For immediate release

THE WHITE HOUSE
Office of the Press Secretary to Mrs. Ford

Mrs. Ford and Susan Ford will visit Mini Indonesia with Mrs. Suharto this morning and participate in a tree planting ceremony.

Mrs. Ford and Susan

Mrs. Ford, Susan and Mrs. Suharto will be met in the West Java Pavilion by Gov. (Lt. Gen.) and Mrs. Ali Sadikin of Jakarta and Gov. (Maj. Gen.) and Mrs. Aang Kunaefi of West Java.

Mrs. Ford and Susan will be presented with a Wayang, a puppet often made of leather representing one of the characters in the Indonesian story of Ramayana, a traditional story of the Gods and Goddesses of early religions.

Mrs. Ford will plant a tree between the park's pavilions and lagoon

Mrs. Ford will plant a Banyon tree between the park's pavilions and lagoon, as visiting wives of heads of state have done since the park was completed.

Following the tree planting, Mrs. Ford and Susan will tour the park in an open mini-bus. Before departing for the airport, Mrs. Suharto plans to present Mrs. Ford with a book describing Indonesia Indha (the park) and a set of coins commemorating the park. the visit.

Mini Indonesia is a large park covering approximately 100 hectares of land adjacent to the Halim International Airport. It features typical traditional houses of Indonesia representing its 26 provinces. Mrs. Suharto is credited with creating the concept of the park and has been the main driving force in developing it.

Mini Indonesia contains a museum, recreation areas, an aviary and zoological park. It also contains orchid gardens, a special interest of Mrs. Suharto's. The park was conceived as a means of allowing Indonesian and foreign visitors to learn about the variety of traditional cultures of Indonesia and to encourage the preservation of the traditions.

1. TAMAN MINIATUR INDONESIA INDHA IS A LARGE PARK COVERING APPROXIMATELY 100 HECTARES OF LAND ADJACENT TO THE HALIM INTERNATIONAL AIRPORT. IT FEATURES TYPICAL INDONESIAN TRADITIONAL HOUSES REPRESENTING THE 26 PROVINCES OF INDONESIA. THE WIFE OF PRESIDENT SUHARTO, MADAME TIEN SUHARTO, IS CREDITED WITH CREATING THE ORIGINAL CONCEPT OF THE PARK, AND HAS BEEN THE MAIN DRIVING FORCE IN DEVELOPING IT.

2. IN THE FOREGROUND OF "TAMAN MINI" IS A TALL MONUMENT "TUGU API PANCASILA" (MONUMENT OF THE FLAME OF PANCASILA), WHICH REFLECTS THE SPIRIT OF PANCASILA. THE MEANING OF PANCASILA IS THE FIVE PRINCIPLE OF THE NATIONAL PHILOSOPHY, I.E. GODLINESS, HUMANITARIANISM, NATIONALISM, SOCIAL JUSTICE, AND DEMOCRACY." THE TERM PANCASILA IS REFERRED TO FREQUENTLY IN OFFICIAL CONVERSATIONS, AND ONE SHOULD BE FAMILIAR WITH ITS SIGNIFICANCE. AT MINI INDONESIA, THE MAIN BUILDING, CALLED 'JOGLO', IS A TRADITIONAL STYLE CENTRAL JAVANESE HOUSE, WHERE MOST OF THE PROTOCOL AND CULTURAL ACTIVITIES TAKE PLACE.

3. THE TAMAN MINI INDONESIA CONTAINS A MUSEUM, RECREATION AREAS, AND AVIARY AND ZOOLOGICAL PARK. IT ALSO CONTAINS ORCHID GARDENS, IN WHICH MME. TIEN SUHARTO TAKES GREAT PERSONAL INTEREST, BEING ONE OF THE PRIME MOVERS BEHIND THE INDONESIAN ORCHID INDUSTRY. ANOTHER NOTEWORTHY ASPECT OF MINI INDONESIA IS THAT ADMISSION FEES ARE VERY LOW, PUTTING IT WITHIN REACH OF ALL BUT THE VERY POOREST JAKARTANS. IN ADDITION, ALL PRIMARY AND SECONDARY SCHOOL STUDENTS IN JAKARTA ARE SCHEDULED TO VISIT IT IN THE COURSE OF THE SCHOOL YEAR. MRS. SUHARTO CONCEIVED THE PARK AS A MEANS OF ALLOWING INDONESIAN (AS WELL AS FOREIGN VISITORS) TO LEARN ABOUT THE VARIETY AND RICHNESS OF THE TRADITIONAL CULTURES OF INDONESIA, AND ALSO OF ENCOURAGING THE PRESERVATION OF THESE TRADITIONS. N.B.: MRS. FORD MIGHT WISH TO ASK MRS. SUHARTO ABOUT THE DEVELOPMENT OF THE PARK AND HER OTHER EFFORTS (INCLUDING A SMALL MUSEUM ON THE PALACE GROUNDS) TO PRESERVE AND ENCOURAGE THE INDONESIAN REGIONAL CULTURES.

