H.J.Res. 242 authorizes and requests the President to issue a proclamation designating the calendar week beginning May 12, 1975, as "National Historic Preservation Week." The proclamation would urge government agencies at all levels, as well as other interested groups, to observe the week with educational efforts, ceremonies, and other activities which appropriately take note of our historic landmarks and will demonstrate lasting respect for this unique heritage. In reporting on this legislation, the House Committee on Post Office and Civil Service stated:

"The committee notes that an indispensable element of the strength, the freedom, and the constructive world leadership of this Nation is the knowledge and appreciation of our origins and history, of who we are, where we are, and how we arrived there.

"Historic preservation today, involves much more than preserving period rooms in house museums. It means, more importantly, that old homes, public buildings, hotels, taverns, theaters, industrial buildings, churches, and commercial structures can be saved and put to contemporary use as living history to be treated with respect and incorporated within our planning, as our towns and cities grow, to provide the citizens of this Nation with an environment of quality and enduring interest.

"These historic buildings and places not only are our roots, but are also our sources of pride in our past achievements and enrich our lives today."

Attached is a proposed proclamation prepared by the National Trust for Historic Preservation, which would implement the joint resolution. The proposed proclamation has the approval of the Director of the Office of Management and Budget, and attorneys in the Department of Justice who review proclamations as to form and legality have indicated to us that they perceive no objection to it.

SMITHSONIAN INSTITUTION Washington, D.C. 20560 U.S.A.

14 May 1975

Mr. James M. Frey Assistant Director for Legislative Reference Office of Management and Budget Executive Office of the President Washington, D. C. 20503

Dear Mr. Frey:

Thank you for requesting the views of the Smithsonian Institution on enrolled bill H. J. Res. 242 to authorize and request the President to issue a proclamation designating the calendar week beginning May 12, 1975, as "National Historic Preservation Week."

As the Nation moves into the Bicentennial year it is appropriate to mark our roots and the visible signs of those roots that still endure. In reflecting on from where we came, we must also consider to where we shall go. National Historic Preservation Week offers timely moments in which to reflect on the pleasures of the places of our past and to consider them as a framework for the future.

The Smithsonian Institution respectfully requests endorsement by the President of H. J. Res. 242.

Sincerely yours,

Din Ry

OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY WASHINGTON, D.C. 20240

MAY 5 1975

Dear Mr. Lynn:

This responds to your request for the views of this Department on the enrolled bill H.J. Res. 242, "To authorize and request the President to issue a proclamation designating the calendar week beginning May 12, 1975 as "National Historic Preservation Week."

We recommend that the President approve this enrolled bill.

H.J. Res. 242 would authorize the President to proclaim the calendar week beginning May 12, 1975, as "National Historic Preservation Week." During this week Federal, State and local Government agencies, as well as citizens and private organizations, would be urged to observe the occasion with appropriate activities designed to call public attention to the need for preservation of historic landmarks and to instill respect for our unique heritage.

While this Department had no opportunity to comment on this resolution, we strongly support its enactment as a means to demonstrate the appreciation of this Nation's origin and history.

Sincerely yours, Assistant S ecretary of the Interior

NATIONAL HISTORIC PRESERVATION WEEK

BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

A PROCLAMATION

The affairs and state of the world around us demonstrate the value of appreciating and understanding our roots and origins in the past as a foundation of our identity in the present and our dreams for the future.

America's history is evidenced throughout the nation by the surviving examples of our man-made heritage, not only along the streets of our cities and towns but also in our rural areas. An indispensable element of the strength, the freedom and the constructive world leadership of this nation is the knowledge and appreciation of our origins and history, of who we are, where we are, and how we arrived here.

Loss of the essential evidences of our heritage in the name of progress continues to occur but the counteracting effect of the historic preservation effort is increasingly evident and effective in both the public and private sector. National Historic Preservation Week offers a timely opportunity to illustrate what has been done and what can be accomplished in the future to carry out our national resolve to preserve the evidences of our cultural and historical heritage, represented not only by structures of national historic significance but, of equal importance, by old homes, buildings, both commercial and industrial, hotels, taverns, theaters and railroad passenger stations which can be recycled for contemporary private, public, cultural, commemorative and other uses.

Such uses of our historic man-made resources reflect our commitment to the enrichment of the present and future generations of Americans, to assure everlasting enhancement of the roots of our historic past, to assure their preservation and appreciation, to apply their lessons, and thus significantly contribute to successful revitalization of rural, community and urban development.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, GERALD R. FORD, President of the United States of America, as requested by a joint resolution of Congress, do hereby proclaim the calendar week beginning May 12, 1975, as National Historic Preservation Week. I call upon government agencies at all levels, interested private individuals, and concerned citizens to mark this observance with appropriate ceremonies and activities.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand this day of , in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred seventy-five, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred ninety-ninth.

REPORT

[To accompany H.J. Res. 242]

The Committee on Post Office and Civil Service, to whom was referred the joint resolution (H.J. Res. 242) to authorize and request the President to issue a proclamation designating the calendar week beginning May 12, 1975, as "National Historic Preservation Week," having considered the same, report favorably thereon without amendment and recommend that the joint resolution do pass.

PURPOSE

The purpose of this joint resolution is to authorize and request that the President issue a proclamation designating the calendar week beginning May 12, 1975, as "National Historic Preservation Week." The proclamation would call upon Federal, State, and local govern-

The proclamation would call upon Federal, State, and local government agencies, as well as citizens and private organizations, to observe that week with educational, historic ceremonies and other appropriate activities which are designed to call public attention to the urgent need to have our historic landmarks for the enjoyment and edification of the citizens of our Nation, and thereby demonstrating lasting respect for our unique heritage.

STATEMENT

This resolution and a similar resolution were introduced by Mr. Coughlin and cosponsored by 19 other Members of Congress.

It was ordered reported by a unanimous voice vote of the committee.

The committee notes that an indispensable element of the strength, the freedom, and the constructive world leadership of this Nation is the knowledge and appreciation of our origins and history, of who we are, where we are, and how we arrived there.

Historic preservation today, involves much more than preserving period rooms in house museums. It means, more importantly, that old

These historic buildings and places not only are our roots, but are also our sources of pride in our past achievements and enrich our lives today.

In view of the fact that the 200th anniversary of the founding of this Republic is fast approaching, the committee believes that it would be most appropriate to request the President to issue a proclamation designating the week of May 12, 1975, as "National Historic Preservation Week."

The committee believes that this resolution is meritorious and, accordingly, recommends that it be given favorable consideration.
