The Peking #1 Carpet Factory

The Peking Carpet Factory produces primarily handmade rugs and tapestries. They are produced mainly for export, mostly to European countries.

The Factory employes more than 1,500 workers, 60 per cent of whom are women. It began with about two dozen employees in 1949.

More than 100 different designs are produced here, in one of five basic styles: Peking, antique, artistic, multicolor and unicolor. The process begins in the design room, where workers draw and trace designs. It continues in the weaving rooms, where workers sit at floor-to-ceiling loom devices and hand pull and cut each thread into the carpet design. The rugs are cut, and patterns defined by a scissors process in another department, and are washed before going to the shipping room. Threads used in the carpet-making are dyed on the premises also.

It takes anywhere from three to six months to produce a carpet and about three years to fully train a weaver. The Factory produces about 60,000 square meters of carpet a year in more than 100 different colors.

The Forbidden City (Palace Museum)

The Forbidden City was the residence of the Emperor and his household during dynasties over a 500-year period.

Common people were forbidden access to the 250-acre expanse, located in the geographic center of Peking, protected by walls more than 35-feet-high and a moat 160-feet-wide.

The Forbidden City began to be built in 1406 by the third Ming Emperor, Yung Lo, after his decision in 1403 to establish the capital of his empire at Peking. The work was done primarily from 1407-1420, with more than 200,000 workmen employed.

The Forbidden City comprises about one-sixth of the Imperial City, an area also walled which surrounded the Forbidden City. The Imperial City housed the administrative and maintenance organizations, granaries, stables, orchards, parks, residences of officials and princes, and some of the palaces and pleasure gardens of the Emperor.

The outer buildings of the Forbidden City became a museum in 1914, with more than 20,000 relics on display. Treasures in the Jade Rooms to be visited by Mrs. Ford range from the Imperial jewels and garments to a five-ton piece of jade.

Also included in Mrs. Ford's visit is Yu Hua Yuan (The Imperial Garden), an area of more than 7,000 square metres built during the Ming period. There are pines and cypresses several hundred years old interposed with rocks of several kinds. To the north side is a rockery hill. It was here that the Ming and Ch'ing emperors passed their leisure hours.

The Forbidden City was also known as the "Purple Forbidden City." Purple was symbolically attributed to the North Star and was used here to show that the Imperial Residence was a cosmic center.

The Peking #1 Carpet Factory

The Peking Carpet Factory produces primarily handmade rugs and tapestries. They are produced mainly for export, mostly to European countries.

The Factory employes more than 1,500 workers, 60 per cent of whom are women. It began with about two dozen employees in 1949.

More than 100 different designs are produced here, in one of five basic styles: Peking, antique, artistic, multicolor and unicolor. The process begins in the design room, where workers draw and trace designs. It continues in the weaving rooms, where workers sit at floor-to-ceiling loom devices and hand pull and cut each thread into the carpet design. The rugs are cut, and patterns defined by a scissors process in another department, and are washed before going to the shipping room. Threads used in the carpet-making are dyed on the premises also.

It takes anywhere from three to six months to produce a carpet and about three years to fully train a weaver. The Factory produces about 60,000 square meters of carpet a year in more than 100 different colors.

THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON
THE PRESIDENT AND MRS. FORD'S VISIT TO THE PACIFIC BASIN
PEKING
DAY # 3

First Event: 9:45 A.M.

From: Terry O'Donnell TO

BACKGROUND

OVERVIEW

You have 3 events scheduled for Tuesday: (1) In the morning, a Head-to-Head Meeting at the Great Hall of the People, (2) In the afternoon, a tour of the Temple of Heaven and (3) In the evening, the ballet at the Great Hall of the People. Two hours personal/staff time is scheduled after the Head-to-Head, and three hours personal/staff time after the tour of the Temple.

Mrs. Ford has the morning and afternoon free. She is scheduled to accompany you to the ballet in the evening. She may, if she wishes, join you for the afternoon tour of the Temple; however, the likelihood of cold weather and winds coupled with a long and difficult walk over cobble stones might render the tour inadvisable. An option exists whereby Mrs. Ford could join you during the latter portion of the tour thereby avoiding most of the exposure and walk.

Susan is scheduled to depart by motorcade at 9:00 a.m. for the Great Wall and the Ming Tombs. She will return to the Guest House at 3:45 p.m. She is scheduled to join you and Mrs. Ford for the evening ballet.

HEAD-TO-HEAD MEETING

You are scheduled to board the motorcade at 9:45 a.m. for the 10-minute drive to the Great Hall of the People to attend the first Head-to-Head Meeting. Participants are listed in the sequence. Following the two hour meeting, you will return to the Guest House for 2 hours personal staff time.

VISIT TO THE TEMPLE OF HEAVEN

You are scheduled to depart the Guest House at 2:30 p.m., board the motorcade, and depart for the 25-minute drive to the Temple of Heaven. You will be accompanied by a senior PRC Official whose identify has not yet been disclosed to us.

