Dear Ms. ~~Hannigan~~ Hannigan:

Pursuant to our conversation of today, the group of Candlelighters meeting at The White House would present a scroll which would thank the President and the First Lady for their efforts and work to help lead in the defeat of cancer and that would be accompanied by a letter which would point out the magnitude of the task still ahead of us and some of the suggestions we might have through our experience and work over the past six years which might help speed the day we can find a solution to this problem.

Enclosed is a pamphlet concerning the Candlelighters and attached is a list of those people who will be at The White House.

If you have any questions, please contact me at 225-4472.

Mr. Charles Leppert, Jr.
Special Assistant for Legislative Affairs (House)
Executive Office of the President
The White House
Washington, D. C.

Dear Charley:

For the past few years the Candlelighters organization, composed of parents whose children have cancer, has made an annual visit to the White House around Christmas time to present to the President or his representative a symbolic candle which signifies the determination of the Candlelighters and all others to continue fighting until the dread disease is wiped out. The courtesies extended by the White House and its staff have been outstanding every year and in the past years we have worked with John Nidecker.

This year due to unforeseen circumstances the Christmas visit did not materialize. However, thanks to you continued interest and cooperation, I am writing to you once again to arrange another date for a visit by the Candlelighters. The Candlelighters were organized in the Washington Metropolitan area approximately six years ago by concerned parents whose children have cancer for the two-fold purpose of highlighting the fight against this dread disease and for the secondary purpose of exchanging ideas of mutual interest to the group. Since this time Candlelighters chapters "unfortunately" have sprung up in many sections of the country and are in constant touch with each other exchanging ideas and proposals.

A visit to the White House will indeed highlight the continued interest of all Americans in their effort to destroy this dread disease and the greatest childhood killer of them all.

As to when, where and how I leave up to you. I thank you for all your assistance.

With kindest personal regards, I am

Sincerely,

Richard J. Sullivan

Candlelighters

Candlelighters began in April 1970 as a group of parents of young cancer patients at local hospitals and clinics in the Washington, D. C. area. The group has since grown to include other family members of adult cancer sufferers. There are presently 19 similar groups in 12 states.

Candlelighters have two primary goals, to obtain consistent and adequate federal support for cancer research and to help parents and other family members who share our experience.

HELPING EACH OTHER

To help families of cancer sufferers meet and deal with the emotional stresses of their experience, Candlelighters provides a positive outlet for the frustrations and apprehensions they share.

Members of the group provide personal assistance to one another in times of unusual stress and give the support that can only come from those who share a common experience.

Action-oriented programs of the group include communication with hospitals and research groups across the country, working with local and national media to focus attention on the special problems of cancer sufferers and their families and continued lobbying efforts in the Congress and the White House.

KEEPING INFORMED

Regular monthly meetings of Candlelighters groups keep members informed of research efforts and programs. Presentations are made by top government and research leaders, social workers, physicians who treat young cancer patients, medical journalists and authors of books and other publications on cancer, psychiatrists and other parents.

Endorsement for Candlelighters has come from physicians and laymen associated with cancer in many parts of the country. For example, doctors of the Cleveland Clinic in Ohio say, "Our involvement with Candlelighters is excellent. The whole organization should be congratulated for the relief it affords."

LOBBYING TO CONQUER CANCER

Candlelighters started when federal funding levels for cancer research had dwindled. Responding to a need for stepped-up federal efforts to combat cancer, Candlelighters met with key members of the Congress and the Administration responsible for cancer research appropriations and programs. Candlelighters testified at congressional hearings on health appropriations. During hearings on the National Cancer Act of 1971, one legislator termed the Candlelighters testimony "a remarkably realistic and helpful presentation. I certainly hope you will get other chapters formed and moving because this is a model of how groups who want to get something done should go about doing it."

THE CONQUEST OF CANCER ACT

Signed by the President in December 1971, the Conquest of Cancer Act would permit $1.6 billion to be spent over three years (fiscal '72, '73, '74) for cancer research projects sponsored by the National Cancer Institute. For fiscal 1972, the Administration spent $378 million. $432 million are budgeted for fiscal 1973 and $500 million in '74. Reapproval of the Act and new funding ceilings remain to be set for fiscal 1975.

