handicapped" or with a similar phrase prescribed by the Postmaster General.

Section 115. Enclosures mailed with second-class publications

This section adds a new section 4656 to title 39, United States Code, to require certain matter mailed with second-class mail to be charged postage at first-, third-, or fourth-class rates, as appropriate, had such matter been mailed other than with the publication. The applicable higher rates will apply to bills or receipts mailed with second-class publications, either loose or bound in the publication, or loose in the same envelope, wrapper, or other cover in which the publication is mailed. The higher rate also will apply to advertising supplements mailed with such publications.

Under existing regulations, an advertising supplement may be mailed with a second-class publication subject to certain conditions (Postal Manual 132.44). The supplement must be germane to the issue and prepared in order to complete the issue. It must bear the title of the publication, preceded by the words "Supplement to".

The regulations provide that "publications" which are distinct from and independent of the regular issue, such as catalogs, circulars, handbills, posters, and other "special" advertisements, are not germane to the issue and may not be inserted as supplements to publications sent as second-class mail. Also, under the regulations, publishers must be paid advertising rates and charges for carrying preprinted advertising supplements germane to the issue with which they are mailed.

During the course of the hearings, the committee received many exhibits of advertising supplements which were mailed with publications. In the opinion of the committee, it is doubtful whether some of these advertising supplements qualified under the regulations.

Some did not have the imprint, "Supplement to", others appeared to be independent "publications," circulars, catalogs, or not germane to the issue.

This amendment is intended to strengthen the position of the Post Office Department in this matter by excluding all advertising supplements from being mailed at the low second-class rate category, and requiring the regular rates even though mailed with second-class publications. It is expected that new, more meaningful regulations, be issued by the Department defining "advertising supplements."

Under this amendment the advertising supplements, as properly defined by the Department, which are mailed with a second-class publication will be required to pay postage at first-, third-, or fourth-class rates, as appropriate, had such supplements been mailed other than with the publication.

Section 116. Mailing privileges of Armed Forces in the Canal Zone

This section adds a new section 4170 to title 39, United States Code, to clarify the application of the mailing privileges for members of the U.S. Armed Forces and of friendly foreign nations, to the servicemen stationed in the Canal Zone. The Canal Zone currently does not have any Armed Forces post offices, but operates an independent postal service under the jurisdiction of the Canal Zone Government (2 Canal Zone Code 1132, 76A Stat. 39).

Subsection (a) of section 4170 of title 39, United States Code, as added by this bill, will extend the mailing privileges prescribed by sections 4169(a), 4303(d)(5), and 4560 of title 39, as amended by this legislation, to servicemen stationed in the Canal Zone.

Subsection (b) of section 4170 authorizes the Department of Defense to reimburse the postal service of the Canal Zone for the equivalent amount of postage due, and sums equal to the expenses incurred by, the postal service of the Canal Zone, for matter sent in the mails, and in providing air transportation of mail, as required by such section 4170.

Subsection (b) of section 116 makes technical amendments in the table of contents to chapter 57 of title 39, United States Code, to conform to the new section 4170 added by subsection (a) of this section.

Section 117. Air transportation of parcels to or from Armed Forces post offices

This section adds a new section 4560 to title 39, United States Code, to create a new category of airlift mail consisting of parcels weighing not in excess of 30 pounds, and measuring not in excess of 60 inches in length and girth combined, other than parcels mailed airmail or air parcel post.

This new authority will apply for parcels mailed at or addressed to any Armed Forces post office, whether such post office is established within the United States or overseas, upon payment by the sender of the regular surface parcel post zone rate of postage, plus a special fee to be fixed by the Postmaster General for the domestic transportation by air. The committee intends that the fee be uniform for all packages without regard to weight or domestic distance to be transported. The preliminary indications are that the fee probably could be fixed in the neighborhood of $1 per package.

The new airlift is authorized for transportation between the point of mailing and the point of delivery and will include airlift within the United States, whereas airlift for parcels not in excess of 5 pounds under existing law (39 U.S.C. 4303(d)(5)) applies only between the point of embarkation and the point to or from which the parcel is mailed overseas. The new authority adds an additional airlift category and is not intended to deprive a mailer of the option to ship a parcel weighing not in excess of 5 pounds at the regular surface parcel post zone rates, and obtain airlift only between the embarkation point and the Armed Forces post office overseas, or the option to ship a parcel at the premium airmail or air parcel post rates with the resulting preferred airmail service.

This section includes the requirement that the mail will be transported by air on a space-available basis on scheduled U.S. air carriers at rates fixed and determined by the Civil Aeronautics Board.

Also, authority is included so that whenever adequate service by scheduled U.S. air carriers is not available to provide transportation of mail by air, the transportation of mail pursuant to this section may be authorized by airlift on other than scheduled U.S. air carriers.

Section 118. Solicitations in the guise of bills or statements of account

This section adds a new subsection to section 4001 of title 39, United States Code, relating to nonmailable matter, to declare as nonmailable, solicitations for orders or services prepared in a form to mislead the addressee into believing that the solicitation actually is a bill for goods or services previously rendered.

The section provides that a solicitation for the order by the addressee of the goods or services is nonmailable matter and shall not be carried or delivered by the mail when it is in the form of, and reasonably could be interpreted or construed as, a bill, invoice, or statement of account due, unless such matter bears on its face, in conspicuous and legible type, a notice that the matter actually is a solicitation for the order of goods and is not a bill, invoice, or statement of account due. The actual form of the notice to be imprinted on the solicitation may be as prescribed by regulations of the Postmaster General, or in the specific form set forth in the amendment. The section provides that this new provision shall be effective with respect to matter mailed on or after the 90th day following the effective date of the section.

Section 119 prescribes effective dates for the various sections.

AGENCY RECOMMENDATIONS

This legislation is based on the official recommendations of the President relating to "Postal Rates and Services" included in his message to the Congress entitled "Civilian and Military Pay Raises," House Document No. 95, 90th Congress. The legislative proposal was transmitted by the Postmaster General by letter dated April 5, 1967, which is set forth below. The proposal was introduced as H.R. 7977, and an explanation of the proposal is included in House Document No. 106, 90th Congress, entitled "Survey of Postal Rates."

The provisions of several bills pending before the committee relating to postal rates have been included in the reported bill. The agency reports on such provisions are as follows:

1. Reports on H.R. 4224, relating to mailing privileges for U.S. Armed Forces, which was superseded by H.R. 10226, and included in sections 101(b), 101(c), 116, and 117 of the reported bill.

2. Reports on H.R. 7192, relating to postage on matter for the blind and other handicapped persons, included in section 114 of the reported bill.

3. Two reports on provisions relating to bills and statements of account, included in sections 101(d) and 107(b) of the reported bill.

4. Report on H.R. 2071, relating to the book rate on book supplements, included in section 108 of the reported bill.

5. Report on H.R. 8951, relating to printing on envelopes, wrappers, or other covers in which second-class publications are mailed, included in section 112 of the reported bill.

THE POSTMASTER GENERAL,
Washington, D.C., April 5, 1967.

HON. JOHN W. MCCORMACK,
Speaker of the House of Representatives,
Washington, D.C.

DEAR MR. SPEAKER: There is transmitted herewith a draft of a proposed bill to adjust certain postal rates and for other purposes. The proposed bill, if enacted, would carry out the recommendations the President has made to the Congress with respect to postal rates in his message on postal rates and pay. (H. Doc. No. 95, 90th Cong.)

I urge early enactment of this legislation by the Congress.

Sincerely yours,

LAWRENCE F. O'BRIEN.

The reports from the Bureau of the Budget on H.R. 4224 and the Post Office Department on H.R. 4224 and related bills are set forth below. The recommendations of the committee are included in the reported bill in sections 101(b), 101(c), 116, and 117. The Department of Defense witnesses testified at the public hearings in support of the position of the Bureau of the Budget, which is to the effect that action on this legislation should be delayed on the basis that the special mailing privileges granted by this legislation are a form of personnel benefits and, as such, any adjustments therein should be considered in the context of the results of the comprehensive review of pay, allowances, and fringe benefits now underway. The committee cannot agree with this contention.

EXECUTIVE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT,
BUREAU OF THE BUDGET,
Washington, D.C., May 3, 1967.

HON. THADDEUS J. DULSKI,
Chairman, Committee on Post Office and Civil Service House of Representatives, Washington, D.C.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: This is in response to your request for the views of the Bureau of the Budget on H.R. 4224, a bill to amend title 39, United States Code, to provide additional free letter mail and air transportation mailing privileges for certain members of the U.S. Armed Forces, and for other purposes.

The testimony before your committee, the Department of Defense notes that H.R. 4224 would provide servicemen stationed in designated combat areas with little that they do not already enjoy with respect to mail privileges. Further, that testimony notes that to extend to servicemen not in combat zones special mail privileges originally granted in recognition of the unique needs of servicemen in such zones is to detract from the significance of those special privileges. Moreover, the Department questions the need and justification for extending special mail privileges to those not in combat zones, such as H.R. 4224 would provide. Finally, Defense states that special mailing privileges are a form of personnel benefits and, as such, any adjustments should be considered in the context of the results of the comprehensive review of pay, allowances, and fringe benefits now underway.

The Bureau of the Budget concurs in the views of the Department of Defense and, therefore, strongly recommends against favorable consideration of H.R. 4224, the enactment of which would be inconsistent with the administration's objectives.

Sincerely yours,
 WILFRED H. ROMMEL,
Assistant Director for Legislative Reference.

THE POSTMASTER GENERAL,
 Washington, D.C., April 25, 1967.

HON. THADDEUS J. DULSKI,
Chairman, Committee on Post Office and Civil Service, House of Representatives, Washington, D.C.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: This is in reply to your request for a report on H.R. 4224, providing additional free letter mail and air transportation mailing privileges for certain members of the U.S. Armed Forces, and for other purposes. This will also serve as a report on H.R. 4771, identical legislation.

Section 1 of this legislation extends free mailing privileges for letters, cards, and voice records or tapes to members of the Armed Forces stationed outside the 48 contiguous States. Presently, only troops in designated combat zones are entitled to the privilege. In addition, section 1 grants the privilege to servicemen hospitalized in a facility under the jurisdiction of the Armed Forces as a result of disease or injury incurred while on active duty. Existing law in this regard grants the privilege only to servicemen hospitalized as the result of disease or injury incurred in a designated combat area. Section 1 also extends the privilege in similar fashion to members of an armed force of a friendly foreign nation serving under U.S. commands (39 U.S.C. 4169(a)(2)).

Basically, extension of free mailing privileges as proposed is a matter falling within areas of responsibility which pertain to the Department of Defense. We would defer to the judgment of that Department as to whether all overseas troops should have free mailing privileges at this time. Should the privilege be so expanded, the Post Office Department would receive appropriate postage reimbursement from the Defense Department, by virtue of section 4169(b) of title 39, United States Code.

Section 2 of the bills establishes a new category of airlift mail. It provides that a surface parcel not over 30 pounds in weight, and 60 inches in combined length and girth, which is mailed at or addressed to any Armed Forces post office shall be transported by air, on a space-available basis, upon payment of the regular postage plus a special fee to be prescribed by the Postmaster General.

Under present law (39 U.S.C. 4303(d)(5)), parcels up to 5 pounds in weight, and 60 inches in combined length and girth, are accorded airlift service between points of embarkation or debarkation and Armed Forces post offices overseas, upon payment of regular surface postage.

Section 2, it is noted, does not contain any criteria or guidelines for the special fee to be prescribed by the Postmaster General. In this connection a single, flat fee to be charged an eligible parcel, regardless of considerations of weight or distance involved, would not be equitable.

The enactment of section 2 would result in encouraging and increasing the flow of packages to members of the Armed Forces. This involves questions of logistics and troop morale, considerations which relate to responsibilities of the Department of Defense. We suggest, therefore, that the merits of section 2 can best be determined by that Department. If it is favorably considered, however, we believe it should contain provision for reimbursement to this Department from the Defense Department of the additional unrecovered air transportation cost that would result from its adoption.

Section 3 extends the present airlift service for second-class news publications so as to include all overseas Armed Forces post offices. Currently, this aspect of the airlift law is confined to designated combat areas. The Department would defer to the Defense Department on this feature of the bill.

The Bureau of the Budget has advised that from the standpoint of the administration's program there is no objection to the submission of this report to the committee.

Sincerely yours,

LAWRENCE F. O'BRIEN.

THE POSTMASTER GENERAL,
 Washington, D.C., August 16, 1966.

HON. THADDEUS J. DULSKI,
*Chairman, Committee on Post Office and Civil Service,
 House of Representatives,

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: This is in response to your request for a report on H.R. 7192, relating to rates of postage on matter for blind and other handicapped persons.

The bill would strike sections 4653 and 4654 of title 39, United States Code, which relate to certain mailing privileges for the blind, and substitute in lieu thereof new sections 4653, 4654, and 4655. The bill would also repeal section 4451(d) of title 39, which likewise relates to these mailing privileges.

New section 4653 would restate the present provisions of sections 4653 and 4654, making the following substantive changes therein: (1) Matter now mailable at reduced rates under section 4653(b) would be postage free; (2) regardless of the identity of the mailer or addressee, qualified matter for the use of a qualified person would be postage free; (3) typewriters and other materials and devices designed or adapted for use by the blind would be postage free, subject to size and weight limitations prescribed by the Postmaster General; (4) advertising matter for the blind could be postage free, although it is now categorically excluded from any matter mailed postage free under sections 4653 and 4654; (5) the requirement that publishing houses and other institutions using the free mailing privileges not be conducted for profit would be deleted; (6) the restrictions on the ownership of matter now mailable under section 4654 would be deleted; and (7) the class of persons entitled to the free mailing privileges of sections 4653 through 4655 would be expanded to include "persons who cannot use or read conventionally printed material because of a physical impairment."

New section 4654 would restate the present provisions of section 4451(d), under which unsealed letters written in point print or raised characters, or on sound reproduction records, used by the blind are defined as third-class mail, and make such letters postage free.

New section 4655 would include in the law a new requirement that all matter mailed free under sections 4653 and 4654 be marked "Free Matter for the Blind or Handicapped," or a similar phrase prescribed by the Postmaster General.

The Department has long supported the principle of free mailing privileges for the blind. We, furthermore, generally endorse the liberalization of these privileges as proposed by this bill. For the reasons hereinafter set forth, however, we believe three changes in the bill are desirable.

First, we understand that the proposed extension of free mailing privileges to matter which "is for the use of the blind or other persons who cannot use or read conventionally printed material because of a physical impairment" is intended to (1) enable blind or other qualified handicapped persons to mail special form matter to other qualified persons and (2) extend the free mailing privilege to materials for the use of those other handicapped persons who are covered into the Library of Congress books-for-the-blind program by Public Law 89-522 (2 U.S.C. 135a, 135b). With regard to (1), it may be noted that the coverage of the bill is much broader than the understood purpose. Accordingly, it is suggested that the class of mailers or addressees be stated as "for the use of and mailed by, or mailed for, or addressed to * * *" With regard to (2), Public Law 89-522 describes these handicapped persons as "other physically handicapped readers certified by a competent authority as unable to read normally printed matter as a result of physical limitations, under regulations prescribed by the Librarian of Congress for this service." We believe this certification procedure is a prudent and adequate protective measure, designed to prevent use of the program by persons not intended by Congress to benefit therefrom. Furthermore, we suggest that similar protective measures are needed to prevent abuse of the free mailing privilege. Accordingly, we suggest that this provision of the bill be amended to incorporate, either by reference or independently, the certification procedure required in Public Law 89-522.

Second, we believe that the proposed change under which advertising matter could be mailed postage free is unwarranted, unnecessary, and a potential source of considerable loss to the postal revenues. Accordingly, we strongly urge that the bill be amended to restore the present provisions of law relating to advertising matter.

In conclusion, it should be noted that the expanded free mailing privileges proposed by this bill will result in lost postal revenues. At present we cannot accurately estimate these losses. The Department believes, however, that the program should be funded in conjunction with other similar programs. Accordingly, it is suggested that a provision similar to that relating to reimbursement to the Post Office Department by the Department of Defense of expenses incurred in connection with soldier mail, set forth in section 4169 of title 39, United States Code, be included in the bill. The Congress can best determine whether the funding agency should be the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare or Library of Congress, both of which have substantial programs for the assistance of the blind and other handicapped.

The Bureau of the Budget has advised that there is no objection to the submission of this report to the committee from the standpoint of the administration's program.

Sincerely yours,

LAWRENCE F. O'BRIEN.

THE LIBRARIAN OF CONGRESS,
Washington, D.C., June 6, 1967.

HON. THADDEUS J. DULSKI,
Committee on Post Office and Civil Service,
House of Representatives, Washington, D.C.

DEAR MR. DULSKI: This is in reply to your recent letter asking for the comments of the Library of Congress on H.R. 7192 and H.R. 7153.

As you know, the Library of Congress has, for over 35 years, administered the national books for the blind program. During the last session of Congress, Public Law 89-522 amended the act to provide that books and other reading materials furnished for the blind should also be made available to those persons who, because of physical handicaps, cannot read or hold ordinary printed materials.

Under provision of law (39 U.S.C. 4653-4654) reading materials for the blind, including books in braille and talking books, and the machines on which to play the talking books have been exempt from postage fees. As a result blind residents of the United States have been able to receive free library service comparable to the library service provided to sighted persons.

Heretofore, persons with physical handicaps other than blindness who could not read or manipulate a book have not been able to participate in any library program because specialized reading materials such as talking books have not been available to them. It would, in my opinion, be unfortunate if they could not participate in this expanded library program because they were unable to pay the cost of postage. Library service in the United States has traditionally been a free service and these individuals would be penalized because their physical infirmities prevent them from being able to go to the library to obtain reading materials. For the most part, the only way they can receive books is via the United States mail.

In addition, the administration of the Library's books for the blind and physically handicapped has been complicated by the fact that blind readers can receive reading material and talking book machines free of postage and the handicapped readers cannot. At present, over 100,000 blind readers and 25,000 handicapped readers are enrolled in the program. It is estimated that approximately 20,000 more handicapped readers will enroll in the program during fiscal year 1968. Congress has been generous in its support of this very worthwhile program and I believe it has taken special pride in the achievements made since the program was inaugurated in 1930. The enactment by Congress of the legislation before your committee would insure the success of the expanded program to provide reading materials to other physically handicapped persons. The extension of the postage-free provision to this segment of the population would constitute a national investment in the rehabilitation of physically handicapped individuals.

Sincerely yours,

L. QUINCY MUMFORD,
Librarian of Congress.

THE POSTMASTER GENERAL,
Washington, D.C., July 5, 1967.

HON. THADDEUS J. DULSKI,
Chairman, Committee on Post Office and Civil Service, House of Representatives, Washington, D.C.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: This is in reply to your request for the views of this Department on S. 1693, a bill to provide that bills and statements of account prepared by electronic data processing equipment be classified as first-class mail.

Section 4251 (a) of title 39, United States Code, defines first-class mail as consisting of mailable: (1) postal cards, (2) post cards, (3) matter wholly or partially in writing or typewriting (with certain exceptions not here material), and (4) matter closed against postal inspection.

Section 4451(a) of title 39, United States Code, defines third-class mail as consisting of mailable matter which is: (1) not mailed or required to be mailed as first-class mail, (2) not entered as second-class mail, and (3) less than 16 ounces in weight.

Section 4451(b) of title 39, United States Code, provides that bills and statements of account may be mailed at the lower third-class postage rate if produced by any photographic or mechanical process, other than typewriting, and if 20 or more identical copies are mailed at one time. In other cases, bills and statements of account shall be mailed as first-class mail.

Some years ago, the question arose as to whether material produced by electronic data processing equipment (now commonly referred to as computers) should be considered as material produced by a mechanical process other than typewriting. It was then decided that such material should be considered as being produced by a typewriting process. Accordingly, for a number of years thereafter, bills and statements of account prepared by computers were classified as first-class mail.

In 1966, the question was again presented as to whether material produced by electronic data processing equipment should be considered as being produced by a typewriting process. After very long and careful consideration, which included consideration of the exact mechanical manner in which high speed computers produced the material, the General Counsel of the Post Office Department concluded that computers produced material by a mechanical process which more closely resembled a printing than a typewriting process. Accordingly, in February 1967, the General Counsel expressed the opinion that material produced by high speed computers should be considered as having been produced by a mechanical process other than typewriting. The effect of that ruling is that material which for years had been classified as first-class mail could thereafter be mailed at the lower third-class rate. Thus, at a time when the Department is attempting to secure needed increases in postal rates to pay for the increased costs of the postal service, certain mailers are receiving substantial reductions in postal rates. It is estimated that if S. 1693 is not enacted, the Department will suffer an annual loss of revenue in the amount of $20 million.

The Department believes that S. 1693 should not be regarded as a bill to increase postal rates. Rather that it may more properly be considered as a bill to keep bills and statements of account produced by computers in the first-class postage rate category that they had been in before the February 1967 ruling. In short, by its enactment, the status quo would be preserved and one group of mailers would not receive an unexpected rate reduction while other groups of mailers have their rates increased.

In view of the foregoing, we recommend the enactment of S. 1693.

The Bureau of the Budget has advised that there is no objection to the submission of this report to the committee from the standpoint of the administration's program.

Sincerely yours,

LAWRENCE F. O'BRIEN.

AUGUST 31, 1967.

HON. THADDEUS J. DULSKI,
Chairman, Committee on Post Office and Civil Service, House of Representatives, Washington, D.C.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: This will reply to your letter of August 17, 1967, in which you advise that the committee has adopted an amendment to H.R. 7977 which will change section 4251 of title 39, United States Code, to read in pertinent part: "(a) First class mail consists of mailable * * * (4) bills and statements of account * * *"

You ask whether the words "bills and statements of account" would be interpreted as including invoices.

The Department has long made a distinction between bills and statements of account on the one hand and invoices on the other. Pursuant to section 4555 of title 39, United States Code, and predecessor provisions of law authorizing the enclosure in fourth-class mail of a description of the article mailed, the Department has, at least since the 1913 edition of the Postal Laws and Regulations, authorized invoices to be enclosed.

Bills differ from invoices in that they constitute requests for payment of amounts due. Invoices on the other hand are itemized lists of goods shipped to a buyer, stating quantities, prices, shipping charges, etc. They do not purport to call for payment, nor do they state an account between the buyer and the seller.

If the amendment in question becomes law the Department, in the absence of legislative history to the contrary, would not consider the phrase in question as including invoices.

It is my understanding that a question has also been raised as to whether the amendment to section 4251 would affect title 39, United States Code, section 4365(b). That section provides, in relation to second-class mail, "publishers and news agents may enclose in their publications bills, receipts and orders for subscriptions." The purpose of section 4365 is to authorize the enumerated items to travel as a part of second-class mail even though these same items might be chargeable with first-class postage if mailed separately. In view of the difference in purpose between section 4365(b) and 4251 we would not consider the amendment to the latter as affecting the former.

Sincerely yours,

LAWRENCE F. O'BRIEN.

THE POSTMASTER GENERAL,
Washington, D.C., April 6, 1967.

HON. THADDEUS J. DULSKI,
Chairman, Committee on Post Office and Civil Service, House of Representatives, Washington, D.C.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: This is in reply to your request for a report on H.R. 2071, extending the book rate of postage to books issued to supplement other books.

The purpose of this measure is to clarify the meaning of "books," as defined in Public Law 89-593, in order to make clear that it will not inadvertently deny the special fourth-class rates to book supplements such as, for example, single volumes belonging to multivolume sets, or law or medical books issued serially.

Public Law 89-593, the Parcel Post Act of 1966, redefined the definition of books so as to extend the special rates to complete looseleaf books, excluding replacement pages thereafter mailed. It now appears, however, that the language used could be interpreted to exclude also book supplements, such as those described above, an exclusion not intended by Congress. H.R. 2071 would remove the possibility of such an incorrect interpretation.

Book supplements are, and have been, entitled to the special fourth-class postage rates. As indicated, the proposed legislation simply clarifies the existing state of the law. We favor such clarification, and, therefore, have no objection to the enactment of H.R. 2071.

The Bureau of the Budget has advised that from the standpoint of the administration's program there is no objection to the submission of this report to the committee.

Sincerely yours,

LAWRENCE F. O'BRIEN.

THE POSTMASTER GENERAL,
Washington, D.C., July 17, 1967.

HON. THADDEUS J. DULSKI,
Chairman, Committee on Post Office and Civil Service, House of Representatives, Washington, D.C.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: This is in reply to your request for a report on H.R. 8951, a bill to allow writing or printing on envelopes, wrappers, or other covers in which copies of second-class publications are mailed.

This measure amends section 4365 of title 39, United States Code, relating to permissible marks and enclosures on or in second-class mail matter, so as to permit writing or print on the outside wrappers or envelopes in which copies of second-class publications are mailed.

The Department favors the purpose of H.R. 8951. The present restriction on writing or print on outside covers of second-class mail is difficult for our post offices to administer. In any case the general practice of publishers is to mail as many copies of their publications as is possible without wrappers, in order to save the cost of wrappers. Furthermore, there are no restrictions of this kind applicable to other classes of mail.