The Temple of Heaven is the most famous temple in all of China. It is not really a temple in the classic sense of the word. It is a triumphal avenue eight hundred yards long with three terraces rising from it. Most of the buildings were built in the 15th century and subsequently repaired. Traditionally, the Emperor carried out two types of ceremonies here. At the winter solstice, he came to speak with the heavens to tell of all the important events of the last year. In the first month of the New Year, he went to render homage to the heavens and to gain their confidence.

After 1911, the Emperor or his representative no longer performed the ceremonies. On October 10, 1912, the first Chinese National Day, the Temple of Heaven was opened to all the public. Until that time, the people had never been allowed to enter the temple.

You will visit three of the four principal sites of the Temple as follows: At the far end of the way stands the Temple of Annual Prayer in the midst of a large courtyard. It was built in 1420 and restored in 1751. It was struck by lightning in 1889 when it was said by the Chinese that the thunderbolt struck a centipede that dared to desecrate it by crawling on the roof. The hall was burned to the ground and was quickly rebuilt on the original plans.

The hall stands on a triple round marble terrace and is topped by a triple cone-shaped roof of brilliant blue tiles and at the highest point is topped by a gilded ball. Not one nail was used to build the Hall. It was entirely constructed of wood supported by 28 wooden columns, The four large pillars in the middle symbolize the four seasons of the year; the 24 other columns arranged in a double circle around the four central ones signify the twelve months of the year and the twelve hours of the day as the ancient Chinese divided their days into twelve hours. In the middle of the floor is a circular stone of natural veining called the Phoenix and dragon stone. This is where the Emperor came to ask for confidence or to pray for good harvests.

The Imperial Heavenly Vault contains the Temple of the Universal God built entirely of wood dating from 1530. The cone shaped roof of blue tiles is topped by a gilded ball. The temple is 63 feet high and 51 feet across. Two curious accoustic phenomena occur here. A mere whisper exchanged between two people standing on opposite sides of the courtyard can be heard around the wall. Along the central walkway are the three echoing stones. A single shout or handclap given at the first stone starting at the bottom of the steps of the circular temple will produce a single echo, at the second stone it produces a double echo, and at the third, three echoes. The surrounding wall is grey with bright blue roofing tiles. Three gates lead from the inner courtyard.

The Altar of Heaven consists of three terraces surfaced with stone slabs. The numbers of stone slabs, the balustrades in the three tiers and the stone steps are all multiples of nine. The number nine was the symbol of the sky and the Emperor. The 360 balustrades represent the degrees in the celestial circle. Here a ceremony involving sacrificed oxen was performed in elaborate detail involving a significant ceremonial role by the Emperor.

The Hall of Abstinence, which you will not visit, contains a group of buildings surrounded by a square enclosure and a moat. This fourth site is closed to visitors.

BALLET PERFORMANCE

At 7:05 p.m., you, Mrs. Ford and Susan board the motorcade at the Guest House en route the Great Hall of the People to attend the China Ballet Troop performance of the dance drama, "Ode to the Yimeng Mountains", a modern revolutionary ballet. Background by PRC follows.

"The background of this dance drama is the people's militant life in the old revolutionary base around the Yimeng Mountains of Shantung Province during the War of Liberation (1946-1949). Depicting the stirring story of a poor peasant woman who saves the life of a wounded PLA soldier by giving him milk from her own breast, this dance drama is an ode to the heroes and heroines who incarnate the spirit embodied in Chairman Mao's words, "If the army and the people are united as one, who in the world can match them?" With its well-knit plot and skillful characterization the drama achieves a high level of artistry."

"The time is the autumn of 1947 when the War of Liberation is entering its second year. The Chinese revolution is at a historical turning point when darkness gives place to dawn. To implement Chairman Mao's grand strategy of switching from strategic defense to a strategic offensive, the People's Liberation Army (PLA) embarks on large-scale mobile warfare and withdraws temporarily from some areas formerly in our hands. "

A synopsis provided by the PRC follows:

Evening - Outside Yiho Village - Prologue

Amidst gunfire and smoke, Sister Ying and other villagers bid farewell to her husband, Lu Ying, and the armed working team led by him, who have been fighting guerrilla warfare in the mountains. Armed working teams, consisting of cadres drawn from various organizations -- the Communist Party, the governments in the Liberated Areas, the People's army and mass organizations -- and equipped with some weapons, went deep into the enemy-occupied areas to organize the masses and strike blows at the enemy.

In the wake of rifle shots, the run-away despot landlord Lai Chin-fu leads his "Home-going legion" back to the mountain village. ("Home-going legions" were made up of landlords and local tyrants who fled from the Liberated Areas to the Kuomin-tang areas, and who had been organized by the Kuomintang into these reactionary armed bands to attack the Liberated Areas together with the Kuomin-tang troops.) A Kuomintang bandit officer gives the despot landlord a towel which the PLA platoon leader Fang Tieh-chun lost when he was wounded, and orders the landlord to get hold of the wounded PLA man within three days.

