

SEQUOIA DINNER

Ford and Trudeau rode together to the Washington Navy Yard, boarded the Sequoia at sunset, and went up on the top deck to survey the river. Trudeau, ever the clown, waved to Canadian cameras with his handkerchief. Ford looked a little uncomfortable.

~~Then~~ Then the steward brought a tray of drinks. President Ford seemed to select a martini on the rocks (was that a twist of lemon?) and immediately turned his back to the cameras and sat down.

Trudeau took a glass, and sat, too.

The two hour cruise ended around 9pm, just as a rain sprinkle came by.

The 8-guests (see attached) stayed seated at the dinner table with their baked alaska (see other attached), then finally came on shore.

Trudeau motorcade to address. The President, home.