POOL 29
GUEST HOUSE TO PEKING CAPITAL AIRPORT AND AIR FORCE ONE TO JAKARTA

Outside Villa 18, Secretary Kissinger said Ford and Suharto would engage in "a review of our relationship and the future of Southeast Asia, in which Indonesia is a key country." Asked about the situation in Timor, he said, "it's a very unsettled situation."

Ford left the guest house at 8:36 a.m. on a swift and uneventful motorcade to the airport. The departure ceremony was a virtual replay of the arrival, except that it was bitter cold and Ford was red-cheeked and hatless as he reviewed the military honor guard and then shook the hand of each Chinese official, third-country diplomat and member of the American community.

As Ford prepared to go up the ramp, and as he and Teng shook hands, the Vice Premier said farewell in Chinese and Nancy Tang translated it as "bon ~~jour~~ Ford, pumping Teng's hand, said, "Give Chairman Mao my best."
voyage.2)

Air Force one wheels up -- after a long takeoff run -- at 9:33 a.m. Flight pattern was over Okinawa, the Philippines and Borneo.

Nessen came back soon after takeoff to say "there will be communiques in both Indonesia and the Philippines." Asked why, he replied: "They're important visits." He said American aid would be discussed with Suharto but would not be mentioned specifically in the communique.

An American official aboard the plane (note: NOT Kissinger; name available on request) said on background that Mao clearly had a detailed grasp of issues at the Ford meeting. The official also said Mao appeared ruddy and heartier than the official had expected. "He looked like he had just come back from Miami." The official said that the relationship with Peking arose in the official's judgment from the Chinese perception that Nixon -- with a long public record of opposition to the Soviets -- had "fire in his belly" when it came to Moscow. Asked if Ford had the same fire in his belly, the official replied, "He didn't have the same foreign affairs experience." The official also said that "the Chinese would love us to give up detente and attack the Russians frontally, to take the heat off them; that's what they want."

Note of incidental interest. As AF1 left Peking the pool noticed that one of the photographs displayed in the rear cabin was of Ford and Brezhnev warmly clasping hands at Helsinki last August.

Susan Ford, in fine fettle, wandered back to snack on a breakfast cruller. She said she was in good health, that she had only been tired. Asked if she had bought a Christmas present yet for her father, she said, "Not yet. He's hard to buy for." Why? "He's got everything he needs." A pooler suggested he liked clothes. "Yes, but he doesn't know how to match them," Susan said. Then she screwed up her face in a grimace and said: "Striped ties and plaid suits!" She said her most enjoyable experiences had been visits to the Great Wall and to the hospital where she saw acupuncture performed. How did Susan like Mao? "Loved him," she said. Did Mao really have a glint in his eye when he shook her hand? "Yes...He was nice. You know. I don't think he expected (pause)...me."

A senior American official came back for a long and, in the pool's estimation, remarkably expansive conversation. Much of what he said was on deep background -- and therefore attributable only broadly to the American party -- but the bulk of it was on background, and thus attributable to the senior American official. What follows is a virtual transcript of the conversation, with notations of which material is on deep background. The rest is on background.

the official said it was decided not to have a briefing daily in china because it was "in the nature of the conversations extremely difficult" to brief. "if we had briefed every day we would have said more or less" the same things that secretary kissinger said thursday night at the min zu briefing. "it could only be done once."

"I know that for your reporting you need concrete, hard details," the official said. "it makes your reporting a lot easier. but I would think, seriously, that anybody who understands diplomatic language and understands the architecture of events could have derived from ~~what was said yesterday at the briefing a number of very significant things. the fact they were said on chinese soil with so much assurance had to mean something. when two major countries say that, that's not without significance. but you cannot put that sort of thing into a formal communique without having consequences all over the world. that was the problem with a communique.~~

"in foreign policy," the official continued, "there are two sorts of decisions -- those that lead to an immediate event; those lend themselves to reporting -- and those that lend themselves to the architecture. those are harder to report, but they may be more significant sometimes."