Scene One

Two days later --- From dawn to Noon. On Ching Shih Ridge

Lu Ying and two members of the armed working team have been instructed to find Platoon Leader Fang. Unable to locate him, Lu Ying decides to return alone to the village to continue the search.

Badly wounded and in great pain, Fang Tieh-chun staunchly endeavours to catch up with his unit, but he faints from loss of blood and extreme thirst.

Sister Ying who is picking edible weeds in the gully comes upon the PLA officer. The sight of this badly wounded comrade fills her with anxiety. For a moment she doesn't know what to do, for it is too far away to get water for him from home, and it is unsafe for the wounded comrade to be left alone there. Suddenly, she hits upon an idea: "Why not save the wounded comrade with my own milk?"

The despot landlord and his gang search high and low for the wounded officer.

Sister Ying devises a clever way to hide her comrade.

Scene Two

From dusk to night -- At Sister Ying's house.

The bandits of the "home-going legion" put the village under fire and sword, and wantonly loot the villagers' grain.

After she gets home, Sister Ying lulls her baby to sleep. Then she deftly catches and kills her hen and lights the stove to make chicken soup for the wounded comrade.

Her husband, Lu Ying, returns and is delighted to learn that she has saved Platoon Leader Fang. He decides to go back immediately to the mountain and lead the armed working team to transfer the wounded comrade to a place of safety.

The despot landlord and his "home-going legion" break into Sister Ying's house. Sister Ying is undaunted by enemy threats and torture and remains true to the revolution. Bruised all over, she faints away.

The cunning enemy resorts to the plot of letting Sister Ying escape so as to follow her to the hiding place of the wounded officer. Seeing through the enemy's scheme, Sister Ying cleverly turns it to her own advantage. She pushes open the window and tricks the enemy into thinking that she has jumped out of it. They rush off in hot pursuit. Then Sister Ying, with a bamboo basket in her arm, hurries to the mountain.

Scene Three

Dawn.           The hiding place of Platoon Leader Fang on Ching Shih Ridge.

Platoon Leader Fang emerges from his hiding place. He painfully does physical exercise in the hope of returning soon to the front.

Braving difficulties and risks, Sister Ying and Chu Lan bring the chicken soup and food to Platoon Leader Fang. Deeply moved, he expresses his determination to fight valiantly against the enemy after his recovery so as to repay the villagers for their kindness.

In their search for the wounded officer, the "home-going legion" now comes up the mountain.

Sister Ying deliberately attracts the enemies' attention so as to protect her comrade.

Scene Four

Dusk.                    On the edge of the village.

The "home-going legion", who failed to find the wounded PLA officer, then threatens to kill Sister Ying if she doesn't reveal the whereabouts of the wounded PLA officer. She denounces them with righteous anger. In desperation, the despot landlord snatches away her baby and shouts ruthlessly: "Whom do you want, your baby or the wounded soldier?"

"Bitter sacrifice strengthens bold resolve
Which dares to make sun and moon shine in new skies."

In order to save the wounded PLA man, Sister Ying is ready to bear the greatest sacrifice.

At this critical moment, Platoon Yeader Fang steps out of hiding and declares boldly: "Here I am!"

All of a sudden, shouts and gun-fire are heard on all sides. Lu Ying arrives on the scene with his armed working team. They wipe out the "home-going legion" and put the despot landlord to death.

Sister Ying, her baby and the platoon leader are all saved. The mountain village is liberated. Cheers ring across the skies in praise of Chairman Mao and the Communist Party.

Epilogue

A few days later.

The towering Yimeng Mountains stand majestically over Yiho Village where red flags flutter in the wind. High-ranking officers and men of the PLA respectfully express their gratitude to Sister Ying and the other villagers.

Platoon Leader Fang bids farewell to the villagers and returns to the front with fond memories of their loving concern.

Friendship Store (best place to shop)

Has the largest and most ordered accumulation of Chinese arts and crafts. You might want to pay special attention to:

third floor

Cloisonne vases, bowls: (copper topped with lacquered enamel). There are a number of different grades, but the best one is worth about four times as much in Garfinkels.

Cork carvings: inexpensive gifts to give people.

Jade: see for yourself. Items with a red seal attached are over 100 yrs old and are worth alot more in the States.

Needlepoint: if you've got someone who goes in for it, it's a steal.

Oriental rugs are in back room, by the stairs.

second floor

suede: blazers, especially, are good buy. Also leather men's pants.

luggage: good buys. ($30 for large size) cashmere sweaters: about $9.50 each.

Mao caps: good gifts for kids (with red star)

Other good places:

Department store on Wa Fu Jing. Good selection of dolls and stuffed panda bears. Cheap ($3-$3.50) large bags to carry junk in. Great musical instrument shop on second floor. Fun to go to.

Antique area called Li Lu Chang. Rubbing and Figurine shop is the best.

Peking Handicrafts Exhibition Center - more of the same from the Friendship Store, only there are Chinese people there. Some different items.
