Scope and Content Note

The office provided still-photographic coverage of Gerald Ford's day-to-day activities as Vice President and President. David Kennerly, a photojournalist whom Ford met while Vice President, and four other photographers, shot approximately 290,000 photos of Mr. Ford and his staff and family. They took the photos in White House meeting rooms, offices, and the family residence; at Camp David and aboard Air Force One; during trips overseas, vacations in Colorado , and campaign swings. Kennerly enjoyed exceptional access to the President. White House photographers also documented Vice President Nelson Rockefeller's activities, but the Ford Library has no negatives and only some photos from this work.

The photos in this collection may be viewed in binders of "contact sheets," or small images on photographic paper of each roll of film, arranged by the date the film was developed. See the Container List below for access to images of digitized contact sheets.

The prints and the corresponding negatives (also among the holdings of the Library) are in the public domain, and copies may be purchased and used without copyright restriction.

Related Materials (July 2010):

The Library also holds a 1.6 linear feet of textual records of this office, which are described separately.

Related photographic collections include those donated to the Library by David Kennerly and Susan Ford.

Gerald R. Ford White House Photographs, 1974-77.

(ca. 290,000 images on 12,885 contact sheets)

The series contains photographs of Gerald R. Ford's day-to-day activities as President and Betty Ford's as First Lady, along with many pictures of their children and other family members, White House staff members, presidential advisors, Federal government officials, and other attendees at White House meetings and social events. David Hume Kennerly was the lead photographer, but Ricardo Thomas, Bill Fitz-Patrick, Karl Schumacher, and Jack Kightlinger also took many photographs. Photograph locations include White House meeting rooms, offices, and the family residence; at Camp David, in the limousine, aboard Air Force One, and the sites of various domestic and overseas trips (including 1976 presidential campaign trips) and vacations in Vail, Colorado. Topics include presidential speeches (including campaign speeches), Cabinet Meetings, White House briefings, meetings with foreign heads of state and ambassadors, meetings with congressional leaders and other members of Congress, media interviews and press conferences, Republican Party meetings and fundraisers, and White House luncheons and dinners.

The contact sheets are arranged numerically by numbers assigned to each roll of film by the staff as they were processed in the lab. Thus the photographs are roughly in chronological order by the date on which the photographs were developed (not the date on which they were taken).