However, since enactment of the bill would permit advertising matter to appear on the outside wrapper or cover, which matter is now confined to the inner content of a publication, the effect of the legislation is to merge the outer wrapper with the body of the publication. In view of this, the Department recommends an amendment to the bill to the effect that wrappers or covers containing advertising matter shall be considered as part of the advertising portion of a publication for purposes of postage payment. This could take the form of adding the following language to the proposed new subsection: "but when such covers contain advertising they shall be considered as part of the advertising portion and the publication for the purpose of computation of postage."

The Bureau of the Budget has advised that from the standpoint of the administration's program there is no objection to the submission of this report to the committee.

Sincerely yours,

LAWRENCE F. O'BRIEN.

TITLE II—FEDERAL SALARY ACT OF 1967

The purposes of this title and the official recommendation of the President for general Federal civilian salary adjustments are set forth at the beginning of this report.

STATEMENT

In view of the repetition this year of the perennial struggle between conflicting interests involved in all Federal civilian salary legislation, certain observations are deemed in order to establish a proper frame of reference for the committee salary recommendations contained in title II of the committee amendment to H.R. 7977.

The Government's 3 million employees constitute the largest single work force in the world. The $18 billion annual civilian payroll for the salary systems, covered by title II, constitutes 14 percent of the total Federal administrative budget. Even a modest adjustment in such an immense payroll, therefore, is a formidable undertaking, demanding most careful examination and weighing of all of the interests concerned. These interests arise from three principal sources.

There are the employees, who have families to clothe, house, and feed, children to educate, and all of the problems and expenses of other Americans. Salaries are matters of first importance to these employees and their dependents, who often have no other source of income.

There are the fiscal responsibilities of the President and the administration. Federal salaries are but one aspect of a total budget involving high economic policy, the dangers of inflation, the financing of a war, conflicting demands for available funds, and innumerable other problems.

Finally, there are the taxpayers who must pay the costs of any Federal salary increase. With a $30 billion fiscal year deficit facing their Government and the Congress trying to cut expenditures in every category, the taxpayers are sympathetic to the efforts of the administration to control the amount of any salary increases.

The committee devoted serious attention to all of these interests, and had the benefit of a wealth of information developed in extensive hearings before the Subcommittee on Compensation, as well as the carefully worked out legislative recommendation of the subcommittee. The subcommittee listened sympathetically to arguments by the administration and by employee groups, while keeping in mind the interests of the taxpayers.

It has been impossible, as usual, to bring forth a bill that fully satisfies all interests. The pay raises recommended by the Subcommittee on Compensation are well below many employee group requests, but in their entirety represent the most liberal salary "package" proposed in many years. The raises are moderately more liberal than those recommended by the President, but are regarded as not unreasonably beyond his recommendations.

In the judgment of the committee, the salary bill reported by the Subcommittee on Compensation strikes a fair and realistic balance between all of the major interests concerned. It is a suitable compromise, consistent with the best interests of the taxpayers, the Government, and the employees. Accordingly, title II of the committee bill adopts the subcommittee proposal virtually without change.

The chief thrust of title II is toward the achievement, finally, of comparability between Federal civilian salaries and those in private enterprise, as guaranteed by the Federal Salary Reform Act of 1962, without aggravating the critical budget problems of most immediate concern to the administration and the taxpayers. This title adopts the President's recommendation for a 4.5-percent increase, effective in October of 1967, for all statutory salary systems except the postal field service, and adds 1.5 percent to the President's proposal for that service. This first-phase increase costs only $63 million more than the increase recommended by the President for the current fiscal year, in terms of the salary systems included in the President's recommendation.

Both the President's proposal and title II are designed to achieve full comparability with two added adjustments following the first-phase increases. The difference is that the President recommended a longer period of time than is provided in title II of the committee bill to reach full comparability.

SUMMARY OF MAJOR POLICIES IN TITLE II

OCTOBER 1967 SALARIES

The present 20-level postal field service salary schedule will be changed to a 21-level schedule, and all employees subject to the present schedule will be advanced by one numerical salary level. The advancement in salary level will give each employee a 6-percent salary increase effective in October of 1967. Rural carriers will receive the same increases as are granted city carriers.

Employees subject to the General Schedule (classified), Foreign Service Officer, and Foreign Service Staff Schedules, Veterans' Administration medical and surgical salary ranges, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation county committee pay schedule, judicial branch pay rates or ranges, and legislative branch pay rates, all will receive 4½-percent pay raises effective in October of 1967.

JULY 1968 SALARIES

Postal employees will receive a second-phase increase of 5 percent in July of 1968. Employees in other pay systems will receive adjustments in July of 1968 to close one-half of the difference between their salary levels and comparable private enterprise salary levels (based on the June 1967 Bureau of Labor Statistics salary survey) but not less than 3 percent. The necessary salary adjustments for these other employees will be made by the President, without further legislative action.

APRIL 1969 SALARIES

Both postal and other employees will receive a final, third-phase adjustment in April of 1969 to bring all of their salaries up to a par with private enterprise salaries, as determined by the June 1968, Bureau of Labor Statistics salary survey. This final adjustment also will be made by the President without further legislative action.

EXECUTIVE SCHEDULE SALARIES

Salaries for executive levels III, IV, and V are increased from $28,500, $27,000, and $26,000, to $29,500, $28,750, and $28,000, respectively, in order to accommodate the general salary increases proposed for career employees.

COMMISSION ON EXECUTIVE, LEGISLATIVE, AND JUDICIAL SALARIES

A "Quadrennial Commission" is established to determine proper levels for executive, congressional, and judicial salaries once every 4 years. Each Commission will make a study for a full fiscal year every fourth year (beginning with the 1969 fiscal year) and must submit its recommendations to the President by the end of the calendar year in which the study is completed. The President shall include, in the next budget he transmits to the Congress after receiving the Commission's report, his recommendations for the exact rates of pay, and the kinds and amounts of expenses and allowances, for Federal executives, judges, and Members of Congress. The recommendations transmitted to the Congress by the President in his budget will become effective the first pay period beginning more than 30 days after transmittal of the budget, unless the Congress has enacted a statute fixing specific rates of pay and amounts and kinds of expenses and allowances or unless one House or the other has specifically disapproved any or all of the President's recommendations.

STATUTORY SCHEDULES—SALARY LINKAGE

The Federal Salary Reform Act of 1962, among other matters, established the principle of "salary linkage" of postal field service salaries and General Schedule salaries, as a necessary means for orderly establishment of appropriate relationships between the two salary systems, for purposes of determining comparability with private enterprise rates, because a great many postal field service positions have no counterpart for comparison of duties and responsibilities in the private sector.

It is the committee's intention that this direct salary linkage of the postal field service and the General Schedule salary systems be maintained, as a necessary adjunct of the comparability policy, even though the salary rates in the committee bill provide a 6-percent initial increase for postal field service employees and a 4.5-percent increase for General Schedule employees. The variance is due entirely to budgetary considerations, and does not alter the substantive principle of linkage of the levels of duties and responsibilities. The direct salary linkage, heretofore in effect, will be restored through the salary adjustments the President is to make in July of 1968 and April of 1969. The final schedules to be prescribed by the President in 1969 will establish the same salary ranges for postal field service level 21 and General Schedule grade 17, for postal field service level 12 and General Schedule grade 11, and for the first 10 step-rates of postal field service level 5 and General Schedule grade 5.

EXPLANATION OF TITLE II BY SECTIONS

Section 201 of title II provides a short title—"Federal Salary Act of 1967."

The schedule in section 202(a) provides 4.5-percent pay raises for all General Schedule (GS) employees, substantially as recommended by the President, effective the first pay period in October 1967. Subsection (b) provides the usual rules to convert employees to the new salary schedule.

Section 203 makes a technical change in the designation of the two top postal field service (PFS) salary levels, to conform with later provisions which replace the present 20-level postal field service salary schedule with a 21-level schedule.

Section 204(a) establishes a new position of "Cleaner" in PFS salary level 1, which will be the only position in the new salary level 1, and assigns a new position of "Custodian" to PFS salary level 2 which replaces the existing position of "Janitor."

Subsection (b) of section 204 advances every salary level now under the 20-level PFS schedule to the next higher level in the new 21-level PFS schedules provided by section 205(a).

Subsection (c) of section 204 is a salary saving provision for "cleaners" who are in PFS level 1 at date of enactment and are advanced to the new PFS level 2.

Section 205(a) replaces the present 20-level PFS salary schedule with two 21-level schedules. Postal field service schedule I grants a 6-percent, across-the-board raise to all PFS employees except for six rates in levels 20 and 21. The 6-percent raise is effective the first pay period in October 1967. Postal field service schedule II is a "comparability catchup" schedule, granting an additional 5-percent across-the-board raise effective the first pay period in July 1968, except for six rates in levels 20 and 21.

Subsection (b) of section 205 provides 2-phase raises for rural carriers to keep their compensation in line with city carriers in the postal field service schedules.

Subsection (c) of section 205 establishes an improved method of fixing salaries of postmasters at fourth-class offices. The present fourth-class office schedule is replaced by provisions which require payment of salaries of these postmasters at the appropriate step of PFS salary level 6 of the new PFS schedules, in amounts which bear the same ratio to the annual rate of level 6 as the total number of hours worked by the postmasters bear to the regular 40-hour work schedule.

Subsections (d) and (e) of section 205 are appropriate adaptations of the usual conversion rules, to place employees in the new postal field service schedule I.

Subsection (f) of section 205 prevents loss of credit for time served in the postal field service upon conversion by this legislation to new salary schedules. Each employee will be credited with time served toward step advancement under the present PFS salary schedule when he is converted to the new salary schedule, and will not have to start a new waiting period.

Subsection (g) of section 205 provides for orderly conversion of employees from postal field service schedule I to postal field service schedule II when the latter schedule becomes effective in July of 1968.

Subsection (h) of section 205 guarantees credit for all time served in the postal field service for purposes of salary protection of any employee who shall have been reduced in salary standing, as provided in section 3560 of title 39, United States Code.

Subsection (i) of section 205 conforms the table of contents of chapter 45 of title 39, United States Code, with the fourth-class office changes.

Section 206 (a) and (b) consists of necessary conforming amendments to title 39, United States Code, relating to the new fourth-class office salary system established by section 205(c).

Subsection (c) of section 206 is a technical conforming amendment needed to preserve the right to overtime compensation for employees in present postal field service salary levels up to level 10, since the present PFS level 10 is redesignated as PFS level 11 by section 205.

Subsection (d) of section 206 also is a technical conforming amendment. Section 3575 of title 39, United States Code, exempts from coverage of certain sections of that title (among other special categories) "employees in salary level 15 and above" of the present 20-level PFS salary schedule. Since level 15 of the present schedule will become level 16 under title II of the committee bill, the reference in section 3575 of title 39, United States Code is changed accordingly.

Subsection (e) of section 206, similar in purpose to subsections (c) and (d), is a technical amendment providing for appropriate conforming changes in the administration of rules, regulations, orders, and other statutes with respect to any reference therein to PFS salary level numbers now in effect and as changed by title II of the committee bill.

Section 207(a) authorizes the President, when he finds that pay rates in private enterprise in certain occupations or areas are so far above Federal statutory pay rates as to impede recruitment and retention of qualified Federal employees, to establish initial salary rates for those occupations and areas above the initial steps of the appropriate grades or levels, but not above the maximum step rates of such grades or levels. Present law limits this authority to the seventh step rates.

Subsection (b) of section 207 authorizes the President or an agency he may designate to make appropriate adjustments in any salary rate established under the authority granted in subsection (a) to reflect salary increases enacted by statute for the regular salary schedule or schedules to which such adjustments made under subsection (a) pertain.

Section 208 provides 4.5-percent increases in all of the minimums and maximums of the salary ranges applicable to employees in the Department of Medicine and Surgery of the Veterans' Administration, effective in October of 1967.

Section 209 grants 4.5-percent pay raises to Foreign Service officers and staff officers and employees effective in October of 1967.

Section 210 grants Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation county committee employees pay raises in proportion to the pay raises granted General Schedule employees in section 202(a), effective in October of 1967.

Section 211 authorizes similar adjustments in the pay of employees whose salary rates are fixed by administrative action under separate statutory authority.

Section 212 provides for closing the lag of Federal salaries behind private enterprise rates which remains after the initial and, for postal, the second-phase pay raises, discussed above. For the executive branch, the President, without any further legislative action, (1) will be required to place in effect new pay rates for all employees (except postal) in July of 1968 which close half of the then existing "comparability gap" based on the 1967 Bureau of Labor Statistics comparability survey of private enterprise, but such new pay rates shall not be less than 3 percent above the rates in effect immediately before the President acts, and (2) will be required to make a second adjustment for all employees in April of 1969 closing the remainder of the then existing "comparability gap" based on the 1968 Bureau of Labor Statistics comparability survey of private enterprise. Employees subject to other pay systems covered by the bill will have their salaries similarly adjusted by appropriate authorities. All of the salary adjustments made pursuant to this section will be automatic, and will have the force and effect of statute when made by the appropriate authority.

Subsections (a), (b), and (c) of section 213 provide pay raises for judicial branch employees customarily included in committee salary bills in line with the raises provided by the General Schedule in section 202(a), effective in October of 1967. Subsection (d) restores salaries of the Director and the Deputy Director, Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts, to their former relationship with salaries of U.S. district court judges.

Section 214 provides pay raises for legislative employees customarily included in committee salary bills effective in October of 1967, except as noted in subsections (f) and (g), in line with those provided by the General Schedule in section 202(a). Subsection (f) restores, in part, the salary relationships of certain employees in the Office of the Architect of the Capitol that were established by the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1960 (73 Stat. 407). The exclusions provided by subsection (g) are self explanatory.

Section 215 adjusts salaries for executive levels III, IV, and V from $28,500, $27,000, and $26,000, to $29,500, $28,750, and $28,000, respectively, in order to accommodate the general salary increases proposed for career employees.

Section 216 establishes a "Quadrennial Commission" to determine proper levels for executive, congressional, and judicial salaries once every 4 years. The Commission will make a study for a full fiscal year once every fourth year (beginning with the 1969 fiscal year) and must submit its recommendations to the President by the end of the calendar year in which the study is completed. The President shall include, in the next budget he transmits to the Congress after receiving the Commission's report, his recommendations for the exact rates of pay, and the kinds and amounts of expenses and allowances, for Federal executives, judges, and Members of Congress. The recommendations transmitted to the Congress by the President in his budget will become effective the first pay period beginning more than 30 days after transmittal of the budget, unless the Congress has enacted a statute fixing specific rates of pay and amounts and kinds of expenses and allowances or unless one House or the other has specifically disapproved any or all of the President's recommendations.

Section 217 provides that this title will not raise any salary to a rate above the salary rate for executive level V, except as otherwise specified. The exceptions relate to positions already at rates above the rate for such level V.

Section 218 establishes a 20-percent minimum, and raises the maximum from 25 to 30 percent, for premium pay (in lieu of overtime pay) payable for regular overtime work by Federal employees which involves substantial amounts of "standby" time.

Section 219 provides the customary guidelines governing payment of retroactive salary raises that are needed if the title is enacted with a retroactive effective date, is probable.

Sections 220 and 221 extend eligibility for continued retirement, life insurance, and health benefits coverage to Government employees who are on officially approved leave without pay to serve with labor organizations which may have both Federal and non-Federal employees as members, if the employees pay the entire costs.

Section 222 makes adjustments in the statutory salary rates of certain officials in legislative branch agencies to maintain the relationships of such salaries to the salary rates for executive levels III, IV, and V, provided by section 215, since the salaries for such officials were keyed to those executive levels in Public Law 88-426.

Section 223(a) provides appropriate effective dates for the various parts of title II.

Subsection (b) of section 223 makes all of the October 1967 pay raises provided by the bill, and the salary adjustments to be made by the President and other authorities under section 212, effective on date of enactment or the date any such adjustment is ordered if retroactive, as the case may be, for purposes of fixing amounts of coverage under the Government employees' life insurance program. These provisions are needed, and like provisions are customary, whenever retroactive pay increases are authorized.

AGENCY RECOMMENDATIONS

The provisions of title II are based generally on the official recommendations of the President, including his message to the Congress entitled, "Civilian and Military Pay Raises," House Document No. 95, 90th Congress. The legislative proposal, together with a statement of purpose and justification, was transmitted by the Chairman, U.S. Civil Service Commission, by letter dated April 5, 1967, which is set forth below. The proposal was introduced as H.R. 8261.

U.S. CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION,
Washington, D.C., April 5, 1967.

HON. JOHN W. McCORMACK,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.

Dear MR. SPEAKER: In accordance with the President's message of April 5, 1967, I transmit herewith for the consideration of the Congress proposed legislation which would place in effect the President's recommendations for adjustment of statutory salary schedules pursuant to the provisions of subchapter I of chapter 53, title 5, United States Code. There are enclosed a draft bill, a section analysis of its provisions, and a statement of purpose and justification.

Salary adjustments recommended would affect the schedules of the four statutory pay systems, for the General Schedule, for the postal field service, for the Foreign Service, and for physicians, dentists, and nurses in the Department of Medicine and Surgery in the Veterans' Administration. Proposed salary schedules rest on the factual basis presented in the annual report of the Director of the Bureau of the Budget and the Chairman of the Civil Service Commission under the provisions of Executive Order 11073 and their further report of March 30, 1967. These reports, attached to the President's message, compare Federal salaries with private enterprise levels as reported by the Bureau of Labor Statistics in October 1966; propose a 4.5-percent average increase in statutory schedules in 1967, except that some of the highest rates where such an increase would bring career salaries above the salary of level V of the executive schedule; and further propose a commitment to increase statutory schedules to levels fully comparable to pay levels in private enterprise by two further increases, one in 1968 and one in 1969. Each of the three adjustments in schedules that are proposed would be effective in October of the particular year.

One additional proposal included in the draft bill would aid the Government in recruiting, especially at the inexperienced graduate level where industry rates have moved farther and farther ahead of salaries the Government can offer. Under section 5303 of title 5, United States Code, the Civil Service Commission can prescribe special rate ranges when it finds that the Government is significantly handicapped in recruiting or retaining well-qualified persons because private enterprise salaries are substantially higher than those in Federal statutory salary schedules for the classes of positions concerned. Under existing law the minimum rate for such special ranges may not exceed the seventh rate of the statutory scale of the grade. The proposal in the draft bill would raise this ceiling to the maximum rate of the grade.

The proposed 1967 salary adjustment would increase the Government's fiscal year 1968 costs by approximately $541.4 million.

As directed by the President, I am prepared to consult with the appropriate committees of Congress on the form and specific content of the legislation which the President recommended to establish a special joint executive, legislative, and judicial salary committee to examine all Federal pay systems and to make a report to the President and to the Congress in January 1969.

The Bureau of the Budget advises that enactment of this proposed legislation would be in accord with the President's program.

A similar letter is being sent to the President of the Senate.

By direction of the Commission:

Sincerely yours,

JOHN W. MACY, Jr., Chairman.

STATEMENT OF PURPOSE AND JUSTIFICATION OF A DRAFT LEGISLATIVE PROPOSAL TO ADJUST THE RATES OF BASIC COMPENSATION OF CERTAIN EMPLOYEES OF THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT, AND FOR OTHER PURPOSES

The draft bill (H.R. 8261) would carry out recommendations in the President's message to Congress of April 5, 1967, forwarding the annual comparison of Federal salaries with salaries paid in private enterprise as provided in section 5302 of title 5, United States Code. The joint report of the Director of the Bureau of the Budget and the Chairman of the Civil Service Commission prepared pursuant to Executive Order 11073, and their further report of March 30, 1967, were forwarded with the President's message.

The President's proposals include a 1967 increase in statutory salary schedules averaging 4.5 percent and a commitment for two further increases, one in 1968 and one in 1969, to bring statutory salary schedules by October 1969 up to levels comparable with those in private enterprise. The four statutory pay systems concerned are those of the General Schedule, of the postal field service, of the Foreign Service, and of the physicians, dentists, and nurses in the Department of Medicine and Surgery in the Veterans' Administration.

Salary rates reported by the Bureau of Labor Statistics for 1966, eliminating the effects of changes in the universe surveyed, show an average private enterprise increase of approximately 3.6 percent. Pay raises averaging 7.2 percent, at a cost well over $1 billion, would be required for statutory salaries to be made fully comparable with private enterprise pay levels in 1966. From a fiscal and economic standpoint, full comparability is not possible in fiscal year 1968. Funds in the 1968 budget, however, will permit an average 4.5-percent increase in statutory schedules. This is sufficient to match the 1966 private enterprise pay rise and, beyond that, to close slightly the remaining gap between Federal and private enterprise pay levels by an additional salary increase of nearly 1 percent.

Top statutory salaries for the career ranks are now very close to those in the executive schedule. The President has appointed a committee to study top executive, legislative, and judicial compensation and to make recommendations to him by June of this year. Pending possible future adjustments in pay for these top levels, the career schedules in the proposed bill keep their highest salaries below the present $26,000 salary for level V of the executive schedule.

Section 2 of the draft bill is a key provision. It would guarantee removal of the comparability gap in all four civilian statutory salary systems not later than October 1969. This would be done by a two-step plan with the first step to take effect in October 1968 closing the comparability gap by at least one-half and the final step to take effect in October 1969. The adjustments in each case would be based on the latest Bureau of Labor Statistics pay survey data available at the time. In each of these years the adjustment will be based on pay survey data more up to date by 3 months than has previously been possible.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics has made comprehensive changes in its salary survey program so that beginning with 1967 the survey findings will represent private enterprise salary levels in June rather than in the February-March period.

Attainment of Federal salary levels comparable with those of private enterprise is necessary for the Government to meet its responsibility as a good employer and as part of the continuing program to provide Federal employees with pay and working conditions comparable to those offered by private employers. In good faith, the Government must take this step. While fiscal and economic conditions now prevailing do not permit a full step of this magnitude at the present time, a guaranteed timetable will reassure the loyal workers now in the Federal service and will aid in recruiting competent personnel as needed.

Section 7 of the draft bill would help meet a current critical recruiting problem. Under the present law, when it is found that the Government is significantly handicapped in recruiting or retaining well-qualified persons because private enterprise salaries are substantially higher than salary rates authorized by statute for a given occupation, in one or more locations and grades or levels, higher basic pay rates may be established for such categories of positions. Responsibility for administering this provision of law has been delegated to the Civil Service Commission by Executive Order 11073.

Section 5303 of title 5, United States Code, which contains this authority, further provides that no minimum rate may be set higher than the seventh pay rate prescribed by statute for the grade or level. Recent experience of Government agencies in competing for college graduates to staff positions in essential defense and other key activities has clearly established a need to change this limitation. Competition for college graduates particularly in technical fields has intensified greatly due to the expanding needs of industry and government at all levels and the inadequate supply of available candidates. This has resulted in a rapid spiraling of private industry salary offers to college graduates during 1965 and 1966. Most recently this problem has arisen in the employment of nurses in certain locations where very substantial pay increases have been implemented in non-Federal hospital facilities.

Although entry level rates established for college graduates in engineering and other technical fields and for hospital nurses in certain locations have reached the seventh rate limitation, Government offers are simply no longer competitive. The differences are not minor; they have been as much as $1,000 to $1,500 per year, and more. Unless action is taken to change the limitation on higher minimum rates the existing deficiency will worsen and seriously undermine the technical staffing needs of essential Federal programs. Consequently, section 7 of the draft bill proposes changing the limitation on the Commission's authority from the seventh rate to the maximum rate of the grade. At most grades, the maximum is the 10th rate.

Summary of draft bill provisions

Altogether, provisions of the draft bill would immediately make a slight improvement in the relationship of Federal salaries to those in private enterprise that was established by the 1966 pay act, would aid the Government to recruit and retain a competent work force, and, most importantly, would guarantee full attainment in 1969 of the principle enacted in 1962 that "Federal pay rates be comparable with private enterprise pay rates for the same levels of work."

TITLE III—PANDERING ADVERTISEMENT MAIL MATTER

STATEMENT

The provisions of title III are intended to afford the public a means to prevent the mailing of pandering advertisements which the Postmaster General determines offers for sale matter represented by the advertisements as erotically arousing or sexually provocative.

During the 88th Congress, the House of Representatives passed legislation, H.R. 319, which would have afforded a homeowner an effective and urgently needed means to prevent the forced entry into his home through the U.S. mails of "morally offensive matter."

During the 89th Congress, the House of Representatives passed H.R. 980, which characterized the mail matter as "obscene, lewd, lascivious, indecent, filthy, or vile" rather than "morally offensive."

Neither of these bills was considered by the Senate, and strong objections were received from many interested parties that the proposed legislation would give private persons the right to set in motion a series of governmental actions which could seriously impede the dissemination of perfectly mailable matter to the general public.

All of the objections raised during the 88th and 89th Congresses have been reviewed, and the proposal contained in title III of this legislation is intended to provide a reasonable solution to the continuing problem faced by the homeowner of receiving unsolicited and undesirable sex-related mail matter.

