Dear Miss Connolly:

Thank you for sending your views on my recent comments about a small group of reporters at my daily press briefing.

I am glad to have your thoughts on this. I am sure you realize that my comments were in no way intended as a general criticism of the press. In fact, President Ford and his White House enjoy excellent relations with the press.

Since I made my comments, the atmosphere at my daily briefings has improved considerably and the briefings are now better serving their intended purpose, which is to provide a wealth of information on the President, his activities, and his policies to the American people.

Again, thank you for letting me know your thoughts on this issue which involves only a small part of the White House press relations, but nevertheless is important to the open flow of information to the American people which President Ford so strongly supports.

Sincerely,

Are you familiar with these lines — "Just for a for a riband to stick in his when Tennyson accepted the job of Poet Laureate. That might have been written for you, except, what was it, prestige, that made you leave an honorable profession to become a mouth piece? What prestige, may I enquire, is left in that spot, after the last Administration, and the resignation of the first Press Secretary to this one? But I'm pretty sure that's what the attraction was — I saw you on Face the Nation, I think it was. God save us all from the stupidity of you and your boss!

I delighted in David Brinkley's reply to you on the day you attacked your former colleagues. You were really never a very good newsmaster, anyway, were you?

Dear Sir:

I read your temper tirade - Its quite unbecoming.

In the past I have watched you when you questioned other Presidential Secretaries. Rough as anybody.

In other words (considering the past records of Presidents and their spokesmen) one listens with a question unanswered and wonders if this is more hot air.

I was on Fords side at first but he has vitard everything that would help the poor and unemployed. Except Nixon.

In 60 years old I've seen much more of the hardships of being poor than most.

I've seen 13 major surgeries and radium both legs broken from Calcium problems a husband with heart trouble, glaucoma low blood sugar and both of us with disabling Osteoporosis.

I've seen the President and his agriculture Secretary try to force us to spend 30% of our Soc. Sec. for food stamps - What does he think we can use for medicine and rent?

I see a President getting all his medical care free and family, too and live like a king besides he and Nixon both get all household expense and $20000. besides.

Who kids who?

No you people know how disgusting it is to see women with their mean telling us how to make that Cheap hamburger go farther? How does one provide protein for a low sugar victim?

On top of this is the President's action on Nixon and Nixon people.

Come down off your high horse Ron Nesson The Press has a job to do and whether the Administration likes it or not, The first Amendment is supposed to guarantee our right to know

President Ford may be as perfect as you think, but until his action changed this old gal is going to look at him, you and some others very skeptacly.

My hands are Cramping -

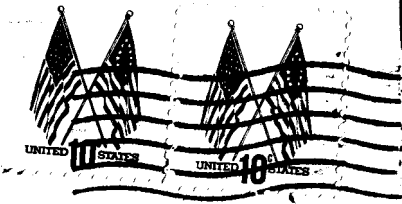

Whether this explains some of our feelings and helps remains to be seen.

I read what you don't like the 'Mistrust' of the criminal Ford Admin. by the Press. How the hell can anyone trust the two-faced double dealing criminal gang of Ford, Rockefeller & Kissinger. These bastards came into power by a criminal deal between Nixon Ford & "Rocky". They are un-elected and run as hell and not the people chose nor want. Ford is not my Pres. He is a stooge of "Rocky" & Kissinger who are promoting a one world 'Gov't' with the help of the infamous CFR and the international Bilderberger Bastards. The producers (the middle class) have to defend themselves against a criminal Exec. Legislative & Judicial gang of political perverts of the lowest order. The pardon of Nixon and aff't. of Rockefeller makes Ford a traitor to God & country. Mistrust indeed. He should be hung. EWB

Dear Sir:

You have a difficult job. Public confidence in all forms of government is at a dismal low. Perhaps, as you say, President Ford is a man of honesty and integrity. But please remember - he was chosen by Nixon - he pardoned Nixon - he continues to follow Nixon's programs. There is also the doubt in the minds of many as to whether he makes his own decisions - or whether his advisors make up his mind. To date he has repeatedly vetoed measures designed to help hard-pressed Americans. At the same time, he can't give away foreign aid fast enough. He hangs on to Kissinger like he was a life-line. He ignores the members of Congress - and of his own party - because he (or is it his advisors?) thinks he knows best. He has demonstrated over and over that big business comes first and middle and lower class America comes dead last. He is not a dictator - he is one-third of our government, and he would do well to remember that. Not only that - but he was not the choice of the people - he was the choice of Nixon.