~~was he saying that if president ford is elected, in 1977 the united states will break relations with taiwan?~~ tell us about the aid suharto is asking for.

"that's a minor problem," the senior official said. "it's being handled on the aid level. because we're coming here we will discuss it."

what is the focus of the ford trip to indonesia?

"indonesia," the senior official said, "is the most populous country and the richest country in that area. as the ASEAN countries are trying to organize themselves into a sort of political and economic and maybe security grouping the fate of indonesia will be quite decisive. in fact, it is the central element. the country is extremely rich country and its orientation is of great consequence."

is the united states anticipating a possible security grouping there?

"well, as they cooperate politically and economically they're interested in mutual protection. but it doesn't have to mean military agreements in terms of their legal (word inaudible). there are some military agreements that are legally binding but are politically not ~~very~~ terribly useful. there are others that don't exist in writing but are inherent in the situation. we are not part of this anyway. at this point, they are cooperating politically and economically."

how about the philippines?

the senior official said: "well, the philippines is of course our traditional friend. we have military bases there that are very crucial from the aspect of security. if we don't have those the next one is hawaii."

will the united states and philippines talk about the bases?

"that will probably come up."

will the base issue be resolved?

"I don't think we'll resolve it," the senior official said.

do the philippine leaders want to take control of the american bases?

"we don't object to philippine sovereignty over the bases. it's what is meant in terms of the operation of ~~xxx~~ them."

owing to the problems involved in duplicating what will be, in sum, a long pool report, the poolers have provided above what is relevant to the philippines and indonesia stops. the second part of the pool ~~report~~ report, dealing primarily and extensively with china, will be issued as soon as possible in jakarta.

Q. If Ford is still President in 1978, will U.S. break relations with TAIWAN?

that's a totally subsidiary issue, the senior official said. "that's a really subsidiary issue because it was settled in '72 -- that some time along the way we're going to normalize relations, which means some sort of political recognition."

Asked what, then, he was referring to as the benefit of the summit, ~~he replied~~ The official said he was referring to the parallelism of foreign policies on certain key issues.

~~the official~~ ^{indicated it was} correct ~~to say~~ that the triangular aspects of diplomacy were most important on this trip what is the likely consequence of this trip, then, in terms of the united states relationship to the soviets, with whom secretary kissinger is expected to meet in moscow later this month?

"it's not final," the senior official said of the moscow trip. "it remains to be seen" how the china trip will affect the relationship between moscow and washington, he said.

is the mere fact of the meeting in peking useful to the united states now in the SALT negotiations?

The official did not want to give the impression that we're playing a sort of a game -- ~~going~~ ^{go} to peking to bring leverage on moscow, then ~~going~~ to moscow to get leverage in peking ~~on~~ on short-term negotiations. ~~Because~~ Because if we do that we're going to wind up in trouble with both of them. there are some realities that people have to look at: you don't have to play leverage in such a short-term way. just think of what the world situation would be like if we were still locked in hostility with the chinese -- the rigidities that would develop all over the world. look at japan for ~~an~~ example. what would happen in japan if the chinese and we were actively competing with each other? ~~that would happen in europe if~~

but can the united states use the chinese attitude to the benefit of the united states vis-a-vis the soviets?

"we are better off having this relation than not having this relation. we are better off if the united states secretary of state says in china, 'our relations are good and they will be improved steadily.'" you can bet bottom dollar now, ON DEEP BACKGROUND, we have agreed on that phrase with the chinese. you know damn well the secretary of state would not have said this if there was one chance in a million ~~that~~ chiao kuan-hua (the chinese foreign minister) would get up and say, "that guy's nuts."

what about the fact that the united states influence, after vietnam, has eroded so much in southeast asia, with nations there turning now to peking?

DEEP BACKGROUND: To U.S. BUT

indochina was a disaster for ~~the united states~~ we've recovered from it better and more rapidly than ~~we thought~~ the chinese and the soviet are balancing each other off, which gives us new opportunities so we don't feel there's any danger in the philippines--?

AGAIN ON DEEP BACKGROUND: it is our impression that the chinese will do nothing to undercut our position in the philippines, in japan, in thailand and throughout southeast asia.

they're more preoccupied with russia in these areas?