During the past year, the Post Office Department received approximately a quarter of a million complaints from people throughout the United States, bitterly protesting the receipt of offensive, sex-oriented advertising matter in the mail. This represents an increase of about 200,000 over the number of complaints received 5 years ago. Most of the complaints are from parents whose minor children have received such advertisements.

Frequently, a teenager will write to a record club or answer an advertisement in a teenage or a Scout magazine. Somehow or other, the response to such advertisements frequently results in the teenager's name reaching the mailing-list market, and subsequently many of the teenagers are annoyed by receiving advertisements for obscene material or what is identified in this legislation as "pandering advertisement."

The public has been demanding that steps be taken to afford parents a means to stop this material from reaching their children through the U.S. mails. This legislation is in response to these demands.

The most singular development in the field of mail obscenity during the past year came in the far-reaching decision of the U.S. Supreme Court in the case of Ginzburg v. U.S., 383 U.S. 463 (1966). The publisher's conviction for violation of the postal obscenity law was upheld by the Court because of his "pandering" advertisements.

The decision is expected to be useful in the prosecution of commercial traffic in pornography and will help curb mail-order advertisers who have shown little restraint in the word-and-picture representations of their merchandise. This type of unsolicited advertising deeply irritates thousands of people who have protested to the Post Office Department. The Court noted in its decision that such unsolicited advertising "would tend to force public confrontation with the potentially offensive aspects of the work: the brazenness of such an appeal heightens the offensiveness of the publications to those who are offended by such material."

This legislation is phrased in keeping with the Ginzburg case to cover only that advertising matter which is intended for commercial exploitation of sexually provocative matters. It requires the determination by the Postmaster General that the particular mailing piece comes within the category of "pandering advertisements," as that term is used in the Ginzburg case. And if so, an order would be issued to the mailer which would advise the mailer to delete the name of the addressee involved from all mailing lists owned or controlled by the sender or his agents or assigns. Such an order by the Postmaster General is required to further prohibit the sender and his agents or assigns from the sale, rental, exchange, or other transaction involving mailing lists bearing the name of the designated addressee.

The order would additionally caution mailers that any further mailing of such matter after 30 days from receipt of such order could result in a request to the Attorney General, for an application to be made to a district court of the United States for an order directing compliance with such an order. Violation of such a court order could lead to punishment by the court as a contempt of court.

The committee believes that it is time that something be done to halt this suffusion of sex upon a protesting and objecting populace, and the saturation of our children with sexual fantasies during their adolescence.

The committee is mindful that any legislative attempt to impede the free circulation of printed matter, particularly in the area of sex-related materials, is confronted with the strictest constitutional limitations laid down by the Supreme Court in a series of cases running from Roth v. U.S., 354 U.S. 476 (1958) down through the Ginzburg case. With these cases in mind, this legislation is intended to afford a means to prevent a mailer from sending through the mail matter offering to sell material of an erotic, sexual nature to an addressee who previously had notified the mailer he did not want to receive such material in the mail.

This type of solicitation is referred to in this legislation as "pandering advertisement." Such an advertisement is not obscene in itself, but offers to sell materials which are claimed to be erotically arousing or sexually provocative.

While the procedures prescribed by this legislation are exempted by subsection (h) from the provisions of the Administrative Procedure Act, the benefits of administrative due process are preserved by other provisions of this amendment which require the Postmaster General to grant a hearing if the mailer requests a hearing, and by the usual procedure which is required to be followed by a district court before a court order is issued.

The committee believes that this legislation represents a major step forward in the field of preventive legislation. It is designed to stop repeated mailings of offensive material rather than to punish the mailer after the mailings have occurred.

EXPLANATION OF TITLE III BY SECTIONS

Section 301 of title III amends chapter 51 of title 39, United States Code, by adding a new section 4009.

Subsection (a) of section 4009 subjects a sender or his agent or assign, who mails any "pandering advertisement" which offers for sale matter which the advertisement represents as erotically arousing or sexually provocative, to an order of the Postmaster General. The order would direct the sender to refrain from further mailings of such pandering advertisements to a designated addressee.

Subsection (b) authorizes the Postmaster General to issue such an order upon receipt of a notice from an addressee that he has received such mail matter, providing the Postmaster General determines the mail matter to be of the character of pandering advertisement. The order would direct the sender or his agents or assigns to refrain from further mailings of such matter to the named addressee.

Subsection (c) requires the order of the Postmaster General to expressly prohibit the sender from making further mailings of pandering advertisements to the designated addressee, effective on the 30th day after receipt of the order. The subsection also requires the order to direct the sender, his agents or assigns to delete the name of the designated addressee from all mailing lists and to prohibit the sender, or his agents or assigns, from the sale, rental, exchange, or other transactions involving mailing lists bearing the names of the designated addressees.

Subsection (d) authorizes the Postmaster General, when he believes that the notice has been or is being violated, to serve on the offender a formal complaint stating the Postmaster General's belief and the reasons for it, giving the offender 15 days to respond if he cares to. Any such response must be in writing. If the Postmaster General, after appropriate hearing, if requested by the sender, thereafter determines that there is or has been violation of the notice, he is authorized to request the Attorney General to apply to a district court for an order directing compliance with the notice. The subsection also confers authority on the Attorney General to apply for such orders.

Subsection (e) confers specific jurisdiction on any district court of the United States where mail has been sent or received in violation of such a notice, upon application by the Attorney General, to issue an order directing compliance with the notice. It further specifically empowers the court to punish failure to obey such an order as a contempt of court.

Subsection (f) provides that the receipt of mail matter 30 days or more after the effective date of the order shall create a rebuttable presumption that such mail was sent after such effective date.

Subsection (g) requires the Postmaster General, upon request of any addressee, to include in his order the names of any minor children who have not attained their 19th birthday and who reside with the addressee.

Subsection (h) exempts the provisions of section 4009 from the provisions of the Administrative Procedures Act.

Subsection (i) defines certain terms used in this section for purposes of clarity and to insure expeditious and effective administration.

Section 302 provides that title III shall become effective on the 120th day following the date of enactment of this act.

COST

There is no possible way of anticipating the additional cost of administering the program contemplated by title III of this bill.

AGENCY RECOMMENDATIONS

This legislation is based, in part, on the recommendations by the Post Office Department, presented during extensive hearings held on H.R. 426 and H.R. 8215.

A report from the Department of Justice in connection with this proposal is set forth below.

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE,
Washington, D.C., May 29, 1967.

HON. THADDEUS J. DULSKI,
Chairman, Committee on Post Office and Civil Service, House of Representatives, Washington, D.C.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: This is in response to your request for the views of the Department of Justice concerning H.R. 8215, a bill to amend title 39 of the United States Code in order to proscribe the mailing of certain matter not desired by addressees.

The primary purpose of the bill is disclosed in the proposed caption for the section which would be added to title 39 of the United States Code: "Prohibition of pandering advertisements in the mails." The remarks of the bill's sponsor upon its introduction clearly indicate that it is intended to reach advertising matter which, while not itself obscene, offers to sell "material of an erotic, sexual nature," although such material is also not necessarily obscene. 113 Congressional Record (daily edition) H3716.

Subsection (a) of the proposed new 39 U.S.C. 4009 would, in effect, define a "pandering advertisement" as one which offers for sale "matter which the advertisement represents as erotically arousing or sexually provocative."

Subsection (b) would authorize the Postmaster General to determine whether particular mail matter is "of the character of a pandering advertisement" and to issue an order, at the request of any addressees who have received such matter, "directing the sender and his agents or assigns to refrain from further mailings of such matter to the named addressees."

Subsection (c) would require that the order issued by the Postmaster General shall not only prohibit further mailings of "pandering advertisements" to the designated addressees but shall also: (1) direct the immediate deletion of the names of such addressees from "all mailing lists owned or controlled by the sender or his agents and assigns," and (2) prohibit the sender, his agents, and assigns "from the sale, rental, exchange, or other transaction involving mailing lists bearing the names of the designated addressees."

Subsection (d) would provide a criminal penalty of not more than 1 year's imprisonment or a $1,000 fine, or both, for anyone who has "willfully violated" any provision of such an order.

Subsection (e) would consist of various technical provisions, including authorization for such order to cover an addressee's minor children who reside with him, and an express direction that the Administrative Procedure Act "shall not apply to any provisions of this section."

In attempting to inhibit, upon threat of criminal sanctions, the mailing of any "pandering advertisements" which offer for sale erotic or sexual material, although neither the advertisement itself nor the material advertised for sale is obscene, the bill raises a substantial constitutional problem. Under existing law (18 U.S.C. 1461) the mailing of an advertisement for such material may constitute a crime, but only if the advertisement itself or the material advertised is actually obscene. Cf. Ginzburg v. United States, 383 U.S. 463, 465, note 4 (1966). The constitutionality of Federal legislation to make "pandering" of nonobscene material a criminal offense—as is here proposed—is an open question, even assuming a definition of "pandering" which could withstand attack on the grounds of vagueness. (See dissenting opinion of Mr. Justice Harlan in Ginzburg, supra at 494.)

Moreover, in authorizing the Postmaster General to determine, without a hearing and without applying prescribed criteria, whether particular material is "of the character of a pandering advertisement" and to thereupon issue an order prohibiting the sender from "further mailings of such matter to designated addressees," the bill is subject to substantially the same objection raised by the Department of Justice in its report, dated April 11, 1967, on H.R. 367 and H.R. 426. Those bills would impose upon the sender of mail the risk of anticipating whether the addressee will subjectively find a particular mailing to be as obscene as that addressee had subjectively found a previous mailing to be; the subject bill would impose upon the sender of mail the risk of anticipating whether the Postmaster General will subjectively find a particular advertisement to be of the same "pandering" character as he had subjectively found a previous mailing to be. In either case, as we stated in our April 11 report:

It is thus inevitable that the proposal would have, as against any sender receiving such notice, a "chilling effect upon the exercise of first amendment rights." Dombrowski v. Pfister, 380 U.S. 479, 487 (1965).

Indeed, the "chilling effect" on the sender which would result from receipt of the order contemplated by the subject legislation deliberately goes far beyond the proposal of H.R. 367 and H.R. 426. By the very terms of subsection (c) the recipient of an order thereunder would be inhibited from mailing to designated addressees any further material, without limitation, since he would be required to delete those addressees from "all mailing lists," even those which might clearly not involve "pandering advertisements."

By the same token, inasmuch as the order issued by the Postmaster General to the sender would inevitably constitute a broad administrative restraint on future mailings of any kind of material, procedural due process would seem to require at least the kind or prior notice and hearing afforded by the Administrative Procedure Act. Since the bill expressly renders the Administrative Procedure Act inapplicable, the absence of any judicial or administrative hearing prior to the issuance of the order would seem to run afoul the Supreme Court's admonition that: "Any system of prior restraint of expression comes to this Court bearing a heavy presumption against its constitutionality." Bantam Books v. Sullivan, 372 U.S. 58, 70 (1963).

By subjecting a sender to criminal sanctions for the mailing of non-obscene matter to an unwilling addressee, the subject legislation would permit the addressee's right to privacy to outweigh the sender's right to disseminate constitutionally protected material. As the Department has previously stated in its reports to Congress on similar legislative proposals (e.g., our report dated June 3, 1964, on H.R. 319, 88th Cong., First sess.), there is strong reason to believe that in weighting these relative rights of the sender and the addressee, the Supreme Court would hold that the balance favors the sender.

Finally, as a technical matter, we note that the citation in subsection (e)(4) to "5 U.S.C. 1001-1011," for the reference to the Administrative Procedure Act, does not reflect the 1966 codification of that title. The current citation should be to "subchapter 2 of chapter 5 and chapter 7 of title 5 of the United States Code."

In view of the above, and despite our continued support of the objective of this legislation, the Department of Justice is unable to recommend its enactment.

The Bureau of the Budget has advised that there is no objection to the submission of this report from the standpoint of the administration's program.

Sincerely,

RAMSEY CLARK,
Attorney General.

INDIVIDUAL VIEWS OF HON. EDWARD J. DERWINSKI
TO H.R. 7977

To be factual this bill should be called "The Public Be Damned Act of 1967."

In addition to the minority views, which I share, there are other problems relating to the operation of the Post Office Department, and attempts to correct them were rejected by the committee in its treatment of this legislation.

One is the practice of permitting supervisors to be paid less than those employees they supervise. This is a mockery of efficient management and the Post Office Department is itself derelict in condoning it.

The committee also rejected a proposal to assist, in high cost of living areas, the recruitment and retention of postal employees. I would favor a complete study applied to all Federal employees to determine those areas of the country in which living costs would dictate a special salary rate adjustment.

It is a disservice to the taxpaying public that the inclusion of a salary bill with a postal rate bill prevented a proper discussion of Federal employees' compensation.

Insofar as this section of the legislation is concerned, I see no reason for awarding one category of Federal employees an increase higher than the rest of the workforce. I cannot approve of discrimination against the so-called "classified" employees and suggest that whatever the magic percentage of wage increase is decided, that it be applied to all Government employees.

In an effort to improve a bad bill I intend to offer constructive amendments on the House floor, hoping to help the Department despite their own objections. Specifically, I will offer or support amendments to give the Department needed authority and flexibility in adjusting salary schedules in high cost of living metropolitan areas, such as Chicago. As I have stated, I believe that equity requires an equal salary increase for all employees with necessary corrections of the inequities that have been permitted to develop within the postal salary structure.

I will also offer an amendment by which staff employees of Members of the House of Representatives will be covered by provisions similar to those which govern the salary increases of their Senate counterparts.

It must be emphasized that the bill as produced by the committee is a most imperfect proposal and should not be treated with any sanctity. All amendments to be offered deserve careful consideration and in this instance the floor of the House will be the place to rework this bill into a proper form with emphasis on the public interest and protection of the aggrieved American taxpayer as he patiently waits for long overdue improved mail service.

EDWARD J. DERWINSKI.

MINORITY VIEWS OF JOE POOL

First class and airmail now under the present rates are showing a profit and are operating above 100 percent of cost. I do not think that it is right for this mail to be increased so that it will pay 23 percent more than its allocated cost. If this increase is approved, first-class mail will have sustained a 50-percent increase since 1960. I think the American public is entitled to at least a 50-percent increase in service if they are going to be taxed a 50-percent increase for the handling of the public's mail. The same objection with respect to the right to better service can be made against increases in all other classes of mail.

The House Post Office and Civil Service Committee, Subcommittee on Facilities and Modernization, of which I am chairman, has been conducting investigations and holding hearings attempting to help the Post Office Department provide the facilities for a faster handling of the mail. This modernization is long overdue but we feel that the rate increase is not justified until the Post Office Department has improved its techniques.

One mistake of the bill in my opinion is the delegation of powers over the salaries and pay of certain Federal employees to a commission some members of which are appointed by the President. Under this provision of the bill, the President's authority over not only the Federal employees will be absolute, but also he will have the power of life and death over the salaries of Congressmen. This amounts clearly to a violation of the philosophy of constitutional government that there should be a separation of powers of the coequal branches of the Government, the legislative, judiciary, and the executive.

Under this provision, Members of the Congress, Federal judges, heads of the executive departments and agencies, and other officials will be put directly under the thumb of the President. If Congress fails to take affirmative action, his wishes through his controlled commission will prevail. Those familiar with the legislative process know it is hard to pass legislation in Congress, especially if the administration is opposing it. The President still has the power to recommend legislation under the present laws and this delegation of this unusual power is a direct attack on the power of Congress itself. To accentuate how absurd this provision is in the bill, let it be pointed out that the President himself did not ask for such broad powers over salaries and expenses of Federal judges, Members of Congress, or even his own appointees in the executive branch.

If Congress passes this provision without even a request being made for it, then certainly the present President and future Presidents will interpret this as a mandate from Congress that the Congressmen want no part of fixing salaries and that they are abdicating their role as representatives of the people in the spending of their hard-earned tax money.

I favor proper pay adjustments for Federal employees in 1967, but I cannot vote to usurp the power of the representatives of the people just to get a pay raise for myself. Congressmen should stand up and be counted and vote against this provision instead of turning it over to some commission largely controlled by the President and leave themselves at the mercy of the President for any crumbs he might throw their way. Also, I do not think that future pay increases should be determined by a President who has yet to be elected.

JOE POOL.

MINORITY VIEWS ON H.R. 7977

CONCLUSIONS AND RECOMMENDATIONS

We believe that the enactment of H.R. 7977 is not in the public interest and that the Congress should reject this legislation. Postal rate increases and pay adjustments for postal and other Federal employees should not be included in the same bill. There is no relationship between the two issues and Congress should not be forced to accept such a proposal.

This supposedly "veto-proof" legislation represents a masterful job of buckpassing between the administration and the majority members of the committee—and with the American public a suffering victim.

As a matter of principle, we believe that the American public should not be saddled with a postage rate increase until we can guarantee this same public an improved and efficient postal service. Unfortunately, this legislation offers no such guarantees.

POSTAL RATE INCREASES

According to the proponents of the bill, title I, which increases postal rates on all classes of mail, provides increased postal revenues of $884 million annually.

For the first time in the history of the Post Office and Civil Service Committee a general postal rate increase bill of this magnitude was the subject of hearings by only a minority of the members of the committee. In the past hearings on measures of this importance have always been conducted by the full membership of the committee. A subcommittee, composed only of a minority of the members of the committee, conducted hearings, and only 10 members had an opportunity to question the Postmaster General and the mailers and secure information upon which the full committee was to act.

Subcommittee disavows own recommendations

The subcommittee of 10 of the 26 members then brought a postal increase proposal to the full committee and proceeded to disavow its own recommendations. A new bill was written which bears little resemblance to the subcommittee bill. There has been no testimony presented to the full committee membership by the Postmaster General or the users of the mail, with respect to the provisions contained in title I.

Committee procedure marked by confusion

The House Post Office and Civil Service Committee is organized with an elaborate subcommittee structure which was ignored during the processing of this bill. Parliamentary procedure, especially in deliberations on the pay provisions in the bill, was marked by great confusion, with arbitrary termination of discussion the order of the day. Constant lobbying pressure by administration officials and employee union spokesmen produced numerous changes and counter-changes. The bill which finally emerged from committee is a rate and salary legislative catchall in which the few meritorious features are far outweighed by its controversial and unwise provisions.

Rate burden placed on first-class mail

With respect to the rate increases it should be pointed out that first-class and air mail, now showing a profit, bears the burden of providing over one-half of the increased postal revenues or $518 million. First-class mail now pays more than its own way and under the bill it will pay 23 percent more than its allocated costs.

If this increase is approved by Congress it simply means that first-class letter mail rates will have been increased 50 percent within a 4-year period. But what is more significant is the fact that there has been a steady deterioration of mail service during the same period of time. And there is not even the slightest indication that this additional revenue will be used to improve the mail service.

We agree with the chairman of the Senate Post Office and Civil Service Committee, Senator A. S. Mike Monroney, when he stated on February 24, 1967:

If we are going to increase the price of the first-class stamp by 20 percent, then the American public is entitled to a similar percentage increase in service.

As a matter of fact, it is interesting to note that on September 21, 1967, the same day the committee approved postal rate increases, the Postmaster General announced the expenditure of nearly $300 million in the next 9 months for hardware and mechanized equipment, including 16 closed circuit TV systems in an attempt to discover faulty mail handling operations.

The exaggerated claims that these devices or "gimmicks" will improve the postal service is open to serious question.

In ridiculing the Eisenhower administration for similar expenditures, former Deputy Postmaster General H. W. Brawley stated on June 1, 1961:

It does little or no good to move a batch of mail through a post office on conveyor belts—to have it sorted by electronic eyes and canceled by automatic devices—if, at the end of its breathless and eye-catching journey it must wait overnight for the train or the plane which will carry it on its way toward its ultimate destination.

Unnecessary spending should be eliminated

We believe that either with or without a postal rate increase all of the frills and unnecessary domestic Government expenditures should be eliminated, particularly during this critical time of war in Vietnam. The President has said that this is the time for cutting nonmilitary Government expenditures. We agree, so it seems incongruous that the Postmaster General would announce at this time unnecessary expenditures equal to more than one-third of the first year's increased postal revenues.

The other provisions of the postal rate increase portion of the bill are incapable of objective consideration. The newspapers and Post Office Department lobbyists have hammered at the committee members to such an extent that it is impossible to properly evaluate the postal rate increases provided for second-, third-, and fourth-class mail. Whether these rate increases are excessive or inadequate is impossible to determine due to the fact the bill was rammed through the committee. And at the end of the final session there were a number of amendments proposed by members which did not receive consideration. The confusion which existed and the frustration of a majority of the members of the committee is unbelievable.

Cost ascertainment figures questioned

The rate increases contained in this legislation are based on the cost ascertainment report of the Post Office Department, which is the statement of revenue and cost of handling which is allocated to each class of mail. Time and time again these figures and the method of allocating costs to the various categories of mail were seriously questioned. Many witnesses at the hearings, and in fact many members of the committee, expressed honest concern that the Post Office Department figures are not representative of the true cost of handling each class of mail.

The full committee had no opportunity whatever to study the cost ascertainment figures on which the rate increases are based. We believe that the Department's figures on cost ascertainment should not be blindly accepted and that therefore all rate adjustments are suspect because they are based on questionable and dubious statistics.

We believe that before any postal rate increases are provided the entire mail classification system now in effect should be reviewed by the Post Office and Civil Service Committees of the Congress.

While second-class mailers are not too unhappy with the bill as passed by the committee and third-class mailers are predictably aggrieved, we must note that John Q. Public was unrepresented before the committee. Therefore, first-class mail rates are subject to substantial increases in the bill. It shouldn't be necessary to point out to second-class mailers that as the Post Office deficit again grows the need for a rate increase will reappear in 4 to 6 years and very limited increases will remain to be squeezed out of first- and third-class mail rates. The next go around will find second-class mailers the main target remaining within the postal department rate structure.

The committee confusion was accentuated when the chairman of the Subcommittee on Postal Rates acquiesced to a series of confusing adjustments and reversals of subcommittee recommendations. There were 15 sessions devoted to the rate section of the bill. It is interesting to note that the pay section, which is in its own right controversial and complex, was pushed through the committee in 2½ working sessions.

We believe the House should reject this bill and return it to the Post Office and Civil Service Committee for more complete and objective consideration.

FEDERAL SALARY INCREASES

Title II of the bill provides salary increases for all Federal employees, except so-called "wage-board" employees. Such salary increases apply not only this year but additional annual increases are provided for several years to come.

In his message to the Congress on April 5, 1967, the President made only one specific recommendation. He said, "I recommend a 4.5-percent pay increase for civilian employees effective October 1, 1967."

The proponents of this bill have blown this seemingly modest recommendation, which would have cost the taxpayers $558 million annually, into a pay increase proposal which by fiscal year 1970 will cost $2,657 million annually or about five times greater than was requested by the President.

The provisions of this title II, which provide pay increases beyond this year, erroneously assume that the Congress will be incapable of acting on pay adjustments for Federal employees in the future. As a matter of fact, three of the six increases provided for (one for postal employees in April 1969 and two for classified employees in July 1968 and April 1969) are completely undefined in the bill and the authority to determine the amount of such pay increases is delegated to the President without congressional approval.

By reason of the above provisions in the bill it is impossible to predict the real cost of the legislation. We believe it could easily exceed $3 billion annually when it is fully effective.

Abdication of jurisdiction over salaries not desirable.

Nowhere in the President's message on civilian employee pay increases is there the slightest suggestion that Congress should delegate him such powers. If it is the purpose of the proponents of the bill that Congress shall abdicate its jurisdiction over the salaries and pay of Federal employees the approval of title II will go a long way toward that goal. We do not agree that this is desirable.

The precedent-shattering nature of these provisions of title II is so shocking that we are not certain that the rank and file of Federal employees are aware of their implications. For example, if title II becomes law a simple amendment to that law in the future changing only three dates will extend the President's authority over adjustments for Federal employees forever, and the function of Congress in this area will be eliminated, as it is for the next 3 years under this bill.

The committee action in delegating authority to the President to make pay adjustments for Federal employees based upon the comparability policy established in section 5301 of title 5 of the U.S. Code, is contrary to existing law. Section 5302 of title 5 of the U.S. Code specifically requires the President to submit reports annually to the Congress with respect to bringing Federal employees' salaries in line with comparable pay rates in private enterprise. And section 5302(2)(B) of title 5 of the U.S. Code states specifically: "Such recommendations for revision of statutory pay schedules, pay structures, and pay policy, as he (the President) considers advisable", shall be submitted annually to the Congress. Nowhere in existing law is there provision for the delegation of powers such as are provided in this legislation.

While the committee has insisted on tying Federal salaries, including those of postal employees, with the rate legislation, there is, in fact, little relationship between postal rate increases and increased salary of employees.

Adequate consideration not given pay provisions

Again, we cannot overemphasize the fact that the full committee never adequately considered the pay provisions of this bill. Also we stress that because of the limitations imposed during the consideration of this title, many members were denied the opportunity to offer amendments.

Politics in postal service

In standard labor-management relations, it is an accepted principle that wage increases are in some way related to productivity. This principle has never been adopted in Federal circles. One underlying problem in the operation of the Post Office Department is its complete domination by politics and the use of the Department by politically oriented interests.

