COLUMBIA, Mo.--Dr. C. Brice Ratchford was appointed June 24, 1971, as President of the University of Missouri by the Board of Curators. He had served as Interim President since October 27, 1970. Dr. Ratchford became the fifteenth president in the University's 132-year history.

Dr. Patchford was born in Gaston County, North Carolina, in 1920. He earned his Bachelor of Science degree in agricultural economics from North Carolina State College in 1942, graduating at the top of his class. He entered the Army that year, and during his four years of service, two of them spent in the Far East with the Office of Strategic Service, Dr. Patchford rose through the ranks from private to captain. He achieved the rank of lieutenant colonel in the Army Reserve before becoming inactive.

In 1946, Dr. Ratchford returned to North Carolina State College in Raleigh as Farm Management Specialist, a position he had held for five months before entering the Army. The next year, he received his Master of Science degree in agricultural economics from North Carolina State College. From September, 1949, he spent one year as a graduate student at Duke University in Durham, N.C. In September, 1950, Dr. Ratchford became Project Leader in Farm Management and Marketing at North Carolina State College, a post he held four years. He received his Doctor of Philosophy degree in economics from Duke University in 1951.

Among Dr. Ratchford's academic honors are membership in Phi Beta Kappa, Phi Kappa Phi, Alpha Zeta, Gamma Sigma Delta, and Epsilon Sigma Phi. In 1954, he was promoted to Assistant Director of the North Carolina Cooperative Extension Service at North Carolina State College, where he served until 1959.

Dr. Patchford, while in North Carolina, served as chairman of a nation wide task force that outlined the future scope of extension work in the United States. The findings were published in 1959 as "A Guide to Extension Programs for the Future." He was a member of the subcommittee which helped implement the recommendations of the Scope task force and a member of the National Subcommittee on Marketing, both under the Extension Committee on Organization and Policy.

In July, 1959, Dr. Ratchford moved to the University of Missouri as Director of Cooperative Extension Service. In 1960, he was promoted to become Dean of the Extension Division, which, under his direction, had combined into a single administrative unit all extension and off-campus educational services. In 1965, Dr. Ratchford was appointed Vice President for Extension.

Through Dr. Ratchford's leadership, the University's extension operations have grown rapidly and become a model for many other states. He received wide recognition for developing a program bringing all the University's off-campus courses and all non-credit courses under the same direction. January, 1970, marked the completion of a program started at Dr. Ratchford's initiative: all Missouri counties were coordinated into 20 program planning units to improve the Division's overall organizational efficiency and staff competency. Dr. Ratchford also is responsible for the creation of a program of community development education and for the successful coordination of extension activities with federal, state, local and private agencies.

Throughout his career, Dr. Ratchford has received many awards and much recognition for his abilities. Apart from those already mentioned, the following are representative samples of his achievements. He was chairman of a national committee to advise the Department of Commerce on establishment of an Industrial Extension Service and was a member of President Johnson's task force on the War Against Poverty. In 1966, he was a member of a 10-man group, also appointed by President Johnson, to make an intensive, on-the-spot study of agricultural and rural conditions in Vietnam. He has served as a member of the Missouri State Soil and Water Districts Commission and on the Governor's Watershed Advisory Committee. Dr. Ratchford served as the first chairman of the new Missouri Rural Development Committee and in 1970 this group rapidly organized and developed plans for rural development which are currently being implemented.

Presently, Dr. Ratchford serves on the Governmental Relations Committee of the National University Extension Association and is a member of the Executive Committee for the Council of Extension of the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges. He is chairman of the National Land-Grant Committees, one on Industrial Extension.

Among Dr. Ratchford's many memberships are the American Farm Economics Association, the American Statistical Society, the American Agricultural Economics Society, the Academy of Political Science, the Presbyterian Church and the Missouri Academy of Squires.

Listed in six different "Who's Who" publications, Dr.

Ratchford's awards and honors are many. In 1971, he received two awards for his work in pioneering the consolidation of all extension services and activities of the University into a total extension division. One was the Distinguished Service Award of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, the highest honor conferred by the Department. The other was the Walton S. Bittner Service Citation from the National University Extension Association. This citation said, "The Missouri extension organization has served as a model for other extension units throughout the country and the world." His long list of publications includes bulletins, journal articles and proceedings.

Dr. Ratchford and his wife, Betty have two children, Charles and Mary Eloise.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH

DR. H. O. KUNKEL

DEAN OF AGRICULTURE

TEXAS A&M UNIVERSITY - THE TEXAS A&M UNIVERSITY SYSTEM

H. O. Kunkel, born in 1922, grew up on a farm near Olney in North Central Texas. After graduation from Olney High School, he attended Texas A&M University and was graduated in 1943 with a degree in agriculture (animal husbandry). Following service in World War II, he returned to Texas A&M for graduate work and received his MS. degree in biochemistry and nutrition in 1948. His doctoral degree in biochemistry came in 1950 at Cornell University, where he studied under Nobel Prize winner James B. Sumner. A year of postdoctorate study was spent at the University of Wisconsin.

During World War II, Dr. Kunkel served as a U.S. Army field artillery officer in the Asiatic-Pacific Theater from 1943-46.

Dr. Kunkel's work at Texas A&M began in 1951 when he was appointed assistant professor in the Departments of Biochemistry and Biophysics, and of Animal Science. Next came his associate professorship in 1955 and full professorship in 1957. In 1962, he began his administrative career as associate director of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, and in 1967 was appointed acting dean of the College of Agriculture and acting director of the Experiment Station. He was named Dean of Agriculture in March, 1968.

The Scientist-administrator is the author and co-author of more than 40 scientific papers in biochemistry and animal nutrition. He holds elected memberships in the American Society of Biological Chemists, American Institute of Nutrition and the Society for Experimental Biology and Medicine, and in 1956 was named a fellow in the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

He also is a member of the American Chemical Society, American Society of Animal Science and the Poultry Science Association. Honorary society memberships include Phi Kappa Phi, Society of the Sigma Xi, Alpha Zeta and Gamma Sigma Delta.

The dean is a member of the Council of Administrative Heads of Agriculture and chairman of the Legislative Committee of the Division of Agriculture, National Association of State Universities and Land Grant Colleges. He is the immediate past chairman of the Council on Education in the Agricultural Sciences of the Southern Regional Education Board.

During his teaching career, he was twice named "Outstanding Professor" by the Texas A&M Student Agricultural Council. In 1956, he received the Association of Former Students' Distinguished Achievement in Teaching Award.

Dr. Kunkel was married to the former Miss Beverly Virginia Davies in 1960. The couple has two daughters and one son.

Allan Grant - President of the American Farm Bureau and a supporter of yours. He recommends persuading Phil Campbell, former Under Secretary of Agriculture, to come back for a month or two (Campbell resigned earlier this year for health reasons). Such a short term appointment would reassure the farmers that the Earl Butz philosophy would be continued and that the Department was in solid hands. Grant further recommends not naming anyone permanently but that you say publicly that you have some farmers under serious consideration. Harlow supports this approach.