DEEP BACKGROUND

That's what one has to look at -- and not whether three more professors are going to study linguistics in canton university. on top of it, they (the chinese) obviously have their own domestic problems, which accounts for the complexity with which some of these issues have to be presented.

did the united states get anything concrete in the way of a chinese pledge on southeast asia?

"the chinese, really, are professionals," the senior official said. "with the chinese you don't ask for a pledge. you ask for a discussion of how they see the situation and how you see it. the chinese -- if what they tell you they see is compatible with you, you don't need a pledge."

ON DEEP BACKGROUND, it was said: those who know the chinese would agree that they can be bloody-minded but they are serious. they pride themselves on the phrase, "our word counts." and when they say something it's never trivial, so you can rely on it. it's a sign of insecurity to ask them for assurances. and as a general proposition we've never done it. on the other hand, when you meet with them for hours, it isn't the sort of haggling as with some other countries. they state their view -- unless they have it in their mind to be bloody-minded. if they're serious, they state their views and you state yours and then you have to see whether it's compatible."

continuing on DEEP BACKGROUND, it was said ~~in~~ in many areas of the world we have compatible analyses and in those cases you can rely on their actions. they ~~don't~~ don't trick. they have enough understanding to know ~~their reputation for reliability is an asset.~~ they're much more likely to tell you to go to ~~hell~~ hell than to tell you one thing and do another. our experience with them in four years: ~~Not~~ ~~one case where they tricked us.~~ you know, if they could achieve an irrevocable gain by tricking us they'd no doubt do it. but to score a 10 percent advantage ~~they're not going to do it.~~

why do the chinese lack interest in expanding in southeast asia?

that we don't claim on DEEP BACKGROUND, it was said ~~they don't have an interest in expanding.~~ watch what they're doing in cambodia. ~~they're quite active in thailand.~~ but they are not doing it at this moment. maybe ten years from now they will. ~~at this moment, the expansion of their influence is not directed at us.~~ primarily

where does all this triangular relationship leave suharto?

ONDEED

background, ~~su harto does not play the chinese game, and they're not going to make him.~~ asked about the effect on american foreign policy of the uncertain domestic political situation in the united states, the senior official said:

"we're in an uncertain situation ^{largely} because of what we are doing to ourselves."

alluding to the remnants of watergate and the divisions between the white house and congress and among members of congress, the senior official said that these factors tended to make it difficult to show the authority that lies behind american policy.

what does the president feel after having emerged from his journey to china as chief executive?

"if you write down for yourself what could come out of this," the senior official said, "in terms of the real national interest -- ~~the president's~~ I think it was a very good trip. the president is very satisfied. he has a right to be."

the phrases used by the ~~chinese~~ chinese to characterize the ford-mao meeting -- earnest and significant -- ~~serious~~ reflected words that were "very carefully chosen," the senior official said.

the senior official also said it was significant that teng had pointed out at the ~~meeting~~ meeting with ford after the ford-mao session, "just in case anybody missed it," that the ford-mao meeting ~~had~~ had been very significant, and that teng had referred to the ford-mao meeting again in his final toast.

what was important, the senior official said, was that the characterization came from the chinese. "why would the chinese play our game?" he asked rhetorically.

why were the chinese happy; was it because they got what they wanted?

DEEP BACKGROUND: THERE IS a degree of parallelism, ~~but they didn't get it; it was reestablished.~~ reestablished?

sustained is a better word, ~~more~~

Dec. 6, 1975
For immediate release

THE WHITE HOUSE
Office of the Press Secretary to Mrs. Ford

Mrs. Ford and Susan Ford will visit Mini Indonesia with Mrs. Suharto this morning and participate in a tree planting ceremony.

Mrs. Ford, Susan and Mrs. Suharto will be met in the West Java Pavilion by Gov. (Lt. Gen.) and Mrs. Ali Sadikin of Jakarta and Gov. (Maj. Gen.) and Mrs. Aang Kunaefi of West Java.

Mrs. Ford and Susan will be presented with a Wayang, a puppet often made of leather representing one of the characters in the Indonesian story of Ramayana, a traditional story of the Gods and Goddesses of early religions.

Mrs. Ford will plant a Banyon tree between the park's pavilions and lagoon, as visiting wives of heads of state have done since the park was completed.