It is an open secret that in major post offices, such as in Chicago, assignment, promotion, advancement, and even entrance into the postal field service are made on a political basis. The net result is a frustration of dedicated citizens who have an honest desire to devote their skills and ability to a career in the postal service. Efficient administration would require a stimulus for proper promotion of employees based on merit. The political operation of the Post Office Department discourages this.

In line with this, legislation has been sponsored (among such sponsors are Mr. Gross and Mr. Derwinski) aimed at increasing the efficiency of the Post Office Department by eliminating political activity through appropriate sanctions and revising the term of office of the Postmaster General and other top officials. The Postmaster General has himself suggested creating a non-Government corporate organization to operate the postal service. We should take him at his word and our committee's attention should next be devoted to this possibility.

Powers granted under Quadrennial Commission excessive

The powers granted the President under section 216 of the bill are even more offensive to the public interest, if that is possible. Under this section a Quadrennial Commission is created beginning in 1969 to recommend to the President the pay, expenses, and allowances for Members of Congress, Federal judges, heads and assistant heads of the executive departments and agencies, and other officials. Based upon the Commission's findings, the President is to include his own recommendation to the Congress in his budget with respect to the exact rates of pay and the exact amounts and kinds of expenses and allowances for the Federal officials cited above.

Up to this point such a provision is unnecessary, because indeed the President has the responsibility to recommend legislation which he believes will improve the operations of the Federal Government.

However, section 216 continues by providing that such recommendations by the President shall become effective 30 days after transmittal of the budget unless the Congress by specific action rejects the President's proposal.

A violation of doctrine of separation of powers

We consider this provision of doubtful constitutionality and certainly it is a violation of the time-honored "doctrine of the separation of powers" upon which our system of government is based.

The most precise declaration of the "doctrine of the separation of powers" occurs in the Massachusetts Declaration of Rights of 1780:

In the government of this commonwealth, the legislative department shall never exercise the executive and judicial powers, or either of them: The executive shall never exercise the legislative and judicial powers, or either of them: the judicial shall never exercise the legislative and executive powers, or either of them: to the end it may be a government of laws and not of men.

Again, we say that there is not one scintilla of evidence or testimony that the President desires such broad powers over salaries and expenses of Federal judges, Members of Congress, or even his own appointees in the executive branch.

Moreover, such presidential power over the pay, expenses and allowances of the top officials of our Government could lead to abuse and intimidation. In some future administration, judicial decisions could be influenced, executive branch policies could be altered, decisions of quasi-judicial boards or commissions could be changed and undue pressures could be brought to bear on the Congress if such powers were abused either by the Chief Executive or by his assistants who pretended to speak for him.

We favor proper pay adjustments for Federal employees in 1967, but we do not believe such provisions should be incorporated in this postal rate increase bill.

Further, we believe that such 1967 pay increases for Federal employees should not be jeopardized by including in the same bill provision for future pay increases to be determined exclusively by a President who is yet to be elected.

Blank check commitment is dangerous

There is another alarming aspect to committing the Federal Government to a $2 billion increase in Federal payroll costs in the next 18 months without further action of the Congress.

The unsettled, uncertain condition of our economy, military commitments and status of our national debt, are such that a blank check commitment of this nature could be extremely dangerous. The times in which we live, if never before, require extreme fluidity in meeting the day-to-day challenges that threaten our entire existence.

Eighteen months from now conditions may be such that we will be calling upon all Americans, including Federal employees, for sacrifices in the national interest. We could very possibly have runaway inflation that would require holding the line everywhere on wage and price increases.

It is interesting to note that in the recent past serious consideration was given to the imposition of mandatory wage and price controls on our Nation's economy, and if such should happen in the future how could we justify writing a blank check now for future wage increases that may be contrary to any situation existing at that time?

It must not be overlooked that the automatic future pay raises called for in this bill all occur in the same fiscal year, and place an unconscionable burden on any budget that any President may submit for that fiscal year.

It is simply unrealistic, if not completely irresponsible, for the Congress to issue a postdated blank check without knowing how much money might be in the bank or what the financial condition might be at the time the check is cashed.

Congress would be relegated to rubber stamp function

Another dangerous feature embodied in title II is its cynical philosophy. These provisions simply mean that Congress should no longer exercise its constitutional jurisdiction in cooperation with the executive branch, over the pay, expenses, and allowances of Federal employees, generally.

We believe the provisions of title II relegate the Congress to a mere "rubber stamp" function with respect to these matters. We are aware that there are those in high places in the executive branch who for years have deprecated the functions and activities of the Congress. They have sought the power and authority over Federal employees, the Federal courts and the Congress, which would be granted to the executive branch under the provisions of title II.

We hope our colleagues in the House reject this philosophy of Government which destroys the "doctrine of the separation of powers," and we ask that they support us in rejecting the bill, particularly the provisions in title II discussed above.

Basic compensation shall be paid to postmasters in post offices of the fourth class in accordance with this schedule.

[(b) The basic salary of postmasters in fourth-class post offices shall be readjusted for changes in revenue units at the start of the first pay period after January 1 of each year. When a post office is restored to a revenue unit category held by it prior to relegation to a lower revenue unit category, the postmaster's basic salary may be adjusted to the highest salary step held by him when the post office was in the higher revenue unit category. In all other cases, in adjusting a postmaster's basic salary under this section, the basic salary shall be fixed at the lowest step which is higher than the basic salary received by the postmaster at the end of the preceding calendar year. If there is no such step the basic salary shall be fixed at the highest step for the adjusted revenue units of the office. Each increase in basic salary because of change in revenue units shall be deemed the equivalent of a step increase under section 3552 of this title and the waiting period, for purposes of advancement to the next step, shall begin on the date of adjustment.

[(c) The basic salaries of postmasters at newly established offices of the fourth class shall be fixed at the lowest salary rate. Whenever unusual conditions prevail at any post office of the fourth class the Postmaster General may advance such office to the appropriate category based on his estimate of the number of revenue units which the office will have during the succeeding twelve months. Any fourth-class office advanced to the appropriate category pursuant to this subsection shall not be reduced in category until the start of the first pay period after January 1 of the calendar year following the calendar year in which it was so advanced, at which time it shall be assigned to the category indicated by the revenue units for the preceding fiscal year.

[(d) Persons who perform the duties of postmaster at post offices of the fourth class where there is a vacancy or during the absence of the postmaster on sick or annual leave, or leave without pay, shall be paid the same basic salary to which they would have been entitled if regularly appointed as postmaster.

[(e) The Postmaster General may allow to postmasters in fourth-class post offices additional compensation for separating services and for unusual conditions during a portion of the year, in lieu of an allowance for clerical services for this purpose.

[(f) At seasonal post offices of the fourth class, the Postmaster General may authorize the payment of the basic salary prorated over the pay periods the office is open for business during the fiscal year.

[(g) Where the revenue units of a post office of the third class for each of two consecutive fiscal years are less than 36, or where in any fiscal year the revenue units are less than 33, the post office shall be relegated to the fourth class and the basic salary of the postmaster shall be fixed in the manner provided in subsection (b) of this section.

[(h) When required by the Postmaster General a postmaster at a fourth-class office shall, and any other postmaster in PFS level 5 when permitted by the Postmaster General may, furnish quarters, fixtures, and equipment for an office on an allowance basis. The allowance for this purpose shall be an amount equal to 15 per centum of the basic compensation for the postmaster at the office.]

§ 3544. Compensation of postmasters at fourth-class offices

(a) The Postmaster General shall—

(1) rank each position of postmaster at a post office of the fourth class in salary level 6 of the Postal Field Service Schedule; and

(2) establish, and adjust from time to time, the annual rate of basic compensation, for each such position of postmaster so ranked, in an amount which bears the same ratio to the annual rate of basic compensation for full-time service in a position (other than postmaster at a post office of the fourth class) in the same step of salary level 6 of such schedule, as the total number of hours of service which the Postmaster General determines necessary to be performed by such postmaster to operate the post office, in the light of the postal needs of the patrons of the office, bears to the total number of hours of such full-time service.

Actions and determinations by the Postmaster General under this subsection shall be final and conclusive until changed by him.

(b) A person who performs the duties of postmaster at a post office of the fourth class where there is a vacancy, or during the absence of the postmaster on sick or annual leave or leave without pay, shall be compensated at the rate of basic compensation for step 1 of salary level 6 of the Postal Field Service Schedule, determined under subsection (a) of this section.

(c) When required by the Postmaster General, a postmaster at a fourth-class office shall, and any other postmaster in PFS level 6 when permitted by the Postmaster General may, furnish quarters, fixtures, and equipment for an office on an allowance basis. The allowance for this purpose shall be an amount equal to 15 per centum of the basic compensation for step 1 of salary level 6 of the Postal Field Service Schedule.

(1) basic salary and salary level, with respect to the Postal Field Service Schedule,

(2) salary for the particular route (including additional compensation for forty hours and under for serving heavily patronized routes), with respect to the Rural Carrier Schedule, and

(3) [revenue unit category, with respect to the Fourth-Class Office Schedule] minimum hours of service with respect to postmasters in fourth-class post offices.

(b) Subject to the provisions of subsection (c) of this section, each employee—

(1) who at any time on or after July 1, 1961, is or was reduced in salary standing;

§ 5545. Night, Sunday, standby, irregular, and hazardous duty differential.

(a) Except as provided by subsection (b) of this section, nightwork is regularly scheduled work between the hours of 6:00 p.m. and 6:00 a.m., and includes—

- (1) periods of absence with pay during these hours due to holidays; and
- (2) periods of leave with pay during these hours if the periods of leave with pay during a pay period total less than 8 hours.

Except as otherwise provided by subsection (c) of this section, an employee is entitled to pay for nightwork at his rate of basic pay plus premium pay amounting to 10 percent of that basic rate. This subsection and subsection (b) of this section do not modify section 180 of title 31, or other statute authorizing additional pay for nightwork.

(b) The head of an agency may designate a time after 6:00 p.m. and a time before 6:00 a.m. as the beginning and end, respectively, of nightwork for the purpose of subsection (a) of this section, at a post outside the United States where the customary hours of business extend into the hours of nightwork provided by subsection (a) of this section.

(c) The head of an agency, with the approval of the Civil Service Commission, may provide that—

(1) an employee in a position requiring him regularly to remain at, or within the confines of, his station during longer than ordinary periods of duty, a substantial part of which consists of remaining in a standby status rather than performing work, shall receive premium pay for this duty on an annual basis instead of premium pay provided by other provisions of this subchapter, except for irregular, unscheduled overtime duty in excess of his regularly scheduled weekly tour. Premium pay under this paragraph is determined as an appropriate percentage, [not in excess of 25 percent] not less than 20 per centum or more than 30 per centum, of such part of the rate of basic pay for the position as does not exceed the minimum rate of basic pay for GS-10, by taking into consideration the number of hours of actual work required in the position, the number of hours required in a standby status at or within the confines of the station, the extent to which the duties of the position are made more onerous by night, Sunday, or holiday work, or by being extended over periods of more than 40 hours a week, and other relevant factors;

(k)(1) An employee who enters on approved leave without pay to serve as a full-time officer or employee of an organization composed primarily of employees as defined by section 8331(1) of this title, or of a "labor organization" as defined by paragraph (3) of this subsection, within 60 days after entering on that leave without pay, may file with his employing agency an election to receive full retirement credit for his periods of that leave without pay and arrange to pay currently into the Fund, through his employing agency, amounts equal to the retirement deductions and agency contributions that would be applicable if he were in pay status. If the election and all payments provided by this paragraph are not made, the employee may not receive credit for the periods of leave without pay occurring after July 17, 1966, notwithstanding the second sentence of subsection (f) of this section. [For the purpose of the preceding sentence, "employee" includes an employee who was on approved leave without pay and serving as a fulltime officer or employee of such an organization on July 18, 1966, and who filed a similar election before September 17, 1966.]

(2) An employee may deposit with interest an amount equal to retirement deductions representing any period or periods of approved leave without pay while serving, before July 18 1966, as a full-time officer or employee of an organization composed primarily of employees as defined by section 8331(1) of this title. An employee who makes the deposit shall be allowed full retirement credit for the period or periods of leave without pay. If the employee dies, a survivor as defined by section 8331(10) of this title may make the deposit. If the deposit is not made in full, retirement credit shall be allowed in accordance with the second sentence of subsection (f) of this section or of a "labor organization" as defined by paragraph (3) of this subsection.

(3) For the purposes of this subsection, "labor organization" means any organization of any kind, or any agency or employee representation committee or plan, in which employees participate and which exists for the purpose, in whole or in part, of dealing with employers concerning grievances, labor disputes, wages, rates of pay, hours of employment, or conditions of work, and includes a national or international organization of which such labor organization is a member.

§ 8706. Termination of insurance.

(e) Notwithstanding subsections (a)-(c) of this section, an employee who enters on approved leave without pay to serve as a full-time officer or employee of an organization composed primarily of employees as defined by section 8701(a) of this title, or of a "labor organization" as defined by section 8332(k)(3) of this title, within 60 days after entering on that leave without pay, may elect to continue his insurance and arrange to pay currently into the Employees' Life Insurance Fund, through his employing agency, both employee and agency contributions from the beginning of leave without pay. The employing agency shall forward the premium payments to the Fund. If the employee does not so elect, his insurance will continue during nonpay status and stop as provided by subsection (a) of this section.

§ 8906. Contributions.

(e)(1) An employee enrolled in a health benefits plan under this chapter who is placed in a leave without pay status may have his coverage and the coverage of members of his family continued under the plan for not to exceed 1 year under regulations prescribed by the Commission. The regulations may provide for the waiving of contributions by the employee and the Government.

(2) An employee who enters on approved leave without pay to serve as a full-time officer or employee of an organization composed primarily of employees as defined by section 8901 of this title, or of a "labor organization" as defined by section 8332(k)(3) of this title, within 60 days after entering on that leave without pay, may file with his employing agency an election to continue his health benefits enrollment and arrange to pay currently into the Employees Health Benefits Fund, through his employing agency, both employee and agency contributions from the beginning of leave without pay. The employing agency shall forward the enrollment charges so paid to the Fund. If the employee does not so elect, his enrollment will continue during non-pay status and end as provided by paragraph (1) of this subsection and implementing regulations.

Postal Reform Bill, including Employee Management Title (7).*

91ST CONGRESS
1ST SESSION

H. R. 4

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

JANUARY 3, 1969

Mr. DULSKI introduced the following bill; which was referred to the Committee on Post Office and Civil Service

A BILL

To modernize the United States postal establishment, to provide for efficient and economical postal service to the public, to improve postal employee-management relations, and for other purposes.

1 Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representa-
2 tives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,
3 That this Act may be cited as the "Postal Reform Act of 4 1969".

5 TITLE I—CONGRESSIONAL FINDINGS WITH
6 RESPECT TO POSTAL REFORM

7 SEC. 101. (a) The Congress hereby finds that—

8 (1) the United States postal establishment, as 9 now constituted, has not been given the means, and can-

1 not be expected, to continue to provide—and certainly
 2 not to extend—the present quality and scope of postal
 3 service in the face of the tremendous increases in mail
 4 volume expected in the future;

5 (2) serious handicaps are imposed on the postal 6 establishment by certain legislative, budgetary, finan-
 7 cial, and personnel policies that are outmoded, unneces-
 8 sary, and inconsistent with the modern management and 9 business practices which should be available to a Post-
 10 master General as aids in the performance of his heavy
 11 responsibility to provide efficient and economical postal 12 service to the American public;

13 (3) the existing limitations imposed by various 14 laws on the authority of the Postmaster General to pro-
 15 cure transportation for mail are so rigid as to frequently 16 prevent the most expeditious and economic movement of 17 mail, and, therefore, a revision of such laws, in order
 18 to provide greater flexibility to the Postmaster General
 19 in this regard, will facilitate more rapid and less expen-
 20 sive delivery of the mail, permit more economic utiliza-
 21 tion of the Nation's transportation resources, and en-
 22 courage more rapid and imaginative development of new 23 transportation facilities;

24 (4) the working environment of the majority of 25 postal employees, which has been described as no less

1 than disgraceful in many instances, seldom approaches
 2 those desirable standards long observed in modern pro-
 3 gressive industrial organizations;

4 (5) the public interest demands, and it is the re-
 5 sponsibility of the Congress to provide, prompt and 6 effective measures to remove these handicaps and limi-
 7 tations on the postal establishment, to give postal man-
 8 agement the means to improve the value and the scope
 9 of postal service at lowest possible rates and fees, and to 10 create a lasting foundation for a modern, dynamic, and 11 viable postal institution that is both equipped and em-
 12 powered at all times to satisfy the postal requirements 13 of the future economic, cultural, and social growth of 14 the Nation;

15 (6) the major areas to which corrective measures
 16 should be first directed are—

17 (A) the strengthening of top-level postal 18 management authority—consistent with the level of 19 responsibility;

20 (B) the provision of critically needed capital
 21 funds, with a necessary measure of access and con-
 22 trol by top management, and a program for the 23 systematic review and adjustment of postal reve-
 24 nues coupled with an effective authorization for the 25 use of revenues for payment of current expenses;

1 (C) the clarification of postal transportation
2 policy;

3 (D) the modernization of postal employee-
4 management relations and employees' working en-
5 vironment; and

6 (E) the establishment and maintenance of an 7 orderly, effective system for the fixing of fair and 8 reasonable postal rates and fees; and

9 (7) the needed postal reforms can best be accom-
10 plished, and should be accomplished—within the frame-
11 work of the historic philosophy and the fundamental 12 principles upon which the Government is founded—13 without radically changing the traditional character of 14 the postal service as a direct duty of the Government,
15 effectuated through the delegation of authority and re-
16 sponsibility to the executive departments and agencies
17 in a manner that will be most consistent with the gen-
18 eral welfare and fully responsive to the interests and the 19 needs of the public.

20 (b) It is, therefore, the purpose of this Act to provide 21 a means for—

22 (1) the accomplishment of the modernization of 23 the postal establishment;

24 (2) the provision of rapid, efficient, and economical
25 postal service to the public;

1 (3) the improvement of postal employee-manage-
2 ment relations; and

3 (4) the achievement of postal reform generally.

4 TITLE II—APPOINTMENT OF POSTMASTERS

5 SEC. 201. (a) Section 3311 (relating to method of ap-
6 pointment of postmasters) of title 39, United States Code,

21 master at a post office of any class without regard to any 22 recommendation or statement, oral or written, with respect
23 to any person who requests, or is under consideration for,

5 for, appointment to a position of postmaster at a post office
6 of any class is hereby prohibited from requesting or solicit-
7 ing any such recommendation or statement from any person
8 or organization within the purview of subparagraph (1);
9 (2), (3), or (4) of subsection (c) of this section. Any 10 person making such solicitation or request, knowing the 11 same to be in violation of this subsection, is disqualified for 12 appointment to the position of postmaster concerned.

13 “(f) Each application or informational form of the 14 Federal Government used in connection with an application
15 for appointment to a position of postmaster at a post office
16 of any class shall contain appropriate language, in con-
17 spicuous and legible type in contrast by typography, layout,
18 or color with other printing in the application or informa-
19 tional form, informing the applicant of the provisions of this 20 section.

21 “(g) This section shall not be held or considered to 22 prohibit—

23 “(1) the solicitation, acceptance, and consideration
24 by the Postmaster General or other authorized officer or 25 employee of the Federal Government, or

1 “(2) the furnishing and transmission to the Post-
2 master General or such authorized officer or employee
3 by any other individual or organization,
4 of any statement with respect to a person who requests, or is
5 under consideration for, appointment to a position of post-
6 master, if—

7 “(A) the statement is furnished pursuant to a
8 request or requirement of the Postmaster General
9 and consists solely of an evaluation of the work per-
10 formance, ability, aptitude, and general qualifications
11 of an employee in the postal service who is under

17 of subsection (c) of this section pursuant to a re-
18 quest made by an authorized representative of the 19 Federal Government solely in order to determine
20 whether the person who requests, or is under con-
21 sideration for, appointment to a position of post-
22 master meets—

23 “(i) the loyalty, suitability, and character
24 requirements for employment with the Federal
25 Government;

1 “(ii) the residence requirements for post-
2 masters imposed by section 3312 of this title; or

3 “(iii) both; or

8 General, and consists solely of an evaluation of the 9 work performance, ability, aptitude, and general
10 qualifications of such person during his employment
11 with such former employer.”.

13 in positions of postmaster) of title 39, United States Code, 14 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new 15 subsection:

16 “(d) The prohibitions, restrictions, exceptions, and re-

- 1 (1) postmasters in office; and

6 failure to perform is due to the fault of the carrier, the Post-
7 master General may deduct a sum not exceeding three times
8 the compensation applicable to such service.

9 “§ 6208. Interstate Commerce Commission to fix rates.

10 “(a) The Commission shall determine, and fix from time 11 to time, the fair and reasonable rates of compensation for the 12 transportation of mail by carrier and the service connected
13 therewith, and shall prescribe the method for computing
14 such rates of compensation. The Commission shall publish 15 its orders stating its determinations under this section which 16 shall remain in force until changed by it after notice and 17 hearing.

18 “(b) For the purpose of determining and fixing rates of 19 compensation under this section, the Commission may make 20 just and reasonable classifications of carriers and, where just 21 and equitable, fix general rates applicable to carriers in the 22 same classification.

23 “(c) In determining and fixing fair and reasonable

1 rates under this section, the Commission shall consider the 2 relation between carriers, as public corporations, and the 3 Government, and the nature of the public service as distin-
 4 guished, if there is a distinction, from the ordinary transpor-
 5 tation business of the carriers.

6 “§ 6209. Procedures

7 “(a) The initial rates of compensation at which mail
 8 shall be transported by carriers pursuant to the provisions
 9 of this chapter shall be the rates of compensation described
 10 in the statement or statements of service issued by the Post-
 11 master General under section 6203 of this chapter.

12 “(b) At any time after six months from the issuance 13 by the Postmaster General of a statement of service and 14 initial rates, or at any time after six months from the entry
 15 of an order by the Commission fixing rates of compensation
 16 for the transportation of mail as provided in subsection (c)
 17 of this section, the Postmaster General, any carrier, or a
 18 group of such carriers may file with the Commission a peti-
 19 tion requesting an investigation of the initial rates of com-
 20 pensation or of the rates of compensation fixed by the 21 Commission.

22 “(c) Upon the filing of a petition under subsection
 23 (b) of this section, and for good cause shown, the Com-
 24 mission shall promptly institute an investigation to deter-
 25 mine and fix fair and reasonable rates of compensation for

1 the transportation of mail by common carriers, and the 2 services in connection therewith, and shall prescribe the 3 method for computing such rates of compensation. Rates of 4 compensation fixed by the Commission pursuant to this 5 subsection shall have effect prospectively from the date the 6 Commission's order fixing such rates of compensation is 7 issued or such later date as the Commission shall prescribe
 8 in its order.

9 “(d) Except as authorized by sections 6210 and 6214
 10 of this title, or the applicable provisions of any other law, the 11 Postmaster General shall pay a carrier the rates of compen-
 12 sation so determined and fixed for application at such stated
 13 times as named in the order.

14 “(e) The Postmaster General may file with the Com-
 15 mission a comprehensive plan, stating—

16 “(1) his requirements for the transportation of 17 mail by carrier;

18 “(2) the number, equipment, size, and construction
 19 of the cars or motor vehicles necessary for the transpor-

22 to an agreement.

23 “(2) If such efforts to bring about a settlement
24 through mediation and conciliation are unsuccessful, then
25 either party to the controversy is authorized to invoke

3 “§ 3709. Creation of Postal Labor-Management Relations

 19 restitution of monetary loss, and such other compensatory

 23 or otherwise knowing violation of this chapter, may recom-
 24 mend that the Postmaster General discipline the offending
 25 party by demotion, suspension, removal, or such other reme-

1 dial action as the Panel deems advisable. The Postmaster
 2 General shall consider any such recommendation of the 3 Panel and take such action thereon as he determines to be
 4 proper in the light of all of the pertinent facts and circum-

 14 and documents) are made applicable to the jurisdiction,
 15 powers, and duties of the Panel.

16 “(d) Any person who shall wilfully resist, prevent,

 25 it may consider to be appropriate.

1 “(f) If the Panel is unable to assist the parties in 2 arriving at a settlement through other means, the Panel or its
3 designee shall promptly hold hearings at which both parties
4 shall be given a full opportunity to present their respective 5 cases.

6 “(g) At the conclusion of the hearings, the Panel shall,
7 with due dispatch, render its decision in writing on the mat-

10 binding upon all parties.

11 “(h) Employees of the Department called upon by 12 either party to participate in any phase of the Panel proceed-

20 this section.

21 “(b) Any employee, or a labor organization which has

3 writing and must receive the written consent of said labor
4 organization in order to have the grievance submitted to 5 arbitration: Provided further, That the labor organization
6 may initiate grievances and arbitration proceedings on its own
7 behalf.