Angry outbursts against the press and the public such as yours of the other day, do the whole country a disservice. As Truman said - if you can't stand the heat (the distrust, suspicion, etc.) get out of the kitchen. The Republican party has earned every bit of distrust it now enjoys and your threatening to discontinue briefings adds fuel to the fire of suspicion.

To many of us, Ford does not come across as very smart - and his advisors and cohorts, especially Simon and Greenspan, come across as self-important, self-serving as well as big-business serving, little fix gods. If he's going to run for election as president - I'd suggest he get off TV and on to a train and give us a chance to see (and hear) him as he is - not as TV and his speechwriters want him to be. And tell him to leave his damned advisors at home - we want to hear what he has to say, not words they put in his mouth. It isn't going to be Wall Street or the Oil Companies who give him enough votes - it's going to be those very people he has consistently voted against who will go to the polls in huge numbers to vote for him - or against him.

I've already made up my mind - I wouldn't vote for a Republican for any office for the rest of my life. But not everyone is as unforgiving as I am. Those people deserve better than what they've been getting.

To me - the word Republican is the dirtiest word in the dictionary - the first two being Lawyer and Politician. And we can thank the Republicans for that, too.

Dear Mr. Stack:

Thank you for sending your views on my recent comments about a small group of reporters at my daily press briefing.

I am glad to have your thoughts on this. I am sure you realize that my comments were in no way intended as a general criticism of the press. In fact, President Ford and his White House enjoy excellent relations with the press.

Since I made my comments, the atmosphere at my daily briefings has improved considerably and the briefings are now better serving their intended purpose, which is to provide a wealth of information on the President, his activities, and his policies to the American people.

Again, thank you for letting me know your thoughts on this issue which involves only a small part of the White House press relations, but nevertheless is important to the open flow of information to the American people which President Ford so strongly supports.

Sincerely,

Ron Nessen

Dear Ron:

So the press boys are getting to you?
Well, why don't you just give the job back to Ron Ziegler? He knows how to handle those pesky newsmen. He'd simply tell ^{them} ~~that~~ that what he said yesterday is today
"inoperative" — anything to dodge and cover up, at which he, as a servant of his boss, was quite apt.

You were a pretty good news man before you got close to the seat of power. Now I fear you are becoming a bit testy.

Sincerely,

Sir:-

After hearing your lament the so-called harsh and unfair treatment of you by the press corp, I am reminded of a recent incident that might explain to you why they mistrust you and those you represent.

Recently Pres. Ford had a slight accident while alighting from a plane in Europe. At the time it happened, I said to my wife, "You can expect some kind of a glamorous story explaining the event. Sure enough the story comes out about an ancient football injury. In fact other news followed in several days dealing with it.

Now comes the clincher. At his first press conference after returning from Europe, after being asked about his "slip," Ford denied that he slipped. He related that when his wife reached for the umbrella he was carrying, he was shoved.

Shades of Nixon and "Rouny Boy" ^(Ziggy) do you still wonder about the "credibility gap." You're in a system that you'll never be able to change. Perhaps your predecessor that resigned knew that

Mr. Nessen,

The man you work for loudly supported the mass murder in Vietnam, pardoned the lowest life to reside in the White House in history, voted against virtually ever decent piece of social legislation in modern history when in Congress, contrived an incident (Mayaguez) to boost his popularity in the polls, sold out to the land rapers of America, and just suggested that he might use nuclear weapons in Korea if

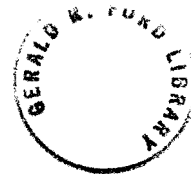

Is it any wonder that reporters and the rest of us are cynical?

Grow up, Nessen, your boss is, like all the rest of them, a liar and worse. And, yes, this is a reflection on your honesty.