It is important to remember, however, that although the Conquest of Cancer Act authorizes these amounts, it remains in the hands of Congress and House and Senate members of the Labor-HEW Appropriations Subcommittees to annually appropriate the funds. Consequently, there is a continuing need to urge legislators to appropriate the full funding authorized, and to urge the President to spend the full appropriation. As a registered parents lobby group, Candlelighters of Washington carefully monitors the activities of these committees. There are no paid members or staff, however, and passage of effective funding legislation depends on the personal involvement of concerned parents across the country.

HOW APPROPRIATIONS SUBCOMMITTEES WORK

Appropriations for the National Institutes of Health, of which the National Cancer Institute is a part, start each spring in the House Appropriations Subcommittee on Labor, Health, Education and Welfare. After it is passed by the House, the bill goes to the Senate Appropriations Subcommittee on Labor, Health, Education and Welfare which recommends Senate action.

Letters addressed to members of these committees, stressing the need for full financial support of cancer research, are helpful. It is especially important for constituents of these committee members to make their wishes known to their representatives and senators.

Mr. Charles Leppert, Jr.

The White House
Washington, D. C.

Dear Charley:

For the past few years the Candlelighters organization, composed of parents whose children have cancer, has made an annual visit to the White House around Christmas time to present to the President or his representative a symbolic candle which signifies the determination of the Candlelighters and all others to continue fighting until the dread disease is wiped out. The courtesies extended by the White House and its staff have been outstanding every year and in the past years we have worked with John Nidecker.

I am writing to you at this time to see if arrangements can be made to set up a time and a place for our annual visit to the White House. Briefly, as I have stated, the Candlelighters were organized in the Washington Metropolitan area approximately six years ago by concerned parents whose children have cancer for the two-fold purpose of highlighting the fight against this dread disease and for the secondary purpose of exchanging ideas of mutual interest to the group. Since this time Candlelighters chapters "unfortunately" have sprung up in many sections of the country and are in constant touch with each other exchanging ideas and proposals.

We have normally come through one of the gates of Pennsylvania Avenue bringing with us the parents, children and relatives, and march in a candlelight procession to the front of the White House where the symbolic candle has been presented. On several occasions the parents and children have been fortunate to visit the interior of the White House.

Any assistance you can provide to me in making these arrangements will be deeply appreciated by all of us in Candlelighters.

With kindest personal regards for a happy Thanksgiving, I am

Sincerely,
Dick

Dear Congressman Hillis:

This is in further response to your request for a White House tour and briefing for the Senior Citizens Interns during their planned two week visit to Washington from May 3 - 14.

I have been able to schedule a special White House tour on Friday, May 7, from 8:00 to 9:00 a.m. After the tour the group should assemble in the Family Theater for a briefing by a member of our Legislative Affairs staff.

Also, I have requested that the President drop by sometime during the briefing. However, I am unable to say at this time if his heavy schedule will permit it.

Dear Max:

In behalf of those Members of Congress who are sponsoring Senior Citizen Interns this year, I would like to request a special tour of the White House followed by a briefing from your office during the two-week period beginning May 3.

From all indications the program this year will have greatly expanded over previous years. More and more Members of Congress are supporting the senior intern concept and are participating in the two-week program. Also, the House Select Committee on Aging has given their endorsement.

In the past, the President has proclaimed May as Senior Citizens Month. I assume that Mr. Ford will do the same again this year. With this in mind, could such be arranged to coincide with the senior interns visit? Once, when he was Vice President, Mr. Ford did greet the senior interns in the Capitol. We are especially hoping that this year he will be able to welcome them to the White House. I would think that this would bring some favorable publicity by the media.

Max, I know that time is precious at the White House. However, anything which you may be able to do will be especially appreciated by me and the other Members who are sponsoring interns.

Any arrangements should be made with Donna Norton on my staff.

With kind personal regards, I remain

Sincerely,