8 “(c) Grievance procedures shall be established in nego-
9 tiations between representatives of labor organizations which 10 have achieved exclusive recognition and representatives of 11 the Department. Such procedures shall include, but shall not 12 be restricted to, procedures assuring employees—

13 “(1) the right to be represented by their labor
14 organization;

15 “(2) fixed and reasonable time limits for a deci-
16 sion at each grievance step; and

17 “(3) the right to call, question, and cross-examine 18 witnesses.

19 “(d) The arbitration procedure shall be as follows:

20 “(1) Any grievance not satisfactorily settled in the 21 grievance process shall be subject to arbitration upon 22 the written request of the labor organization which has 23 achieved exclusive recognition for the craft of the em-

8 striking off four names. The name of the person remain-
9 ing on the list shall be arbitrator in that case.

10 “(3) The decision of the arbitrator shall be final
11 and binding. The fee and expenses of the arbitrator and
12 the general expenses incident to the arbitration shall be
13 paid by the Secretary of Labor from an arbitration fund
14 created for such purpose. No employee of the Depart-
15 ment involved in the arbitration shall suffer any loss in 16 pay because of his participation in the proceedings,
17 either as a witness, aggrieved employee, or employee
18 representative.

19 “(e) Department employees called upon by either
20 party to participate in any phase of the grievance procedure,
21 including arbitration, shall be free to do so without suffering

1 any loss of pay, and all such employees shall be free from
2 restraint, coercion, interference, intimidation, or reprisal
3 as a consequence of their participation.

4 “§ 3712. Violations and enforcement

5 “(a) It shall be unlawful for anyone to violate or re-
6 fuse to comply with a decision or order of the Panel rendered
7 pursuant to sections 3708 or 3710 of this chapter or of an 8 arbitrator rendered pursuant to section 3711 of this chapter.

9 “(b) The district courts of the United States, upon 10 petition of an aggrieved party, shall have jurisdiction for 11 cause shown to restrain any violation of subsection (a) of 12 this section, to require compliance with any decision or order

14 and to afford interim relief.

15 “§ 3713. Separability of provisions

16 “If any provision of this chapter, or the application
17 of such provision to any person or circumstance, shall be 18 held invalid, the remainder of this chapter or the application
19 of such provision to persons or circumstances other than 20 those as to which it is held invalid, shall not be affected
21 thereby.”

7 ing them, and to their right to organize, applies with equal
8 force and effect with respect to supervisors and supervisors’

15 postal field service, but does not include any postmaster;

16 “‘supervisors’ organization’ means any national or-17 ganization and its affiliates, composed of supervisors of 18 the Department, in which supervisors participate and

1 pay dues, and which has, as one of its basic and central
2 purposes, dealing with management of the Department
3 concerning terms and conditions of employment, but 4 shall not include (1) any organization whose basic pur-
5 pose is purely social, fraternal, or limited to special in-
6 terest objectives which are only incidentally related to 7 terms and conditions of employment, (2) any organiza-
8 tion which by ritualistic practice, constitution, or bylaws
9 proscription, by tacit agreement among its members or 10 otherwise, denies membership because of race, color,
11 religion, national origin, sex, age, or preferential or 12 nonpreferential civil service status, or (3) any organiza-
13 tion sponsored by the Department or by any agency,
14 activity, or organization of the Federal Government;

15 “‘representative’ means any representative of a 16 supervisors’ organization, whether an employee or non-
17 employee of the Department;

18 “‘agreement’ means any collective-bargaining
19 agreement negotiated pursuant to the provisions of this
20 chapter;

21 “‘dispute’ includes any controversy concerning
22 terms, tenure, or conditions of employment, or concern-

1 range terms or conditions of employment, regardless of 2 whether the disputants stand in the proximate relation
3 of employer and employee;

4 “‘grievance’ means any cause of dissatisfaction out-
5 side a supervisor’s control if the matter arises out of 6 employment in the postal field service and the remedy
7 sought is within the authority of the Department, in-

9 of discrimination, any other complaint by any supervisor
10 against the Department concerning the effect, inter-
11 pretation, or application of a collective bargaining

13 lation governing conditions of employment which the 14 Department has the authority to correct;

15 “‘adverse action’ means any action which results in 16 (1) any suspension for any reason of a supervisor from 17 his job, (2) any discharge from employment, (3) any 18 furlough without pay, (4) any reduction in rank or

15 views, including objections or suggestions, before final
16 action is taken. Such consultation shall permit sufficient
17 time for the representatives of the supervisors’ organi-
18 zation to present formal agreement or objection to man-

 5 nizations submit a verifiable certified membership list of not
 6 more than 50 per centum and not less than 30 per centum
 7 of the total number of employees within the craft, a secret
 8 national ballot election shall be scheduled within a period of 9 sixty days from the date of submission.

10 “(b) The right of a supervisors' organization to selec-
 11 tion as exclusive representative on a national basis where an 12 election is necessary shall be decided by a national secret
 13 ballot election with the right of such selection being awarded
 14 to the supervisors' organization receiving a majority of valid
 15 votes cast in the election. If no supervisors' organization
 16 secures a majority of all valid votes cast but a majority of 17 all votes cast are for representation by some supervisors'
 18 organization, then a runoff election shall be held within sixty
 19 days thereafter, between the two supervisors' organizations
 20 securing the largest number of votes, to determine the super-

 23 Labor under rules and regulations promulgated by the Secre-
 24 tary of Labor. Any dispute or disagreement as to eligibility
 25 of a supervisors' organization or an employee to participate

1 in the selection of an exclusive representative shall be re-
 2 solved by the Department of Labor pursuant to regulations
 3 established by the Secretary of Labor. Such regulations shall 4 include provision for binding arbitration of any such dispute
 5 or disagreement.

6 “(c) The Department shall accord exclusive recogni-

 10 organization and the affiliates thereof at installation, regional,
 11 and other levels within the Department.

12 “(d) Recognition of a supervisors' organization shall 13 continue unless withdrawn pursuant to the provisions of this 14 chapter. The Department shall not determine whether a 15 supervisors' organization shall become or continue to be 16 recognized as exclusive representative of the supervisors in 17 any unit within twenty-four months after a determination
 18 of exclusive status, or while an agreement is in effect with 19 respect to such unit.

20 “(e) When a supervisors' organization has been recog-

 24 national and local installation levels and it shall be respon-
 25 sible for representing the interests of all such supervisors.

1 Such a supervisors' organization shall have the right to par-
 2 ticipate with management in the formulation, implementa-
 3 tion, and modification of personnel policies and practices, and 4 all other matters, affecting the conditions of employment of 5 supervisors in the unit. The Department and such super-
 6 visors' organization, through appropriate officials and repre-
 7 sentatives, shall meet at reasonable times for the purposes of 8 consultation as defined in this chapter. The Department and 9 the recognized supervisors' organization shall be required to 10 negotiate in good faith for the purpose of arriving at an 11 agreement at any level. Such obligation to bargain shall 12 include the determination of appropriate bargaining tech-
 13 niques and the inclusion of any understanding reached by 14 the parties in a written agreement. In exercising authority to 15 make rules and regulations relating to personnel policies and 16 practices or to working conditions, the Department may not

 23 except as hereafter may be agreed to by the parties thereto,
 24 until superseded by an agreement made pursuant to this
 25 chapter.

1 “§ 3905. Dues checkoff

2 “Where the Department has received from any super-
 3 visor a written assignment which authorizes the Department
 4 to deduct from the wages of such supervisor money for the 5 payment of membership dues in a supervisors' organization,
 6 such assignment shall be honored, except that any such 7 assignment shall not be irrevocable for a period of more than 8 one year or beyond the termination date of the applicable
 9 collective agreement, whichever occurs sooner.

10 “§ 3906. Standards of conduct for supervisors' organiza-
 11 tions

12 “The Department will not accord exclusive recognition
 13 to any supervisors' organization unless the supervisors' or-14 ganization is subject to governing requirements adopted by 15 the supervisors' organization containing explicit and detailed 16 provisions to which it subscribes, providing for—

17 “(1) the maintenance of democratic procedures and 18 practices, including provisions for periodic elections to 19 be conducted subject to recognized safeguards and pro-
 20 visions defining and securing the right of individual
 21 members to participation in the affairs of the supervisors'
 22 organization, to fair and equal treatment under the 23 governing rules of the organization, and to fair process
 24 in disciplinary proceedings;

25 “(2) the exclusion from office in the supervisors'

1 organization of persons affiliated with Communist or 2 other totalitarian movements;

3 “(3) the prohibition of business or financial inter-
4 ests on the part of supervisors’ organization officers and
5 agents which conflict with their duty to the organization
6 and its members; and

7 “(4) the maintenance of fiscal integrity in the 8 conduct of the affairs of the supervisors’ organization,
9 including provision for accounting and financial controls
10 and regular financial reports or summaries to be made
11 available to members.

12 “§ 3907. Code of Fair Labor Practices

13 “(a) The Department is prohibited from—

14 “(1) interfering with, restraining, or coercing any
15 supervisor in the exercise of the rights assured by this
16 chapter;

17 “(2) encouraging or discouraging membership in 18 any supervisors’ organization by discrimination in regard 19 to hiring, tenure, promotion, or other conditions of 20 employment;

21 “(3) sponsoring, controlling, or otherwise assisting
22 any supervisors’ organization, except that the Depart-
23 ment may furnish customary and routine services and 24 facilities;

25 “(4) disciplining or otherwise discriminating

1 against any supervisor because he has filed a complaint
2 or given testimony under this chapter or under the 3 Standards of Conduct for Supervisors’ Organizations or 4 the Code of Fair Labor Practices;

5 “(5) refusing to accord exclusive recognition to a
6 supervisors’ organization qualified for such recognition;
7 and

8 “(6) refusing to hear, consult, confer, or negotiate
9 in good faith with a supervisors’ organization as required
10 by this chapter.

11 “(b) The supervisors’ organization is prohibited from—

12 “(1) interfering with, restraining, or coercing any
13 supervisor in the exercise of the rights assured by this
14 chapter;

15 “(2) attempting to induce postal management to 16 coerce any supervisor in the enjoyment of his rights
17 under this chapter;

18 “(3) coercing or attempting to coerce, or disciplin-
19 ing any member of the organization as punishment or 20 reprisal for, or for the purpose of hindering or imped-21 ing, his discharge of his duties owed as an officer or 22 employee of the Department; and

23 “(4) discriminating against any supervisor with 24 regard to the terms or conditions of membership because
25 of race, color, creed, sex, age, or national origin.

1 “(c) A supervisors’ organization granted exclusive rec-
 2 ognition shall, upon request, admit to membership in the orga-
 3 nization without discrimination any supervisor in the unit
 4 represented who meets reasonable occupational standards and 5 pays the required fee and dues. Nothing in this chapter shall 6 preclude an organization from suspending or expelling a 7 member, who is a supervisor in the unit represented, from 8 the organization, if such action is taken for just cause and 9 in accordance with procedures under the constitution or by-
 10 laws of the supervisors’ organization.

11 “§ 3908. Labor-management disputes

12 “(a) The Department and any recognized supervisors’
 13 organization shall have the right to invoke the provisions of 14 section 3910 in respect to any dispute concerning—

15 “(1) the application or interpretation of provisions
 16 of this chapter;

17 “(2) the terms to be incorporated in an agreement;

18 “(3) the interpretation, application, and enforce-
 19 ment of the Standards of Conduct for Supervisors’ Orga-
 20 nizations and the Code of Fair Labor Practices; and 21 “(4) the alleged violations of any agreement.

22 “(b) In resolving disputes set forth in subsection (a)
 23 of this section, the following procedures shall be applicable:

24 “(1) Either party may invoke the services of the 25 Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, which shall

1 immediately assign one or more of its mediators to work
 2 with the parties, using every effort to bring the parties
 3 to an agreement.

4 “(2) If such efforts to bring about a settlement
 5 through mediation and conciliation are unsuccessful, then
 6 either party to the controversy is authorized to invoke the 7 services of the Postal Labor-Management Relations
 8 Panel provided for by section 3709 of this title.

9 “§ 3909. Authority of Postal Labor-Management Relations
 10 Panel

11 “(a) The Postal Labor-Management Relations Panel
 12 created by section 3709 of this title shall have authority to 13 investigate and resolve any dispute arising under section
 14 3908 of this chapter, and to afford prompt and full relief
 15 with respect to the issues involved in such dispute. Such 16 relief shall include, among other matters, reinstatement to a
 17 position, restitution of monetary loss, and such other com-
 18 pensatory measures as the Panel deems appropriate, with 19 respect to any supervisor involved in such dispute. The 20 Panel, upon its determination that there has been an arbi-
 21 trary, capricious, or otherwise knowing violation of this
 22 chapter, may recommend that the Postmaster General disci-
 23 pline the offending party by demotion, suspension, removal,
 24 or such other remedial action as the Panel deems advisable.
 25 The Postmaster General shall consider any such recommen-

1 dation of the Panel and take action thereon as he determines
 2 to be proper in the light of all of the pertinent facts and
 3 circumstances, subject to the exercise by any officer or em-
 4 ployee of the Department of the right to appeal any deter-
 5 mination of the Postmaster General in accordance with laws,
 6 rules, and regulations governing appeals of postal employees
 7 from adverse personnel actions.

- 3 That this Act may be cited as the "Postal Employee Labor-
- 4 Management Act of 1969".

5 TITLE I—DECLARATION OF POLICY

- 6 SEC. 101. (a) Participation of postal employees, through
- 7 labor organizations, with management in decisions which

- 11 public interest and their development should be encouraged.

1 (b) The right of labor organizations to organize em-
 2 ployees of the Department, and to bargain collectively, and
 3 to present grievances on their behalf without restraint,
 4 coercion, interference, intimidation, or reprisal is recognized
 5 and encouraged.

6 TITLE II—DEFINITIONS

7 SEC. 201. For the purposes of this Act—

8 (1) "employee" means any employee in the postal 9 field service;

10 (2) "labor organization" means any national union,
 11 federation, or association of postal employees and its

 13 which employees participate and pay dues, and which 14 has, as one of its basic and central purposes, dealing 15 with management of the Department concerning terms
 16 and conditions of employment, but shall not include

17 (A) any organization whose basic purpose is purely 18 social, fraternal, or limited to special interest objectives
 19 which are only incidentally related to terms and condi-
 20 tions of employment, (B) any organization which by 21 ritualistic practice, constitution, or bylaws proscription,
 22 by tacit agreement among its members or otherwise,
 23 denies membership because of race, color, religion, na-
 24 tional origin, sex, age, or preferential or nonpreferential
 25 civil service status, or (C) any organization sponsored

1 by the Department or by any agency, activity, or orga-
 2 nization of the Federal Government;

 4 labor organization, whether an employee or nonem-
 5 ployee of the Department;

6 (4) "agreement" means any collective-bargaining
 7 agreement negotiated pursuant to the provisions of this
 8 Act;

9 (5) "dispute" includes any controversy concerning
 10 terms, tenure, or conditions of employment, or concern-
 11 ing the association or representative of persons in nego-
 12 tiating, fixing, maintaining, changing, or seeking to

 17 outside an employee's control if the matter arises out of 18 employment in the postal field service and the remedy

 20 cluding, but not limited to, adverse actions, complaints
 21 of discrimination, any other complaint by any employee

ORGANIZATIONS

SEC. 301. (a) Any labor organization shall be granted exclusive recognition within a unit by submitting to the Department a verifiable certified membership list of more than 50 per centum of the total number of employees within

1 the unit. However, if one or more labor organizations submit
 2 a verifiable certified membership list of not more than 50
 3 per centum and not less than 30 per centum of the total
 4 number of employees within the craft, a secret national ballot
 5 election shall be scheduled within a period of sixty days
 6 from date of submission.

7 (b) The right of a labor organization to selection as 8 the exclusive craft representative on a national basis where 9 an election is necessary shall be decided by a national secret
 10 ballot election with the right of such selection being awarded
 11 to the labor organization receiving a majority of valid votes
 12 cast in the election. If no labor organization secures a ma-
 13 jority of all valid votes cast but a majority of all votes cast
 14 are for representation by some labor organization, then a run-15 off election shall be held within sixty days thereafter, be-
 16 tween the two labor organizations securing the largest num-
 17 ber of votes, to determine the labor organization which has 18 achieved exclusive recognition. The election shall be con-
 19 ducted by the Department of Labor under rules and regula-
 20 tions promulgated by the Secretary of Labor. Any dispute
 21 or disagreement as to eligibility of a labor organization or 22 an employee to participate in the selection of an exclusive 23 craft representative shall be resolved by the Department of 24 Labor pursuant to regulations established by the Secretary

1 of Labor. Such regulations shall include provision for binding
 2 arbitration of any such dispute or disagreement.

3 (c) The Department shall accord exclusive recogni-
 4 tion on a national craft basis to a labor organization which 5 has been selected under subsection (b) of this section. Such 6 national exclusive recognition shall be accorded to such labor
 7 organization and the affiliates thereof at installation, regional,
 8 and other levels within the Department.

9 (d) Recognition of a labor organization shall continue
 10 unless withdrawn pursuant to the provisions of this Act.
 11 The Department shall not determine whether a labor orga-
 12 nization shall become or continue to be recognized as exclu-
 13 sive representative of the employees in any unit within 14 twenty-four months after a determination of exclusive status,
 15 or while an agreement is in effect with respect to such unit.

16 (e) No unit shall be established for purposes of ex-
 17 clusive recognition which includes any Department official
 18 who has primarily executive, managerial, or policymaking
 19 responsibilities or any supervisor who officially and regularly
 20 evaluates the performance of employees.

21 (f) When a labor organization has been recognized
 22 as the exclusive craft representative of employees of an
 23 appropriate unit, it shall be entitled to act for and to nego-
 24 tiate agreements covering all employees in the unit at the
 25 national and local installation levels and it shall be respon-

1 sible for representing the interests of all such employees.
 2 Such a labor organization shall have the right to participate
 3 with management in the formulation, implementation, and 4 modification of personnel policies and practices, and all other
 5 matters affecting the conditions of employment of employees
 6 in the unit. The Department and such labor organization,
 7 through appropriate officials and representatives, shall meet
 8 at reasonable times for the purposes of consultation as de-
 9 fined in this Act. The Department and the recognized
 10 labor organization shall be required to negotiate in good 11 faith for the purpose of arriving at an agreement at any 12 level. Such obligation to bargain shall include the determina-
 13 tion of appropriate bargaining techniques and the inclusion
 14 of any understanding reached by the parties in a written
 15 agreement. In exercising authority to make rules and regula-
 16 tions relating to personnel policies and practices or to work-
 17 ing conditions, the Department may not make rules or regu-
 18 lations which are in conflict with any agreement negotiated
 19 under this Act.

20 TITLE IV—SAVING PROVISION—PRIOR NA-21 TIONAL EXCLUSIVE RECOGNITION AND 22 AGREEMENTS

23 SEC. 401. Nothing in this Act shall nullify any previous-24 ly established national exclusive recognition status within a
 25 unit, as defined herein, nor any provisions of any agreement
 26 in effect on the effective date of this Act between the Depart-

1 ment and any labor organization, except as hereafter may be
 2 agreed to by the parties thereto, until superseded by an
 3 agreement made pursuant to this Act.

4 TITLE V—DUES CHECKOFF

5 SEC. 501. Where the Department has received from any
 6 employee a written assignment which authorizes the Depart-
 7 ment to deduct from the wages of such employee money for 8 the payment of membership dues in a labor organization,
 9 such assignment shall be honored, except that any such assign-
 10 ment shall not be irrevocable for a period of more than one
 11 year or beyond the termination date of the applicable col-
 12 lective agreement, whichever occurs sooner.

13 TITLE VI—STANDARDS OF CONDUCT FOR LABOR
 14 ORGANIZATIONS

15 SEC. 601. The Department will not accord exclusive
 16 recognition to any labor organization unless the labor orga-
 17 nization is subject to governing requirements adopted by the 18 labor organization containing explicit and detailed provisions
 19 to which it subscribes, providing for—

20 (1) the maintenance of democratic procedures
 21 and practices, including provisions for periodic elections
 22 to be conducted subject to recognized safeguards and 23 provisions defining and securing the right of individual
 24 members to participation in the affairs of the labor orga-
 25 nization, to fair and equal treatment under the govern-

1 ing rules of the organization, and to fair process in dis-
2 ciplinary proceedings;

3 (2) the exclusion from office in the labor organi-
4 zations of persons affiliated with Communist or other
5 totalitarian movements;

6 (3) the prohibition of business or financial in-
7 terests on the part of labor organization officers and
8 agents which conflict with their duty to the organization
9 and its members; and

10 (4) the maintenance of fiscal integrity in the 11 conduct of the affairs of the labor organization, including
12 provision for accounting and financial controls and regu-
13 lar financial reports or summaries to be made available
14 to members.

15 TITLE VII—CODE OF FAIR LABOR PRACTICES

9 labor organization qualified for such recognition; and

10 (6) refusing to hear, consult, confer, or negotiate
11 in good faith with a labor organization as required by 12 this Act.

13 (b) The labor organization is prohibited from--

14 (1) interfering with, restraining, or coercing any 15 employee in the exercise of the rights assured by this 16 Act.

17 (2) attempting to induce postal management to 18 coerce any employee in the enjoyment of his rights

24 of the Department; and

25 (4) discriminating against any employee with

1 regard to the terms or conditions of membership because
2 of race, color, creed, sex, age, or national origin.

3 (c) A labor organization granted exclusive recogni-
4 tion shall, upon request, admit to membership in the orga-
5 nization without discrimination any employee in the unit
6 represented who meets reasonable occupational standards
7 and pays the required fee and dues. Nothing in this Act
8 shall preclude a labor organization from suspending or ex-
9 pelling a member, who is an employee in the unit repre-

11 cause and in accordance with procedures under the constitu-
12 tion or bylaws of the labor organization.

22 (3) The decision of the arbitrator shall be final
23 and binding. The fee and expenses of the arbitrator and

H. R. 7915

FEBRUARY 27, 1969

Mr. DULSKI (for himself, Mr. OLSEN, Mr. NIX, Mr. CHARLES H. WILSON, Mr. WALDIE, Mr. WILLIAM D. FORD, Mr. HAMILTON, Mr. CUNNINGHAM, and Mr. HAWKINS) introduced the following bill; which was referred to the Committee on Post Office and Civil Service

1 Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representa-
2 tives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,
3 That this Act may be cited as the "Federal Employee
4 Labor-Management Act of 1969".

6 SEC. 101. Participation of employees with manage-
7 ment, through employee organizations or unions in deci-
8 sions which affect them, contributes to the effective conduct
9 of the public business. Therefore, strong, democratically run
10 employee organizations or unions are in the public interest

1 and their development should be encouraged by lawful
2 means.

3 SEC. 102. The right of officers or representatives of a
4 union or organization of Government employees representing 5 the employees of a department or agency or subdivision of 6 such department or agency to present grievances and engage 7 in collective bargaining in behalf of their members without 8 restraint, coercion, interference, intimidation, or reprisal is 9 recognized and encouraged. Violation of such right on the 10 part of an administrative official shall be cause for his sus-
11 pension or removal or such other punitive action as the head
12 of the department or agency may deem advisable.

13 SEC. 103. In order to assure a uniform and orderly
14 administration of labor-management operations throughout 15 the Federal service it is in the public interest to establish 16 a Federal Service Labor-Management Relations Board, 17 which shall perform the basic and essential role of providing 18 direction to the entire labor-management relations program.

2 rule, or regulation governing conditions of employment, in 3 which the head of the department or agency has the authority
4 to correct.

5 (b) The term "conditions of employment" shall include
6 such factors as working conditions, work schedules, work pro-

17 his complaint.

18 (d) The term "union of Government employees" means
19 any national organization and/or its affiliates, made up in 20 whole or in part of employees of the Federal Government, 21 in which the employees participate and pay dues, and which 22 has as its basic and central purposes, dealing with the man-
23 agement of a Government department, agency, activity, or-
24 ganization, or function concerning conditions of employment,
25 but shall not include any organization whose basic purpose

1 is purely social, fraternal, or limited to a single special in-
 2 terest objective which is only incidentally related to condi-
 3 tions of employment; and shall not include any organization
 4 which, by ritualistic practice, constitutional or bylaws pre-
 5 scription, by tacit agreement among its members or other-
 6 wise, denies membership because of race, color, religion, na-

 9 agency, activity, organization, or facility of the Federal
 10 Government.

11 (e) The term "dues-paying member" means any em-

 17 in the constitution and/or bylaws of any "union of Govern-
 18 ment employees" covered by this Act.