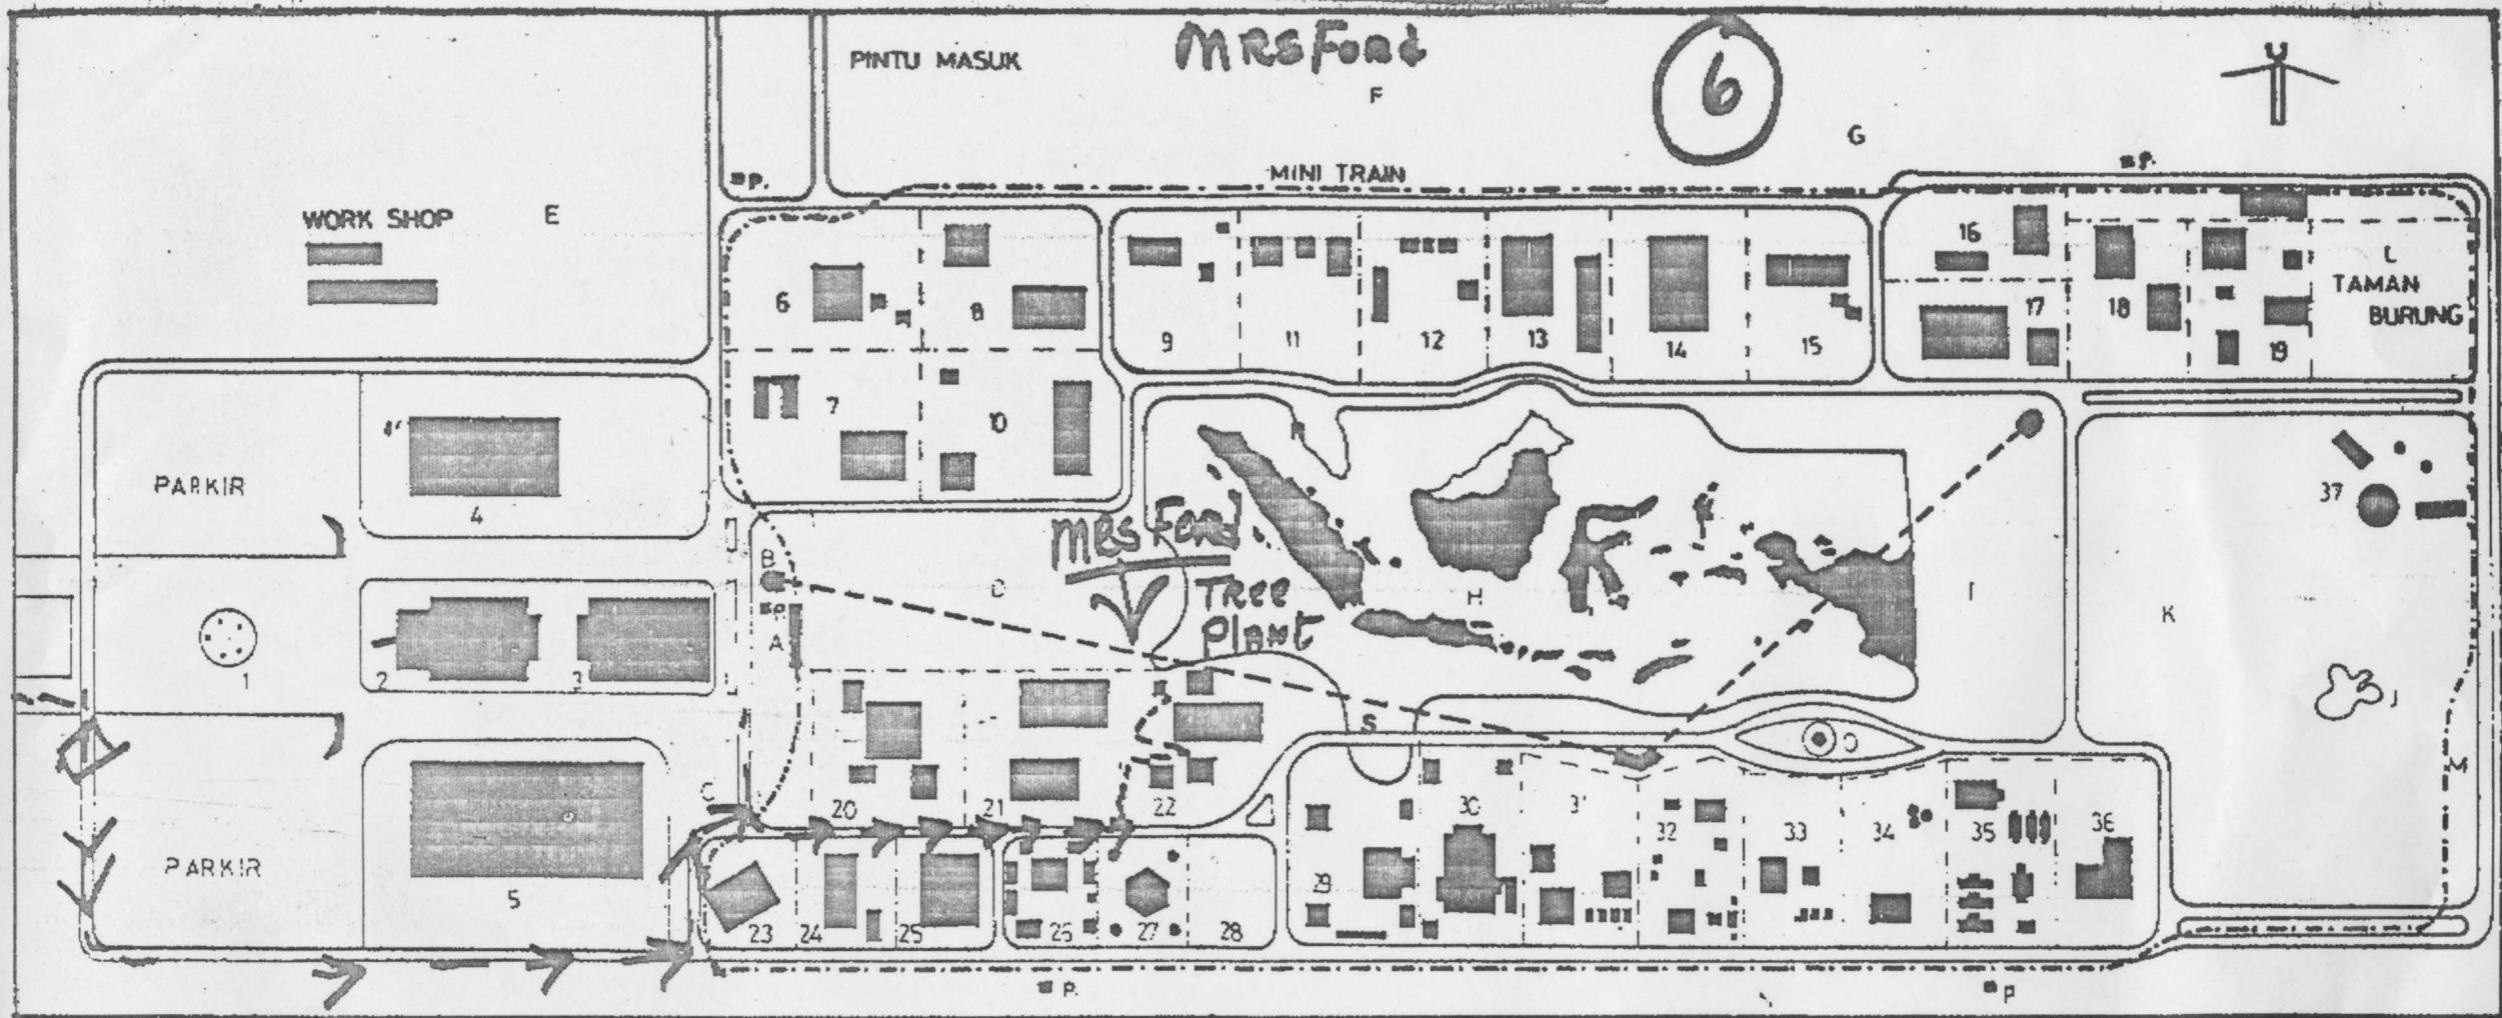

Following the tree planting, Mrs. Ford and Susan will tour the park in an open mini-bus. Before departing for the airport, Mrs. Suharto plans to present Mrs. Ford with a book describing Indonesia Indah (the park) and a set of coins commemorating the park.

Mini Indonesia is a large park covering approximately 100 hectares of land adjacent to the Halim International Airport. It features typical traditional houses of Indonesia representing its 26 provinces. Mrs. Suharto is credited with creating the concept of the park and has been the main driving force in developing it.

Mini Indonesia contains a museum, recreation areas, an aviary and zoological park. It also contains orchid gardens, a special interest of Mrs. Suharto's. The park was conceived as a means of allowing Indonesian and foreign visitors to learn about the variety of traditional cultures of Indonesia and to encourage the preservation of the traditions.