19 (f) When used in this Act, the term "United States
 20 Government" or "Federal Government" includes the govern-

23 TITLE III—RECOGNITION OF ORGANIZATIONS

24 SEC. 301. (a) Determination of the right of a union to 25 selection as the representative on a national or local basis

1 shall be decided by a secret ballot, where an election is nec-
 2 essary, with the representation decided by a majority of 3 votes cast

4 (b) Within six months after the effective date of this Act,
 5 the Federal Service Labor-Management Relations Board,
 6 hereinafter provided in section 401 (a) of this Act, shall,
 7 after giving officers or representatives of unions having mem-
 8 bers in the Federal Government an opportunity to present
 9 their views, promulgate regulations specifying that adminis-
 10 trative officers shall at the request of officers or representa-
 11 tives of the unions confer, either in person or through duly
 12 designated representatives, with such officers or representa-
 13 tives on matters of policy affecting working conditions, work
 14 procedures, automation, safety, inservice training, labor-man-
 15 agement cooperation, methods of adjusting grievances, trans-
 16 fers, appeals, granting of leave, promotion procedures, de-
 17 motions, rates of pay, and reduction in force. Such regulations
 18 shall recognize the right of such officers or representatives to 19 carry on any lawful activity without intimidation, coercion,
 20 interference, or reprisal: Provided, That nothing in this sub-
 21 section shall nullify any provision of any contract, agreement
 22 or regulation, or established past practice or regulation
 23 reached by mutual agreement between a department or 24 agency and a union, except as may hereafter be agreed to by 25 the parties thereto.

1 (c) Administrative officers shall solicit the views of offi-
 2 cers or representatives of such organizations of employees
 3 prior to the promulgation of new policies or the modification
 4 of existing policies with respect to such matters as are enu-
 5 merated in subsection (b) of this section.

6 SEC. 302. (a) Agencies shall accord formal or exclu-
 7 sive recognition to employee organizations, on a national 8 basis, which request such recognition in conformity with the 9 requirements of this Act. In the case of local units, where no
 10 organization qualifies for exclusive recognition, formal recog-
 11 nition can be granted with 10 per centum actual unit mem-
 12 bership.

13 (b) Recognition of an employee organization or union
 14 shall continue so long as such organization satisfies the cri-
 15 teria of this Act applicable to such recognition; but nothing
 16 in this section shall require any agency to determine whether 17 an organization should become or continue to be recognized
 18 as exclusive representative of the employees in any unit
 19 within twelve months after a prior determination of exclu-
 20 sive status or while a contract is in effect with respect to 21 such unit has been made pursuant to the provisions of this 22 Act.

23 (c) Recognition, in whatever form accorded, shall not—
 24 (1) preclude any employee, regardless of employee
 25 organization membership, from bringing matters of per-

1 sonal concern to the attention of appropriate officials in 2 accordance with applicable law, rule, regulation, or 3 established agency policy, or from choosing his own
 4 representative in a grievance or appellate action; or

5 (2) preclude or restrict consultations and dealings
 6 between an agency and any veterans' organization with 7 respect to matters of particular interest to employees
 8 with veterans' preference; or

9 (3) preclude an agency from consulting or dealing 10 with any religious, social, fraternal, or other lawful
 11 association, not qualified as an employee organization
 12 with respect to matters or policies which involve indi-
 13 vidual members of the association, or are of particular 14 applicability to it or its members.

15 SEC. 303. (a) An agency shall accord an employee
 16 organization, which does not qualify for exclusive recogni-
 17 tion, informal recognition as representative of its member
 18 employees without regard to whether any other employee
 19 organization has been accorded exclusive recognition as 20 representative of some or all employees in any unit.

21 (b) When an employee organization has been infor-
 22 mally recognized, it shall, to the extent consistent with the 23 efficient and orderly conduct of the public business, be 24 permitted to present to appropriate officials its views on 25 matters of concern to its members. The agency need not,

1 however, consult with an employee organization so rec-
 2 ognized in the formulation of personnel or other policies with 3 respect to such matters.

4 SEC. 304. (a) An agency shall accord an employee
 5 organization formal recognition as the representative of 6 its members in a local unit defined by the agency when—

7 (1) no other employee organization is qualified
 8 for exclusive recognition as representative of employ-
 9 ees in the unit;

10 (2) it is determined by the agency that the em-
 11 ployee organization has a substantial and stable mem-
 12 bership of no less than 10 per centum of the employees 13 in the unit; and

14 (3) the employee organization has submitted to 15 the agency a roster of its officers and representatives, 16 a copy of its constitution and bylaws, and a statement of 17 objectives.

18 (b) When an employee organization has been formally 19 recognized, the agency, through appropriate officials, shall 20 consult with such organization from time to time in the 21 formulation and implementation of personnel policies and 22 practices, and matters affecting working conditions that are 23 of concern to its members. Any such organization shall be 24 entitled from time to time to raise such matters for discussion

1 with appropriate officials and at all times to present its views
 2 thereon in writing. Formal recognition applies only on a
 3 local basis.

4 (c) For the purposes of this Act, "consultation" means
 5 a formal meeting between officials of the department or 6 agency with the designated representatives of the union or 7 organization, before any action or order is finalized. Such 8 consultation should permit sufficient time for the represent-9 atives of the employee organizations to present formal and 10 proper agreement or objection to management and the 11 reasons for such agreement or objections. If any objections
 12 are made they should receive consideration before final 13 action is taken.

14 SEC. 305. (a) Except where otherwise required by 15 established practice, prior agreement, or special circum-
 16 stances, no unit shall be established for purposes of exclusive
 17 recognition which includes—

18 (1) any managerial executive;

19 (2) any employee engaged in Federal personnel
 20 work in other than a purely clerical capacity;

21 (3) both supervisors, who officially evaluate the 22 performance of employees, and the employees whom 23 they supervise; or

1 (4) both professional employees and nonprofes-
2 sional employees unless a majority of such professional
3 employees vote for inclusion in such unit.

4 (b) When an employee organization has been recog-
5 nized as the exclusive representative of employees of an
6 appropriate unit it shall be entitled to act for and to negotiate
7 agreements covering all employees in the unit and shall be
8 responsible for representing the interests of all such em-
9 ployees. Such employee organization shall be given the 10 opportunity to be represented at discussions between man-
11 agement and employees or employee representatives con-
12 cerning grievances, personnel policies and practices, or other 13 matters affecting general working conditions of employees in 14 the unit. The agency and such employee organization,
15 through appropriate officials and representatives, shall meet
16 at reasonable times and confer with respect to personnel
17 policy and practices and matters affecting working condi-
18 tions, so far as may be appropriate subject to law. This ex-
19 tends to the negotiation of an agreement, or any question
20 arising thereunder, the determination of appropriate tech-
21 niques, consistent with the terms and purposes of this Act, to 22 assist in such negotiation, and the execution of a written con-
23 tract or agreement or understanding incorporating any agree-
24 ment reached by the parties. In exercising authority to make 25 rules and regulations relating to personnel policies and prac-

1 tices and working conditions, agencies shall have due regard
2 for the obligation imposed by this section.

3 SEC. 306. (a) Any basic or initial agreement entered
4 into with an employee organization as the exclusive repre-
5 sentative of employees in a unit must be approved by the 6 head of the agency or any official designated by him. All
7 agreements with such employee organizations shall also be
8 subject to the following requirements, which shall be ex-
9 pressly stated in the initial or basic agreement and shall be 10 applicable to all supplemental, implementing subsidiary, or 11 informal agreements between the agency and the organiza-
12 tion.

13 (b) In the administration of all matters covered by 14 the agreement, officials and employees are governed by the 15 provisions of any existing or future laws, including policies
16 set forth in the Federal Personnel Manual and agency regu-
17 lations, which may be applicable, and the agreement shall 18 at all times be applied subject to such laws and regulations.

19 (c) Management officials of the agency retain the right,
20 in accordance with applicable laws and regulations—

- 21 (1) to direct employees of the agency ;
22 (2) to hire, promote, transfer, and retain employees
23 in positions within the agency, and to suspend, demote, 24 discharge, or take other disciplinary action against 25 employees ;

1 (3) to relieve employees from duties because of lack
2 of work or for other legitimate reasons;

3 (4) to maintain the efficiency of the Government
4 operations entrusted to them; and

5 (5) to determine the methods, means, and per-
6 sonnel by which such operations are to be conducted.

7 SEC. 307. Agreements entered into or negotiated in 8 accordance with this Act with an employee organization
9 which is the exclusive representative of employees in an 10 appropriate unit may contain provisions, applicable only to 11 employees in the unit, concerning procedures for considera-
12 tion of grievances. Such procedures shall conform to stand-
13 ards issued by the Department of Labor, and may not in any 14 manner diminish or impair any rights which would otherwise
15 be available to any employee in the absence of an agreement
16 providing for such procedures.

17 TITLE IV—ADMINISTRATIVE PROCEDURES

18 AND APPEALS

19 SEC. 401. (a) There is herewith established a Federal 20 Service Labor-Management Relations Board to direct and 21 supervise the implementation of this Act. The Chairman
22 shall be appointed by the President with the advice and con-
23 sent of the Senate. One member shall be appointed by the 24 President from a list representing labor unions; and one
25 member shall be appointed by the President from a list repre-

1 sending Federal management. The Board's actions will be
2 determined by majority vote.

3 (b) The Federal Service Labor-Management Relations
4 Board is authorized and directed to promulgate rules and 5 regulations not inconsistent with the provisions of this Act to 6 be followed by the departments and agencies in developing
7 and administering the labor-management programs provided
8 for herein.

9 (c) Upon a finding by the Federal Service Labor-Man-
10 agement Relations Board that a department or agency has 11 failed to develop an adequate labor-management program
12 or has permitted administrative violations to occur, the Board
13 shall assume responsibility for the development of an ade-
14 quate labor-management program or for the administration
15 of such a program in any such department or agency until 16 satisfactory evidence is produced by the department or 17 agency that the deficiency has been eliminated.

18 SEC. 402. The Federal Service Labor-Management Re-
19 lations Board assisted by the Civil Service Commission and 20 the Department of Labor shall supervise the preparation
21 of—

22 (1) proposed standards of conduct for employee
23 organizations; and

24 (2) a proposed code of fair labor practices in em-
25 ployee-management relations in the Federal service ap-

1 appropriate to assist in securing the uniform and effective
2 implementation of the policies, rights, and responsibil-
3 ities described in this Act.

4 SEC. 403. The head of each agency, in accordance with 5 the provisions of this Act and regulations prescribed by the 6 Civil Service Commission, shall extend to all employees in 7 the competitive civil service, rights identical in adverse ac-
8 tion cases to those provided preference eligibles under sec-
9 tion 14 of the Veterans' Preference Act of 1944, as amended.
10 Each employee in the competitive service shall have the 11 right to appeal to the Civil Service Commission from an 12 adverse decision of the administrative officer so acting, such 13 appeal to be processed in an identical manner to that pro-
14 vided for appeals under section 14 of the Veterans' Prefer-
15 ence Act. Any recommendation by the Civil Service Com-
16 mission submitted to the head of an agency on the basis of 17 an appeal by an employee in the competitive service shall 18 be complied with by the head of the agency.

19 SEC. 404. This Act (except section 403) shall not 20 apply to the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Central 21 Intelligence Agency, or any other agency, or to any office,
22 bureau, or entity within an agency, primarily performing
23 intelligence, investigative, or security functions if the Fed-
24 eral Service Labor-Management Relations Board deter-
25 mines that the provisions of this Act cannot be applied in a

1 manner consistent with national security requirements and
2 considerations. When he deems it necessary in the national
3 interest, and subject to prior notification to the Federal Serv-
4 ice Labor-Management Relations Board and to such condi-
5 tions as he may prescribe, the head of any agency may 6 suspend any provision of this Act (except section 403) with 7 respect to any agency installation or activity which is 8 located outside of the United States.

9 SEC. 405. In the case of disputes resulting from unre-
10 solved grievances or from disagreement between unions and 11 departments or agencies on the policies enumerated in sec-
12 tion 301 (b), the following procedures shall be followed—

13 (a) Either party may invoke the services of the Federal
14 Mediation and Conciliation Service which shall immediately
15 assign one or more of its mediators to work with the parties
16 using every effort to bring the parties to an agreement.

17 (b) If such efforts to bring about an amicable settle-
18 ment through mediation and conciliation are unsuccessful,
19 then either party to the controversy is authorized to invoke
20 the services of the Government Labor-Management Relations
21 Panel hereinafter provided for.

22 (c) The President of the United States is authorized
23 and requested to immediately establish and maintain a Gov-
24 ernment Labor-Management Relations Panel. This Panel

1 shall be composed of a Chairman, an Executive Secretary,
2 and not less than four nor more than six additional members.
3 The Chairman and the members of the Panel (exclusive of 4 the Executive Secretary who shall be appointed by the Panel
5 itself) shall be appointed by the President of the United 6 States and shall not be otherwise employed by the Govern-
7 ment of the United States.

8 (d) After its services have been invoked, the Panel
9 shall assist the parties in arriving at a settlement through 10 whatever voluntary methods and procedures it may consider
11 to be appropriate.

12 (e) If the Panel is unable to assist the parties to arrive
13 at a settlement through other means, it shall promptly hold
14 hearings at which both parties shall be given a full oppor-
15 tunity to present their case.

16 (f) After the hearings have concluded, the Panel shall
17 with due dispatch render its decision in writing on the mat-
18 ters in dispute. This decision shall be promptly served upon 19 the parties to the proceeding and shall be final and binding
20 upon all parties.

21 (g) Government employees called upon by either party
22 to participate on its behalf in any phase of the Panel proceed-
23 ing shall be free to do so without suffering any loss in pay
24 and all such employees shall be free from restraint, coercion,
25 interference, intimidation, or reprisal for their participation.

1 TITLE V—SETTLEMENT OF GRIEVANCES

2 SEC. 501. (a) Any union of Government employees
3 shall have the right to present and process grievances inform-
4 ally and to submit to arbitration unresolved grievances on 5 behalf of a member or members employed in any depart-
6 ment, agency, activity, organization, function, or facility of 7 the executive branch of the United States Government.

8 (b) Grievance as specifically used in this title includes
9 any dispute between any department, agency, activity, orga-
10 nization, function, or facility of the executive branch of the 11 United States Government by any union of Government em-
12 ployees on behalf of its individual members or group of mem-
13 bers concerning the effect, interpretation, or application of 14 any law, rule, regulation, or provision of a collective-bargain-
15 ing agreement, governing any condition of employment, in-16 cluding but not limited to, working conditions, work proce-
17 dures, automation, safety, transfers, job classification, details,
18 promotional procedures, demotions, rates of pay, reductions
19 in force, hours of work, and disciplinary actions.

20 (c) Grievances shall be presented or taken up at any 21 level by the representative or representatives of the union of 22 Government employees representing the employee or em-
23 ployees involved through established supervisory channels
24 preferably starting with the lowest level of management in 25 such Government organizations having competent authority

1 to make a decision on the subject of the grievance, up to the 2 designated chief supervisory officer concerned, as defined
3 from time to time by the appropriate administrative head of 4 the Government organization involved.

5 (d) Failing prompt and satisfactory adjustment, an ap-
6 peal can be taken by the union representing the employee
7 or employees involved directly to the principal administra-
8 tive officer of the Government organization involved for in-
9 vestigation and settlement.

10 (e) Details of grievance procedures shall be established
11 by each Government organization in negotiation or consulta-
12 tion with representatives of unions of Government employees
13 with members employed in such Government organization.
14 Such procedures shall assure employees—

15 (1) the right to be represented through their union
16 of Government employees;

17 (2) of fixed reasonable time limits for a decision
18 at each grievance step;

19 (3) of the right to call witnesses at each step of 20 the procedure; and

21 (4) of no loss of pay to the aggrieved employee
22 or employees, employee witnesses or employee represen-
23 tatives in the processing of such grievance.

24 (f) (1) Any grievance not satisfactorily settled in the 25 grievance process shall be subject to arbitration upon the

1 written request of the union of Government employees rep-
2 resenting the employee or employees involved. Such writ-
3 ten request shall be directed to the principal administrative 4 officer of the Government organization involved and shall
5 specify the name and address of person selected by the union
6 to serve on a three-member Board of Arbitration to be con-
7 stituted to hear and decide the case.

8 (2) Within five working days after receipt of such 9 arbitration request, the principal administrative officer of 10 the Government organization involved shall advise the union
11 of the name and address of the person selected by the Gov-
12 ernment organization to serve on such Board of Arbitration.

13 (3) The two arbitrators so selected shall request the 14 Secretary of Labor to furnish them with a panel of names
15 of five arbitrators from which they will endeavor to select 16 a third member who will serve as Chairman of the Board
17 of Arbitration. If they cannot agree on the third member, 18 they shall then request the Secretary of Labor to name the 19 third member.

20 (4) The decision of the majority of the members of such 21 Board of Arbitration shall be final and binding. Each party
22 shall be responsible for the costs of its members of the Board
23 of Arbitration. The fee and expenses of the Chairman and 24 the general expenses incident to the arbitration shall be
25 paid by the Secretary of Labor from an arbitration fund

1 created for such purpose. No employee of the Government
2 organization involved in the arbitration shall suffer any loss
3 in pay because of his participation in the proceedings, either
4 as a witness, aggrieved employee, or employee representative.

5 TITLE VI—EFFECTIVE DATE

6 SEC. 601. This Act shall take effect as of the first day
7 of the second calendar month following the date of its 8 enactment.

A BILL

To provide for improved employee-management relations in the Federal service, and for other purposes.

By Mr. DULSKI, Mr. OLSEN, Mr. NIX, Mr. CHARLES H. WILSON, Mr. WALDIE, Mr. WILLIAM D. FORD, Mr. HAMILTON, Mr. CUNNINGHAM, and Mr. HAWKINS

Referred to the Committee on Post Office and Civil Service

1 TITLE II—FINDINGS AND POLICIES

2 SEC. 201. (a) The denial by some governmental
3 agencies of the right to organize and the refusal by some 4 governmental agencies to accept the procedure of collective 5 bargaining leads to employee unrest, which has the effect
6 of impairing the efficiency, safety, or operation of the gov-
7 ernmental agencies and which deprive the employees of 8 such agencies from receiving their just rights and benefits
9 to which they are entitled. Experience has proven that 10 protection by law of the right of employees to organize
11 and bargain collectively safeguards the United States from 12 certain recognized sources of unrest by encouraging prac-
13 tices fundamental to the friendly adjustment of industrial 14 disputes arising out of differences as to working conditions
15 and by restoring security of bargaining power by the United 16 States Government and its employees.

17 (b) It is hereby declared to be the policy of the United 18 States to eliminate obstructions to free purposeful collective 19 bargaining by encouraging the practice and procedure of

23 purpose of negotiating the terms and conditions of their 24 employment or other mutual aid or protection.

22 three members no more than two from the same political

24 and consent of the Senate. The members shall be appointed
25 for a term of five years. Any successors appointed to a

1 vacancy shall be appointed only for the unexpired term of the 2 member whom he shall succeed. The President shall designate
 3 one member to serve as Chairman of the Board. Any
 4 member of the Board may be removed by the President,
 5 upon notice and hearing, for neglect of duty or malfeasance
 6 in office, but for no other cause.

7 (b) A vacancy in the Board shall not impair the right
 8 of the remaining members to exercise all of the power of 9 the Board, and two members of the Board shall, at all 10 times, constitute a quorum of the Board. The Board shall 11 have an official seal which shall be judicially noticed.

12 (c) The Board shall at the close of each fiscal year

 22 employment. The Board shall appoint the Executive Secretary
 23 and such attorneys, and examiners and such other 24 employees as it may from time to time find necessary for 25 the proper performance of its duties. The Board may not

1 employ any attorneys for the purpose of reviewing transcripts
 2 of hearings or preparing drafts of opinions except
 3 that any attorney employed for assignment as a legal assistant
 4 to any Board member may for such Board review
 5 such transcripts and prepare such drafts. No trial examiner's
 6 report shall be reviewed, either before or after its 7 publication, by any person other than a member of the 8 Board or his legal assistant and no trial examiner shall 9 advise or consult with the Board with respect to exceptions
 10 taken to his findings, rulings, or recommendations.
 11 The Board may establish or utilize such regional, local,

3 functions in any part of the United States. A member who 4 participates in such inquiry shall not be disqualified from 5 subsequently participating in a decision of the Board in the 6 same case.

7 SEC. 304. The Board shall have authority from time to 8 time to make, amend, and rescind, in the manner prescribed
9 by the Administrative Procedure Act, such rules and regu-
10 lations as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of 11 this Act.

12 TITLE IV—RIGHTS OF EMPLOYEES

13 SEC. 401. Employees shall have the right to self-orga-
14 nization, form, join, or assist labor organizations, to bargain
15 collectively through representatives of their own choosing,
16 and shall have the right to refrain from such activities.

17 TITLE V—UNFAIR LABOR PRACTICES

18 SEC. 501. (a) It shall be an unfair labor practice for 19 an employer—

20 (1) to interfere with, restrain or coerce employees
21 in the exercise of the rights guaranteed in section 401
22 of this Act;

23 (2) to dominate or interfere with the formation or 24 administration of any labor organization or contribute
25 financial or other support to it, provided that subject

1 to rules and regulations made and published by the 2 Board pursuant to section 304 the employer shall not be
3 prohibited from permitting employees to confer with 4 him during working hours without loss of time or pay;

5 (3) to discriminate in regard to hire or tenure of 6 employment or any term or condition of employment or 7 encourage or discourage membership in any labor
8 organization;

9 (4) to discharge or discriminate against an
10 employee because he had filed charges or given testi-
11 mony under this Act; and

12 (5) to refuse to bargain collectively (including 13 bargaining on agency regulations) with the representa-
14 tives of its employees subject to the provisions of this 15 Act.

16 (b) It shall be an unfair labor practice for a labor orga-
17 nization or its agents—

18 (1) to restrain or coerce employees in the exercis-
19 ing of the rights guaranteed in section 401: Provided,
20 That this paragraph shall not impair the right of—

21 (A) labor organizations to prescribe their own
22 rules with respect to the acquisition or retention of 23 membership therein; or

24 (B) an employer in the selection of his repre-

1 representatives for the purpose of collective bargaining or 2 the adjustment of grievances;

3 (2) to refuse to bargain collectively with an
4 employer, provided it is the representative of his employ-
5 ees subject to the provisions of section 601.

6 TITLE VI—REPRESENTATIVES AND ELECTIONS

7 SEC. 601. (a) Representatives designated or selected for 8 the purpose of collective bargaining by the majority of the 9 employees in a unit appropriate for such purposes, shall be 10 the exclusive representatives of all the employees in such 11 unit for the purpose of collective bargaining in respect to,
12 but not limited to, such matters as pay policies and regula-
13 tions, safety, training, labor-management cooperation, em-
14 ployee services, methods of adjusting grievances, appeals on 15 adverse actions of all types, granting of leave, promotion
16 plans, demotion practices, reduction-in-force practices, hours
17 of work, ranking and evaluation of positions and jobs, and 18 mediation and arbitration of disputes: Provided, That any in-19 dividual employee or a group of employees shall have the 20 right at any time to present grievances to their employer
21 and to have such grievances adjusted, without the inter-
22 vention of the bargaining representative, as long as the ad-
23 justment is not inconsistent with the terms of a collective-24 bargaining contract or agreement then in effect: Provided
25 further, That the bargaining representative has been given

1 opportunity to be present at such adjustment and any meet-
2 ing or hearing in connection with same.

3 (b) The Board shall decide in each case whether, in 4 order to assure to employees the fullest freedom in exercising
5 the rights guaranteed by this Act, the unit appropriate for 6 the purpose of collective bargaining shall be the plant unit,
7 or craft unit, or functional unit, or subdivision thereof: Pro-
8 vided, That the Board shall not—

9 (1) decide that any unit is appropriate for such 10 purposes if such unit includes both professional em-
11 ployees and employees who are not professional em-
12 ployees unless a majority of such professional employees 13 vote for inclusion in such unit; or

14 (2) decide that any craft unit is inappropriate for 15 such purposes on the ground that a different unit has 16 been established by a prior Board determination, unless 17 a majority of the employees in the proposed craft unit
18 vote against separate representation.

19 (c) Wherever a petition shall have been filed, in ac-
20 cordance with such regulations as may be prescribed by 21 the Board—

22 (1) by a labor organization acting in the employees'
23 behalf alleging that a substantial number of employees
24 wish to be represented for collective bargaining and that

1 their employer declines to recognize their representative
2 as the representative defined in section 202, or

3 (2) by an employer; alleging that a labor organi-
4 zation has presented to him a claim to be recognized
5 as the representative defined in section 202;

6 the Board shall investigate such petition and if it has reason-
7 able cause to believe that a question of representation exists
8 shall provide for an appropriate hearing upon due notice.
9 Such hearing may be conducted by an officer or employee
10 of the Board who shall not make any recommendations with 11 respect thereto. If the Board finds upon the record of such 12 hearing that such a question of representation exists, it shall 13 direct an election by secret ballot and shall certify the results
14 thereof.

15 (d) No election shall be directed in any bargaining unit
16 or any subdivision within which, in the preceding twelve-
17 month period, a valid election shall have been held. In any 18 election where none of the choices on the ballot receives a 19 majority of the votes cast a runoff shall be conducted, the 20 ballot providing for a selection between the two choices re-
21 ceiving the largest and second largest number of valid votes
22 cast in the election.

23 (e) Nothing in this section shall be construed to pro-
24 hibit the waiving of hearings by stipulation for the purpose

1 of a consent election in conformity with regulations and
2 rules or decisions of the Board.

3 (f) In determining whether a unit is appropriate for 4 the purposes specified in subsection (a) of this section, the 5 extent to which the employees have organized shall not be 6 controlling.

7 (g) Whenever an order of the Board made pursuant
8 to section 701 is based in whole or in part upon facts certi-
9 fied following an investigation pursuant to subsection (c) of 10 this section and there is a petition for the enforcement or re-
11 view of such order, such certification and the record of such 12 investigation shall be included in the transcript of the en-
13 tire record required to be filed under section 801, and there-
14 upon the decree of the court enforcing, modifying, or set-15 ting aside in whole or in part the order of the Board shall 16 be made and entered upon the pleadings, testimony, and 17 proceedings set forth in such transcript.

18 (h) No election shall be conducted pursuant to this 19 subsection in any bargaining unit or any subdivision within 20 which, in the preceding twelve-month period, a valid election
21 shall have been held.

22 (i) Nothing in this section or the Act shall prevent an 23 employer from granting a labor organization voluntary rec-

1 ognition based upon the authorization of a majority of the 2 employees in the unit.

3 TITLE VII—PREVENTION OF UNFAIR LABOR
4 PRACTICES

5 SEC. 701. (a) The Board is empowered, as hereinafter
6 provided, to prevent any person from engaging in any 7 unfair labor practice (listed in section 501). This power
8 shall not be affected by any other means of adjustment or 9 prevention that has been or may be established by agreement.

10 (b) Whenever it is charged that any person has engaged
11 in or is engaging in any such unfair labor practice, the 12 Board, or any agent or agency designated by the Board for 13 such purposes, shall have power to issue and cause to be 14 served upon such person a complaint stating the charges in 15 that respect, and containing a notice of hearing before the 16 Board or a member thereof, or before a designated agent
17 or agency, at a place therein fixed, not less than five days
18 after the serving of said complaint: Provided, That no com-
19 plaint shall issue based upon any unfair labor practice occur-
20 ring more than six months prior to the filing of the charge
21 with the Board and the service of a copy thereof upon the 22 person against whom such charge is made, unless the person
23 aggrieved thereby was prevented from filing such charge by 24 reason of service in the Armed Forces, in which event the 25 six-month period shall be computed from the day of his dis-

1 charge. Any such complaint may be amended by the mem-
2 ber, agent, or agency conducting the hearing or the Board
3 in its discretion at any time prior to the issuance of an order
4 based thereon. The person so complained of shall have the 5 right to file an answer to the original or amended complaint
6 and to appear in person or otherwise and give testimony at 7 the place and time fixed in the complaint. In the discretion
8 of the member, agent, or agency conducting the hearing or 9 the Board, any other person may be allowed to intervene
10 in the said proceeding and to present testimony. Any such 11 proceeding shall, so far as practicable, be conducted in ac-
12 cordance with the rules of evidence applicable in the district
13 courts of the United States under the rules of civil procedure
14 for the district courts of the United States, adopted by the 15 Supreme Court of the United States pursuant to the Act of 16 June 19, 1934 (28 U.S.C. 723-B, 723C).

17 (c) The testimony taken by such member, agent, or 18 agency of the Board shall be reduced to writing and filed
19 with the Board. Thereafter, in its discretion, the Board
20 upon notice may take further testimony or hear argument.
21 If upon the preponderance of the testimony taken the Board
22 shall be of the opinion that any person named in the com-
23 plaint has engaged in or is engaging in any such unfair
24 labor practice, then the Board shall state its findings of 25 fact and shall issue and cause to be served on such person

1 an order requiring such person to cease and desist from
2 such unfair labor practice, and to take such affirmative
3 action including reinstatement of employees with or without 4 backpay, as will effectuate the policies of this Act: Pro-
5 vided, That where an order directs reinstatement of an
6 employee, backpay may be required of the employer or 7 labor organization, as the case may be, responsible for the 8 discrimination suffered by him: And provided further, That 9 in determining whether a complaint shall issue alleging a 10 violation of section 501, and in deciding such cases, the 11 same regulations and rules of decision shall apply irre-
12 spective of whether or not the labor organization affected
13 is affiliated with a labor organization national or interna-
14 tional in scope. Such order may further require such person
15 to make reports from time to time showing the extent to 16 which it has complied with the order. If upon the pre-
17 ponderance of the testimony taken the Board shall not 18 be of the opinion that the person named in the com-
19 plaint has engaged in or is engaging in any such unfair
20 labor practice, then the Board shall state its findings of 21 fact and shall issue an order dismissing the said com-
22 plaint. No order of the Board shall require the reinstate-23 ment of any individual as an employee who has been 24 suspended or discharged, or the payment to him of any 25 backpay, if such individual was suspended or discharged

1 for just cause. In case the evidence is presented before a
2 member of the Board, or before an examiner or examiners
3 thereof, such member, or such examiner or examiners, as 4 the case may be, shall issue and cause to be served on
5 the parties to the proceeding a proposed report, together
6 with a recommended order, which shall be filed with the 7 Board, and if no exceptions are filed within twenty days
8 after service thereof upon such parties, or within such fur-
9 ther period as the Board may authorize, such recommended
10 order shall become the order of the Board and become ef-
11 fective as therein prescribed.

12 (d) Until the record in a case shall have been filed in 13 a court, as hereinafter provided, the Board may at any time,
14 upon reasonable notice and in such manner as it shall deem 15 proper, modify or set aside, in whole or in part, any finding 16 or order made or issued by it.

17 (e) The Board shall have power to petition any court
18 of appeals of the United States, or if all the courts of appeals
19 to which application may be made are in vacation, any dis-
20 trict court of the United States, within any circuit or district,
21 respectively, wherein the unfair labor practice in question
22 occurred or wherein such person resides or transacts business,
23 for the enforcement of such order and for appropriate tem-
24 porary relief or restraining order, and shall file in the court
25 the record in the proceedings, as provided in section 2112 of

1 title 28, United States Code. Upon filing of such petition, the 2 court shall cause notice thereof to be served upon such per-
3 son, and thereupon shall have jurisdiction of the proceeding
4 and of the question determined therein, and shall have power
5 to grant such temporary relief or restraining order as it deems
6 just and proper, and to make and enter a decree enforcing,
7 modifying, and enforcing as so modified, or setting aside in 8 whole or in part the order of the Board. No objection that 9 has not been urged before the Board, its member, agent, or 10 agency, shall be considered by the court, unless the failure
11 or neglect to urge such objection shall be excused because of 12 extraordinary circumstances. The findings of the Board with 13 respect to questions of fact if supported by substantial evi-
14 dence on the record considered as a whole shall be conclu-
15 sive. If either party shall apply to the court for leave to 16 adduce additional evidence and shall show to the satisfaction
17 of the court that such additional evidence is material and that 18 there were reasonable grounds for the failure to adduce such 19 evidence in the hearing before the Board, its member, agent, 20 or agency, the court may order such additional evidence to 21 be taken before the Board, its member, agent, or agency, and 22 to be made a part of the record. The Board may modify its 23 findings as to the facts, or make new findings, by reason of 24 additional evidence so taken and filed, and it shall file such 25 modified or new findings, which findings with respect to

1 questions of fact if supported by substantial evidence on the
2 record considered as a whole shall be conclusive, and shall
3 file its recommendations, if any, for the modification or set-
4 ting aside of its original order. Upon the filing of the record
5 with it the jurisdiction of the court shall be exclusive and its 6 judgment and decree shall be final, except that the same shall
7 be subject to review by the appropriate United States court
8 of appeals if application was made to the district court as 9 hereinabove provided, and by the Supreme Court of the 10 United States upon writ of certiorari or certification as pro-
11 vided in section 1254 of title 28.

12 (f) Any person aggrieved by a final order of the Board
13 granting or denying in whole or in part the relief sought
14 may obtain a review of such order in any circuit court of 15 appeals of the United States in the circuit wherein the unfair
16 labor practice in question was alleged to have been engaged 17 in or wherein such person resides or transacts business, or in 18 the United States Court of Appeals for the District of 19 Columbia, by filing in such court a written petition praying
20 that the order of the Board be modified or set aside. A copy
21 of such petition shall be forthwith transmitted by the clerk
22 of the court to the Board, and thereupon the aggrieved party
23 shall file in the court the record in the proceeding, certified 24 by the Board, as provided in section 2112 of title 28, United

1 States Code. Upon the filing of such petition, the court shall
 2 proceed in the same manner as in the case of an application
 3 by the Board under subsection (e) of this section, and 4 shall have the same jurisdiction to grant to the Board such 5 temporary relief or restraining order as it deems just and 6 proper, and in like manner to make and enter a decree en-
 7 forcing, modifying, and enforcing as so modified, or setting
 8 aside in whole or in part the order of the Board; the findings
 9 of the Board with respect to questions of fact if supported by 10 substantial evidence on the record considered as a whole
 11 shall in like manner be conclusive.

12 (g) The commencement of proceedings under subsection
 13 (e) or (f) of this section shall not, unless specifically
 14 ordered by the court, operate as a stay of the Board's order.

15 (h) When granting appropriate temporary relief or a 16 restraining order, or making and entering a decree enforcing,
 17 modifying, and enforcing as so modified, or setting aside in 18 whole or in part an order of the Board, as provided in this 19 section, the jurisdiction of courts sitting in equity shall not 20 be limited by the Act entitled "An Act to amend the 21 Judicial Code and to define and limit the jurisdiction of 22 courts sitting in equity, and for other purposes," approved
 23 March 23, 1932 (U.S.C., Supp. VII, title 29, secs. 101-24 115).

25 (i) Petitions filed under this Act shall be heard ex-

1 peditiously, and if possible within ten days after they have
 2 been docketed.

3 (j) The Board shall have power, upon issuance of a
 4 complaint as provided in subsection (b) charging that any
 5 person has engaged in or is engaging in an unfair labor
 6 practice, to petition any district court of the United States
 7 (including the District Court of the United States for the 8 District of Columbia), within any district wherein the un-
 9 fair labor practice in question is alleged to have occurred or 10 wherein such person resides or transacts business, for appro-
 11 priate temporary relief or restraining order. Upon the filing
 12 of any such petition the court shall cause notice thereof to 13 be served upon such person, and thereupon shall have juris-
 14 diction to grant to the Board such temporary relief or 15 restraining order as it deems just and proper.

16 TITLE VIII—INVESTIGATORY POWERS

17 SEC. 801. For the purpose of all hearings and investi-
 18 gations, which, in the opinion of the Board are necessary
 19 and proper for the exercise of the powers vested in it by 20 section 601 and section 701—

21 (1) The Board, or its duly authorized agents or 22 agencies, shall at all reasonable times have access to, for 23 the purpose of examination, and the right to copy any 24 evidence of any person being investigated or proceeded
 25 against that relates to any matter under investigation or

1 in question. The Board, or any member thereof, shall
 2 upon application of any party to such proceedings, forth-
 3 with issue to such party subpoenas requiring the attend-
 4 ance and testimony of witnesses or the production of any 5 evidence in such proceeding or investigation requested in 6 such application. Within five days after the service of a
 7 subpoena of any person requiring the production of any 8 evidence in his possession or under his control, such per-
 9 son may petition the Board to revoke, and the Board
 10 shall revoke, such subpoena if in its opinion the evidence
 11 whose production is required does not relate to any mat-
 12 ter under investigation, or any matter in question in such 13 proceedings, or if in its opinion such subpoena does not 14 describe with sufficient particularity the evidence whose 15 production is required. Any member of the Board, or 16 any agent or agency designated by the Board for such 17 purposes may administer oaths and affirmations, examine
 18 witnesses, and receive evidence. Such attendance of wit-
 19 nesses and the production of such evidence may be re-
 20 quired from any place in the United States or any terri-
 21 tory or possession thereof, at any designated place of 22 hearing.

23 (2) In case of contumacy or refusal to obey a 24 subpoena issued to any person, any district court of the 25 United States or the United States courts of any terri-

1 tory or possession, or the District Court of the United
 2 States for the District of Columbia, within the jurisdic-
 3 tion of which said person guilty of contumacy or refusal
 4 to obey is found or resides or transacts business, upon
 5 application by the Board shall have jurisdiction to issue
 6 to such person an order requiring such person to appear
 7 before the Board, its member, agent, or agency, there
 8 to produce evidence if so ordered, or there to give 9 testimony touching the matter under investigation or in 10 question; and any failure to obey such order of the 11 court may be punished by said court as a contempt
 12 thereof.

13 (3) No person shall be excused from attending
 14 and testifying or from producing books, records, cor-
 15 respondence, documents, or other evidence in obedience
 16 to the subpoena of the Board, on the ground that the 17 testimony or evidence required of him may tend to 18 incriminate him or subject him to a penalty or forfeiture;
 19 but no individual shall be prosecuted or subjected to 20 any penalty or forfeiture for or on account of any trans-
 21 action, matter, or thing concerning which he is com-
 22 pelled, after having claimed his privilege against self-
 23 incrimination, to testify or produce evidence, except 24 that such individual so testifying shall not be exempt

1 from prosecution and punishment for perjury committed
2 in so testifying.

3 (4) Complaints, orders, and other process and pa-
4 pers of the Board, its member, agent, or agency, may be
5 served either personally or by registered mail or by tele-

A BILL

To provide for employee-management relations between the United States Government and its employees.

By Mr. DULSKI

FEBRUARY 27, 1969

Referred to the Committee on Post Office and Civil Service

HERE'S THE ISSUE

Published by the Legislative Department of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, Washington, D.C. 20006 Editor: Wallace Davies

Postal Modernization

The Post Office is Big Business—and Getting Bigger It is Time We Put Its Operations on a Business-like Basis

President Nixon has made it clear that a "comprehensive reorganization of the Post Office Department" will be a major goal of his Administration, and the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee, without awaiting his detailed plans, has opened hearings on the subject.

The House hearings promise to extend over several months. Widespread agreement on the need for change, unfortunately, does not mean agreement on the character of the change. The path that leads to postal modernization is beset by many roadblocks.

These roadblocks, it is safe to say, do not arise because there is great public enthusiasm for the way the Post Office is now being operated or from any general desire to let well enough alone.

The President's Commission of Postal Reorganization, commonly called the Kappel Commission after the name of its Chairman, former AT&T Chairman Frederick R. Kappel, reported that it found a pattern of public concern over the quality of mail service. Delayed letters, erroneous deliveries, damaged parcels, and lost magazines are everyday experiences.

Moreover, the Commission found that those who used the mails the most were the most critical of the service. It concluded: "The lesson is clear; from a distance, the mail service is not bad, but the more you use and depend on it, the less satisfactory it seems."

One's depth of concern over the plight of the Post Office does, in fact, seem to be in direct proportion to one's knowledge of its operations. People who delve deeply into its workings are likely to echo Postmaster Blount's statement that he knew conditions were bad, but did not realize how bad.

The experts in the field calmly use alarming words. Former Postmaster General O'Brien referred to the "race with catastrophe."

The Kappel Commission Report uses the word "crisis" repeatedly. It says:

The United States Post Office faces a crisis. Each day it slips further behind the rest of the economy

- in service
- in efficiency
- in meeting its responsibilities as an employer.

Each year it operates at a huge financial loss.

Complete Breakdown Possible

Today, three-quarters of a million employees work in some 44,000 postal facilities in virtually every city, town and hamlet in the United States. This year, postal employees will use 72,000 vehicles to transport 82 billion pieces of mail between these facilities. Within a decade, that figure will soar to 110 billion pieces of mail.

Physically, organization-wise, or financially, the Post Office is not equipped to handle that fantastic volume of mail with any efficiency.

The Commission recalled:

In October 1966, the 13-story, 60-acre Chicago Post Office — the world's largest postal facility — stopped functioning. Breakdowns in management authority and in physical plant paralyzed service in one of the Nation's biggest cities and delayed millions of cross-country letters and parcels normally routed through Chicago. The crisis lasted three weeks.

The backlog of mail exceeded 10 million pieces. Railroad cars and trailer trucks clogged approaches to the post office. Millions of citizens were inconvenienced; hundreds of businesses suffered financial losses. With the help of a Department task force vested with special authority by the Postmaster General, service was gradually restored. . .

It then reached this sobering conclusion:

The facility and management problems of Chicago, in varying degrees, exist in post offices all over the country. In the Commission's judgment, particularly with mail volumes continuing to increase, the causes which produced Chicago may well produce the same results elsewhere.

The Post Office is still the basic medium of communications even in our electronic age. Business, which contributes three-fourths of the mail volume, would be paralyzed if the system ever broke down completely.

The symptoms of sickness are clear and visible. The experts say it is time to move boldly toward a cure. That means dealing with the causes.

Management

The basic cause is not difficult to locate. The Commission traced present difficulties in the operation of the Post Office Department to one thing — management.

In fairness to the thousands of dedicated men and women, however, who have made the Post Office Department function as well as it has under trying conditions, it should be pointed out in the same breath that this, essentially, is a failure of method — not of men.

This point was emphasized time and time again. For example:

“The nominal managers of the postal service do not have the authority to run the post office.”

“The postal system is not managed, in the accepted sense of the word.”

The key words, perhaps, are “responsibility” and “authority.” The men who manage the post office have little of either. Because the Postmaster General is a member of the Cabinet and funds to run it are contained in the Budget, the ultimate source of authority is the Congress.

In 1967, the Chairman of the House Postal Appropriations Subcommittee summarized the situation in this way for the Postmaster General:

General . . . would this be a fair summary: that at the present time, as the manager of the Post Office Department, you have no control over your workload, you have no control over the rates of revenue, you have no control over the pay of employees that you employ, you have very little control over the conditions of the service of those employees; you have virtually no control, by the nature of it, of your physical facilities, and you have only a limited control, at best, over the transportation facilities that you are compelled to use — all of which adds up to a staggering amount of “no control” in terms of the duties you have to perform.

The Kappel Commission said bluntly: “. . . the legislative process makes most managerial decisions for the Post Office.” And, then, perhaps, with some understatement, it added: “When key business decisions are made in this way, they do not necessarily bring about what is best for the postal system and its customers. This process, however conscientiously and well it is followed, is simply not a substitute for sound decision-making in a business context.”

This combination of “no control management” and Congressional authority, the Commission found, results in three basic characteristics which prevent the Post Office from developing a sound management system.

Financing Problems. The fact that the Post Office Department is financed in part by funds from the Treasury in regular appropriations and that tax revenues are called on to make up the deficit has many unfortunate results.

It means that the Post Office must compete with many other National priority projects to obtain funds for capital improvements. Congress is always tempted to cut the post office requests for new plant and equipment. Moreover, business generally amortizes costs over many years as the equipment is being used. The Post Office Department must make purchases from current appropriations — which means, in many cases, improved technology is not fully utilized.

Red Tape. When tax funds are intermingled with postal receipts a host of regulations governing appropriated funds become effective. The Commission found: “a hodge-podge of postal laws 200 years in the making constrains managerial judgment and initiative.”

Political Appointments. The Commission said diplomatically: “Because of the system for selecting postal managers, normal line relationships between them and top management are impossible.”

Proposed Legislation

When Chairman Dulski (D-N.Y.), of the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee opened hearings over the objections of Postmaster General Blount, who wanted more time to analyze the situation and make recommendations, two major approaches had been advanced.

One approach, as embodied in H.R. 1382 (Udall, D-Ariz.), essentially follows the Kappel Commission recommendations; the second approach, as embodied by H.R. 4 (Dulski, D-N.Y.), would drastically change many aspects of Post Office operations, but would retain it as an executive department.

Udall Bill (H.R. 1382)

The Kappel Commission made five principal recommendations:

1. That a Postal Corporation owned entirely by the Federal Government be chartered by Congress to operate the postal service of the United States on a self-supporting, business-like basis.
2. That the Corporation take immediate steps to improve the quality and kinds of services offered, the means by which service is provided and the physical conditions under which postal employees work.
3. That all appointments to, and promotions within, the postal system be made on a nonpolitical basis.
4. That present postal employees be transferred, with their accrued Civil Service benefits, to a new career service within the Postal Corporation.
5. That the Corporation's Board of Directors, after hearings by expert rate commissioners, establish postal rates, subject to Congressional veto within 60 days. Congress would establish broad criteria for rate policy but the details would be left to the corporation to determine.

More specifically, the Commission's recommendations included:

The Corporation would be directed by a nine-member Board, six part-time members to be appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate, and three full-time Officer-Directors to be chosen by the Board.

The Charter of the Corporation would provide powers analogous to those of private corporations. Most important, it would be given direct access to its revenues and have authority to borrow funds in its own name to finance modern facilities.

The Postal Service — over-all — should be self-supporting. If postal managers were given the authority and the financial means to put modern management and technology to work, the Commission said, improved methods and mechanization could save over $1 billion a year. “With this savings, deficit financing should become unnecessary within several years after the Corporation gets under way.”

In working toward increased efficiency and productivity, the Report said, management must have access to better cost figures.

The first essential for raising Post Office productivity is a management information network which reports promptly and accurately the real costs of operating the postal system. Next, managers and workers alike must be motivated toward cost-conscious operation. Normal lines of management control are an essential part of such motivation.

. . . Postal management, too, needs a modern cost accounting system, one that shows, by each postal function, how costs vary with each class of service, how much each class contributes to peakload and the size of the remaining pool of institutional costs.

While data on postal costs are unreliable, information on the market for postal services is nonexistent. Only when reliable cost and market information is available will it be possible to tell which class is and is not “paying its own way.”

The Commission recommended that the Post Office develop a full-time marketing and sales capacity to respond better to the service needs of the public and to offer a greater variety of services; that it study the feasibility of providing two services, one of which would assure overnight delivery, and the other which would provide slower, but dependable delivery; that several long-standing restrictions on procurement of highway and air transportation be removed; and that special management functions of the Inspection Service be re-assigned to the Corporation.

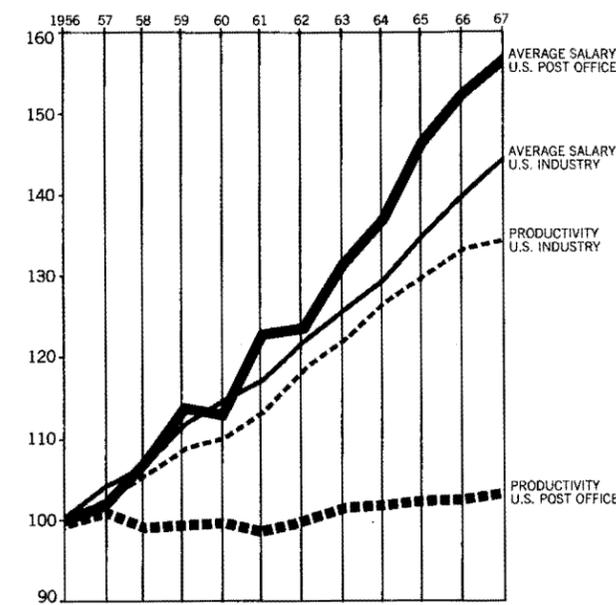

The only substantial difference between the Udall bill and the Commission recommendations is that the bill requires postmasters to be resident of the areas served by the post offices they are named to head. The Kappel Commission criticized a similar existing requirement on the grounds that it limits the number of available postmaster candidates and prevents the transfer of successful postmasters in small offices to larger offices or to regional offices.

The Dulski Bill (H.R. 4)

The second approach to the problem of postal modernization is H.R. 4, sponsored by Chairman Dulski (D-N.Y.) of the Post Office and Civil Service Committee. It would change drastically the operation of the Post Office, but retain it as an executive agency.

In a speech to the House on January 6, Representative Dulski said:

PRODUCTIVITY AND SALARY TRENDS
(Post Office and U.S. Industry, 1956-1967)

Sources: Post Office salary, Post Office Department Annual Report, various years; Post Office productivity (weighted), Robert R. Nathan Associates; U.S. Industry data, Economic Report of the President, February 1968.

From Towards Postal Excellence, The Report of the President's Commission on Postal Organization. U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 1968

My studies indicate that every major postal reform that a non-profit corporation might achieve can be done more quickly and effectively within the present framework of Government. Most important, I am convinced that these can be done without the inevitable disruption and turmoil involved in a changeover to a corporation.

He declared that three basic changes are needed: (1) giving top management the authority it needs; (2) restructuring employee-management relations; and (3) providing the Department with “updated, business-type financing.”

To ease its financing problems, the Department should be given “reasonable flexibility” in the use of the revenues it generates, and should be allowed to finance both the construction of its own buildings and the acquisition of necessary operating equipment.”

To deal with these financing problems, Representative Dulski would set up a new Postal Modernization Authority. The Authority would be headed by the Postmaster General and would act as a holding company, subject to the Government Corporation Control Act.

The Authority would be authorized (1) to issue, finance, and retire bonds secured by the Post Office property; (2) to conduct a vigorous research and development program, and (3) to lease needed equipment and property to the Post Office on a cost-recovery basis.

Underlying Questions

The search for a solution to the widely-accepted problem of Post Office financing is complicated by strong pressures and counterpressures in related areas, most specifically, controversy over the underlying concept that should guide the postal service, the way rates should be determined, and the knotty problem of labor-management relations.

It is in these three areas that major differences of opinion arise and which — even if not always stated so directly — color and mould the arguments on other points.

A Business Operation or a Tax-Subsidized Service?

The theme running throughout the Kappel Commission Report is that the Post Office is essentially a business-type operation and should be run as one.

Another viewpoint was epitomized in a letter to the Washington Post by Patrick J. Nilan, National Legislative Director, United Federation of Postal Clerks, AFL-CIO, commenting on a column by Evans and Novak. Mr. Nilan said:

The Post Office is many things. We ourselves agree it must develop more efficiency and better service — but why do Evans and Novak call it “debt-ridden”? As a public service agency, is the Post Office in any rational sense to be viewed as any more debt ridden than the Pentagon or NASA or the President’s Committee on Employment of the Handicapped?

Whether one believes the Post Office is merely a public service, like national defense, or a business-type enterprise that should be operated as a self-supporting business with its costs paid by the people who use it will color one’s approach to many aspects of the problem.

The Kappel Commission made clear on which side it stands:

Mail today is used primarily for commercial purposes. Mail service is principally a utility service not unlike the electronic communication system and the transportation system. The Post Office has a monopoly on communication by personal, written messages, and it provides the principal means for the shipment of small parcels; it is a major advertising medium.

The Commission concludes, therefore, that today the Post Office is a business. Like all economic functions it should be supported by revenues from its users. The market should decide what resources are to be allocated to the postal service.

Two Types of Subsidies. The Commission also recognized that its “essentially economic appraisal” of the Postal service is challenged by those who argue that the Postal Policy Act of 1958 declared the postal service to be a “public service” and that the Act defines the public service allowance or statutory subsidy.

Although agreeing that the Post Office is a public service in the sense, that like a utility, it serves the public at large without discrimination, the Commission said that much confusion has arisen because of failure to distinguish between a subsidy to the postal service as a whole and to specified individuals and groups using the service.

The overall subsidy should be eliminated entirely, it said, “in the light of the business nature of the mails and the impact of the deficit on management.” It added:

The second category of subsidies — subsidies to specific users of the service — is illustrated by special rates for charitable organizations and educational materials. These rates are the real “public service” subsidies. At present the method used to calculate them tends to overstate their amount and understate the extent to which the Treasury is supporting the postal system as a whole . . . when properly calculated, these subsidies represent about 3.8% of total postal costs. Thus, the amount of the true public service subsidy is quite small, confirming once again the business character of the postal system.

Differences of opinion as to whether the Post Office should be operated in a business-type way inevitably spill over into other areas, such as rate-setting and labor-management relations.

Postal Rates

The Commission noted that the Post Office remains the only major public utility with rates set by Congress. It recommended that the Corporation’s Board set postal rates in the public service based on actual cost of service, value to those served, and changing market demands. Meaningful information on the cost behavior of each postal activity, audited by independent professional accountants, would be provided by a modern cost accounting system that would replace the outmoded Cost Ascertainment System in use since 1926.

A combination of rate revisions and improvements in facilities and equipment that would boost productivity should enable the Post Office eventually to become self-supporting — “although not necessarily class by class.”

The Udall bill essentially follows this proposal, by authorizing the Board of Directors of the Corporation to set rates, which would go into effect unless vetoed by a concurrent resolution of Congress within 60 days.

Under this plan, Congress would establish broad policy criteria for rates, but not the “intricacies.”

The Dulski proposal is different, and generally reduces the role of the Corporation in rate-setting.

He proposes that a commission be empaneled to review postal rates every four years. The panel would make recommendations to the President, who could review them before submitting proposals to Congress. Either the House or Senate could vote changes to part or all of the proposals before they went into effect in 120 days.

In approving the Kappel Commission’s recommendations for creation of a postal corporation, the Board of Directors of the National Chamber also backed the rate-setting authority of the Corporation, subject to veto by Congress, with two qualifications: (1) Congress, not other postal users, should subsidize rate concessions like those now given non-profit groups; and (2) the Corporation should be compelled to set rates that are competitively fair with those imposed by Federal agencies on private enterprise services in competition with postal services.

Labor-Management

With the postal work force now highly unionized, it can be expected that these unions will be a major force in the battle over postal modernization.

There are numerous indications that the union leadership is less than enthusiastic about a corporation concept, probably because they fear they would not have as much leverage with the Directors named to run the system as they can now apply on Congress through their powerful lobbying efforts.

Under the Kappel Commission proposal and under the Udall bill, all present Departmental and field employees would be transferred from the Federal Civil Service to a new career service, with their accrued pension rights, leave pay, and seniority.

Conditions of employment for non-managerial employees would be established by collective bargaining, with salaries and fringe benefits negotiated.

The existing ban on strikes by Federal employees would be retained, but the parties would be free to establish binding arbitration procedures for the resolution of disputes. If a dispute could not be settled by mediation, the President would be authorized to devise a suitable means or mechanism for coping with the impasse.

The labor features in the Dulski bill are supported by the major postal unions. It would go much further in promoting union organization.

It provides for an independent, full-time Postal Labor-Management Relations Panel vested with authority to render final and conclusive decisions on disputes between employees and management, and for creation of an Executive Assistant for Employee Relations “who will not be subject to supervision, control or interference on the part of any other officer or employee of the Post Office Department.”

A study of the proposal by experts at the National Chamber revealed that “the subordination of employee rights to union prerogatives occurs throughout the bill”, and it “would erect artificially strong unions at the expense of employee rights and freedom. It would also seriously erode management’s freedom, and thereby its ability, to manage.”

It provides for such things as a union dues check-off, and requires the union to “participate” — not just negotiate — in management decisions. Generally, the study says, “the provisions of this bill go beyond any existing form of union participation in decision-making in our country today.”

Principles

Postmaster General O’Brien, under President Johnson

said. “I think the effort to patch a fabric so full of holes is yielding diminishing returns.” He recommended that the system be operated by a non-profit Government corporation.

President Johnson endorsed the principle of a government corporation in his closing days of office, as did his last Postmaster General, Marvin Watson.

An opinion poll of the Chamber’s 33,000 business members revealed near unanimous support for the major recommendations of the Kappel Commission.

Postmaster Blount has not yet made his recommendations, which are certain to be influential, although the Administration has moved to eliminate politics from the post office and has sent to Congress a bill that would eliminate patronage by requiring postmasters to be appointed through the Civil Service.

Amidst the pushing and the pulling that lie ahead in Congress and in the country, however, it would seem that certain principles must be adhered to if meaningful modernization is to be achieved.

Some of those principles were enunciated in a policy statement adopted by the National Chamber Board of Directors in February 1969. It said, in part:

The postal service is fundamentally a service to all the people of the United States and should be operated in their interest. The postal service should be conducted according to the highest standards of efficiency. The foundation of such operating efficiency should be a management organization structure as free from outside interference as possible with full responsibility and authority to control the income and expenses of the service in the same manner as a corporation operating in the private sector of the economy. All appointments to, and promotions within, the postal system should be made on a nonpolitical basis.

The postal service should be self-supporting. Until such time as the Congress eliminates rate concessions, it should specifically appropriate money to pay the difference, if any, between the rates that are paid and the reasonable allocated costs of handling such mail.

For consideration in fixing postal rates and fees, the postal organization should prepare cost schedules showing all fixed and variable costs of each subclass of mail. The reallocation of these costs would be determined after due consideration of the causes of such costs including such factors as preferment, deferment, and the character of the service.

The postal management should take continuing steps to improve the quality and kinds of service offered, the means by which service is provided and the physical conditions under which postal employees work.

Since postal workers must be denied the right to strike against the service reasonable methods should be provided to satisfactorily settle labor disputes.

The Board of Directors of the Chamber has interpreted the principles of this policy as supporting the establishment of a corporation as recommended by the Kappel Commission. Other plans will also be appraised against these principles.

IN CONGRESS

SPENDING AND TAXES

The Administration has sent to Congress its "interim" tax reform proposals as well as its review of the Budget -- along with promises that more changes would be recommended later.

Taxes. Tax changes recommended by the President and amplified in testimony before the House Ways and Means Committee by Treasury spokesmen are designed, he said, to "lighten the burden on those who pay too much and increase the burden on those who pay too little."

To place in effect what is a version of the much-discussed "minimum tax" on those whom it is charged pay too little, the Administration proposed (1) placing a limit on the use of tax preferences and (2) allocation of deductions.

The limit on tax preferences would set a 50% ceiling on the amount of a person's income (over $10,000 a year) that could "enjoy tax preferred status."

The allocation of deductions proposal is designed to prevent persons from bunching all their deductions and applying them against regularly-taxable income. A person with more than $10,000 of tax preferences would be required to allocate his non-business itemized deductions proportionately between his taxable income and the "allowable" portion of tax-preferred income.

The proposals designed to provide tax relief for low-income families would make a change in the optional tax table on the regular form. It would add a "low-income allowance" deduction. The combination of the low-income allowance and the minimum standard deduction would total $1,100, to which would be added the $600 personal exemption.

For a single taxpayer, the proposal would make income tax free up to $1,700. A family of four would pay no tax on an income up to $3,500.

Above these figures, the deduction would be gradually phased out, so that the relief for the single person would disappear at $3,300, and for the family of four, somewhere between $3,500 and $4,500.

The Treasury estimates the proposal would affect about 13 million taxpayers, and would remove about 5 million of these from the tax rolls.

Investment Credit and Surcharge

In what was obviously a last-minute decision, the Administration included in its message a request that the 7% investment tax credit be repealed, effective April 21, on the grounds that this incentive to business investment should no longer have priority over other pressing National needs.

Increased revenues from the repeal of 7% tax credit -- along with the growth of the economy -- would permit a reduction in the present 10% surcharge to 5% on January 1, and the probable elimination of the surtax by June 30, 1970, the President said.

Moving Expenses. The Message also included a proposal long-made by business that the tax treatment of moving expenses be eased. Under the proposal, the miscellaneous costs of moving, including the costs of house-hunting trips, the costs of temporary living quarters at a new location, and the costs of selling a house (or buying a new one) would be allowed as a deduction -- up to $1,000. An additional $1,500 would be allowed to the extent that selling or buying a house or breaking a lease are involved.

The Treasury also proposed changes in other tax treatment in numerous other areas including:

-- mineral production payments; tax-exempt foundations and charitable organizations; the limits on the charitable contributions deductions; the tax treatment of corporate securities frequently associated with corporate acquisitions; multiple surtax exemptions; farm income; the payment of tax-free dividends from accelerated depreciation reserves; the treatment of the accelerated depreciation election in the public utility regulatory process; stock dividends; long-term capital losses; restricted stock plans; income splitting in multiple trusts; and the rules affecting Subchapter S "small business" corporations.

BUDGET

The long-awaited Budget review projected outlays of $192.9 billion for fiscal 1970 (a reduction of $2.4 billion from the Johnson budget figure) and a surplus of $5.8 billion. Of the $5.8 billion surplus, $4 billion is to be obtained from a slash in outlays -- $1.1 billion from reduced defense spending, $1 billion from projected Social Security benefit plans; and $1.9 billion elsewhere.

DOMESTIC GOALS

The proposals for tax changes was the first of a series of legislative recommendations to go to Congress that the President outlined in an informal State-of-the-Union Message. Mr. Nixon told the Congress that the recommendations would be realistic -- that the goal of his Administration is "to propose legislation that we know we can execute once it becomes law." Among the recommendations will be:

- An increase in Social Security benefits designed to take account of rising living costs.

- A program of tax credits, aimed at providing new incentives for the enlistment of additional private resources in meeting social needs.

- A program to increase the effectiveness of equal employment opportunity efforts.

- A start on sharing revenues of the Federal government with other levels of Government.

- New airways, airports, and mass transit programs.

- A comprehensive labor and manpower program, including job training and placement improvements, and proposals to help guarantee the health and safety of workers.

- A comprehensive reorganization of the Post Office Department.

CRIME CONTROL

In the first of what are expected to be several special messages on crime control, the President painted a bleak picture of the effects of organized crime which has "deeply penetrated American life."

Included in his outlined program were authorized wiretapping; establishment of a unique Federal-State Racket Squad in New York City and 20 other Federal racketeering field offices across the Nation; an increase in the Federal Budget of $25 million, which will "roughly double present expenditures for the organized crime effort", and $300 million for the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration.

Mr. Nixon said that much of the income of the racketeers was derived from gambling, and asked for new Federal laws to help fight illegal gambling.

He said the Administration is studying the infiltration of organized crime into fields of legitimate business and the Attorney General is "examining the potential application of the theories underlying our anti-trust laws as a potential new weapon."

WATER QUALITY

Efforts are being made by the business community to clarify water quality legislation before its expected Congressional passage.

The House approved H.R. 4148 (Fallon, D-Md.) 392-1, on April 16, and the Senate Subcommittee on Air and Water Pollution is expected to report out soon legislation of a similar nature (S. 7, Muskie, D-Me.).

While proposing to give the Federal Government clear authority to deal with oil pollution disasters, the House bill prohibits the discharge in coastal waters of oil and "other matter", which, in the judgment of the Secretary of the Interior, presents a "substantial hazard to public health or welfare". It additionally places responsibility on owners of ships, offshore oil rigs, and other facilities for pollution damage -- up to $10 million in cleanup costs for ship-owners and to $8 million for operators of industrial facilities, including offshore oil rigs.

The $368 million, three-year program also includes funds for research and training grants.

OTHER DEVELOPMENTS

H.R. 9951 has been reported by the House Ways and Means Committee. The bill, sponsored by Committee Chairman Mills (D-Ark.) and Ranking Republican Member Byrnes, calls for quarterly, rather than annual collections of the Federal tax on payroll exacted from covered employers to finance administrative costs of the Federal-State employment security system. A Chamber committee has recommended the legislation be supported as a temporary solution to the problems caused by the fact that administrative costs are rising faster than revenues.

For the first time in history, the House Judiciary Committee seems ready to report out a Constitutional amendment that would abolish the electoral college and use the direct popular vote system in electing a President and Vice President. (H.J.Res. 179, Celler, D-N.Y.).

A spokesman for the National Chamber will appear April 29 before the House Foreign Affairs Subcommittee on Economic Policy to ask for enactment of H.Con.Res. 86 (Tunney, D-Calif.), that would urge the President to do away with present mandatory controls over U.S. direct investments in foreign countries. President Nixon recently eased the controls.

The House, prior to passage, amended H.R. 514 (Perkins, D-Ky.) so as to shorten from five years to two years the proposed extension of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act. The House also authorized some of the funds to be distributed as block grants. Observers feel the Senate will probably go along with the shorter extension, Supporters of the change said that the longer term was designed to prevent the new Administration from making any changes in the program.

President Nixon, in an effort to reduce the expected $1.2 billion 1970 postal deficit by more than $600 million has asked Congress to boost mail rates. First-class mail would go to 7¢, postcards to 6¢, effective July 1, 1969. Second-class mail would be raised by 12%, July 1, 1970, in addition to the 8% increase now scheduled January 1. Third-class mail would be increased by 16%, effective January 1, 1970.

Labor Secretary Shultz, appearing before the House Labor Committee, flatly rejected H.R. 100, a union-backed bill to permit secondary boycott picketing by construction and building unions at building sites, but offered to try to work out a compromise. Mr. Shultz said any bill to permit common situs picketing should not include its use in jurisdictional disputes between unions, should provide protection for industrial and independent unions, and should limit picketing to 15 days.

Rep. Dingel (D-Mich.) has introduced H.R. 10124, that would extend Federal authority beyond the Secretary of Commerce for approval of voluntary manufacturing standards. The bill provides that a voluntary group could submit standards to the Secretary of Commerce, who would also pass them on to the Bureau of Standards and to the FTC for approval...

Chairman Rodino (D-N.J.) has called his Special Committee on State Taxation of Interstate Commerce into executive session, April 30, and observers say it may report out H.R. 7906....

Mrs. Virginia Knauer, head of the Pennsylvania State Bureau of Consumer Protection, has been named President Nixon's Special Assistant on Consumer Affairs....The Antitrust Subcommittee of the Senate Judiciary Committee, has resumed hearings on the auto repair industry, including the role that insurance companies play in the business....

The Administration is opposing H.R. 7919 (Foley, D-Wash.), which would set up an Assistant Secretary of Human Nutrition in the Department of Agriculture to coordinate food assistance programs, on the grounds that the Department should develop its own programs on hunger and malnutrition and not be tied down by legislation at this time....

Senator Hart is expected to introduce soon a revised bill on franchising, which he says, will take some of the sting out of franchise cancellation and termination for the franchisee....Hearings will continue until May 1 by the International Finance Subcommittee, Senate Banking Committee, on legislation (S. 813) that would extend the Export Control Act, now scheduled to expire June 30, until June 30, 1973.

....Hearings are also continuing on H.R. 474 (Holifield, D-Calif.) by the Subcommittee on Military Operations. The bill would set up a 15-member Commission on Government Procurement to make a two-year study....The Joint Economic Committee will hold hearings April 30-May 1 on Federal statistical programs, with special emphasis on the scope of questions asked in the Census....The House Rules Committee has appointed a Special Subcommittee to study and report on the numerous proposals for Congressional Reform.

George Christian

TO THE CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES:

The Congress, the Executive Branch, and the Federal Judiciary are the vital nerve centers of government. Whoever mans them is involved in activities so momentous and far-reaching that they touch the lives of all our citizens -- and indeed of people the world over. Our national interest demands -- and our national survival requires -- that America summon its best men and women to assume the power of decision and the responsibility of leadership for government in action.

Central to this concern is the matter of compensation at the top echelons of Government. Today, the salaries we pay our top officials are clearly inadequate.

The Kappel Commission

The record of the past has been one of inadequate and fragmentary adjustments in top-level compensation -- always too little, often too late.

I believed in my Administration that the time had clearly come to re-examine the entire top Federal salary network. To this end, I asked the Congress to create a bipartisan commission to:

- Recommend any changes its study found necessary
- Review top-level Federal salaries every four years.

The Congress responded. In December 1967, I signed into law a measure which gave life to the Commission on Executive, Legislative and Judicial Salaries -- the first such body in our Nation's history.

The Commission was composed of nine distinguished Americans:

Three were appointed by the President:

- Frederick R. Kappel, former Chairman of the Board of Directors of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, who served as the Commission's Chairman.
- John J. Corson
Consultant and Corporate Director
- George Meany
President, American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations

more

Two were appointed by the President of the Senate:

- Stephen K. Bailey
Dean, Maxwell Graduate School
Syracuse University
- Sidney J. Weinberg
Senior Partner, Goldman, Sachs & Co.

Two were appointed by the Speaker of the House of Representatives:

- Edward H. Foley
Attorney
Former Undersecretary of the Treasury
- William Spoelhof
President, Calvin College
Grand Rapids, Michigan

Two were appointed by the Chief Justice of the United States:

- Arthur H. Dean
Attorney
Chairman, U.S. Delegation, Nuclear Test Ban and Disarmament Conference
- William T. Gossett
Attorney
President, American Bar Association

After a comprehensive study of top Federal salaries, the Commission concluded that:

- Present compensation levels are not commensurate with the importance of the positions held.
- These levels are not sufficient to support a standard of living that individuals qualified for such posts can fairly expect to enjoy and in many instances have long established.
- Action should be taken to modernize, without delay, the top pay structure of the Executive, Legislative and Judicial Branches of government.

The Recommended Reforms

Any recommendations the President might make for salary reform must be included in his budget. In preparing my budget for Fiscal Year 1970, I carefully reviewed the full report of the Kappel Commission. Their proposals served as a valuable guide as I weighed the recommendations the law requires me to make -- recommendations which will become effective 30 days after they are submitted unless the Congress disapproves them during that period.

I agree with the recommendations of the Kappel Commission Report. If I alone had the power to put its recommendations into effect, I would do so. But in our proposal to the Congress and in the law passed by the Congress creating the Commission, final action on the report was to be a joint enterprise between the executive and legislative branches. I have therefore found it necessary to modify some of the Kappel Commission recommendations -- particularly with respect to congressional salaries, and also with respect to the pay of certain executive positions.

I do recommend that the Kappel Commission proposals be put into effect for the top officials of the federal, judicial and executive branches. For them, I recommend the following pay scales:

|---|----------|
| Chief Justice: | $62,500 |
| Associate Justices of the Supreme Court: | $60,000 |
| Cabinet Heads: | $60,000 |

Of all the salaries, Congressional compensation posed the most difficult problem of all and was the hinge on which my recommendations turned. As the Commission pointed out:

"Members' salaries should be adjusted to compensate for the substantial and unique responsibilities they bear, to meet the cost peculiar to elective rather than appointive office, and to minimize the need to rely on other means of augmenting income."

The Commission then recommended that Congressional pay should be set at $50,000.

Congressional salaries have been raised in slow and piecemeal fashion, far outpaced by pay increases in the rest of the economy. Over the past three decades, Congressmen have received only three pay increases -- an average of one pay raise every ten years -- to the current level of $30,000, a salary which by today's standards is woefully inadequate.

I do not think that the American people want to see their elected representatives -- who must bear the awesome burdens these critical times demand -- serve their Nation at the price of financial hardship. I therefore believe that the $50,000 Congressional salary recommended by the Kappel Commission can be justified.

A proper concern for history and tradition, however, suggests that the President should consult the leaders of Congress before he makes any recommendations concerning Congressional salaries.

I have done that.

These discussions and consultations revealed that Congress would be reluctant to approve a $50,000 salary. When it comes to a pay increase, Congress puts its own members last in line. Instead, an increase to $42,500 was considered preferable and more likely to receive the necessary support. I respect the desires of the leaders of the Congress. I therefore now recommend a $42,500 salary for the Members of the House of Representatives and the Senate.

The Congressional salary I am recommending today represents an 89% increase over the level of compensation in 1955. I must point out, however, that during this same period salaries of the highest Civil Service career grade increased by well over 100 per cent.

Civil Service salaries, moreover, will be adjusted periodically to keep them comparable to those in industry -- while Congressional salaries must, under current law, remain unchanged for the next four years.

Projections indicate the following salary increases between 1955 and 1972:

|----------|--|
| -- 88.9% | Congressional salaries |
| -- 90% | Postal workers |
| -- 94% | Average Federal worker |
| -- 94% | Factory workers |
| -- 101% | Government Wage Board employees |
| -- 109% | GS-15 Career Civil Servant |
| -- 135% | GS-18 Career Civil Servant |

Thus, even with the recommended pay increase for our lawmakers, the increase in Congressional salaries will lag behind those of other Government workers and employees in the private sector.

Since the weight of custom and a sense of fairness require that we maintain and preserve proper pay relationships at the upper echelons of Government, the proposed $42,500 Congressional salary requires that I make certain adjustments in the Kappel Commission's proposals for other top level salaries. Accordingly, I recommend the following pay scales:

|--|----------|
| Level II (Heads of Major Agencies): | $42,500 |
| Level III (Including Under Secretaries): | $40,000 |
| Level IV (Including Ass't. Secretaries): | $38,000 |
| Level V (Including Heads of Boards): | $36,000 |

My recommendations for the other top level positions covered by the Kappel Commission are set forth in my budget in accordance with the requirements of Public Law 90-206.

The salaries of the Vice President, the Speaker of the House, the Majority and Minority Leaders of the House and Senate and the President Pro Tem of the Senate were not, as such, covered by the Kappel Commission's charter. For this reason, I am submitting separate pay legislation embodying my recommendations, as follows:

|---|----------|
| Vice President: | $62,500 |
| Speaker of the House: | $62,500 |
| Majority and Minority Leaders of the House and Senate and President Pro Tem of the Senate: | $55,000 |

Congressional Allowances

The burdens imposed by Congressional service are unique. They often require members to bear extra expenses in connection with their official responsibilities.

Most lawmakers, for example, must maintain two homes for themselves and their families -- one among the people in the district or state they serve; the other in or near the Nation's capital.

Recognizing these facts, the Federal tax laws have allowed deductions of up to $3,000 a year for living expenses at the seat of our national government.

That maximum deduction has remained fixed for 15 years now -- while sessions of the Congress have grown longer and longer under the pressure of increasing workloads and crowded legislative calendars.

I believe we should increase the maximum deduction so that Members of Congress will not be required to use any new pay increase to defray some of the essential living expenses incurred in the pursuit of their official duties.

Accordingly, I recommend that the maximum Federal tax deduction for Congressional living expenses be raised by $2,500 -- from $3,000 to $5,500.

Excellence in the Public Service

The proposals I make today are long overdue and urgently needed salary reforms at the upper levels of our government. But they are more than pay recommendations, for they cut to the heart of what modern government is all about -- excellence in the pursuit of the public's business.

This moment of decision provides a unique occasion to strengthen the sinews of American government. We can do this by offering to our best and ablest citizens fair compensation for the job they must do in guiding America forward in the years ahead.

Just as these public servants -- in the Congress, in the Cabinet and in the Judiciary -- have a responsibility to the Nation, so the Nation has a responsibility to them.

The total amounts involved in my pay proposals are relatively small. But they will be wise investments in our future.

I urge the Congress to grasp the opportunity presented to it and to respond favorably to the recommendations I am submitting today.
