

WILLIAM E. TIMMONS
ASSISTANT TO THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES

THE WHITE HOUSE

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MARCH 7, 1972

OFFICE OF THE WHITE HOUSE PRESS SECRETARY

PRESS CONFERENCE
OF
SENATOR HUGH SCOTT
AND
CONGRESSMAN GERALD R. FORD

THE BRIEFING ROOM

10:05 A.M. EST

MR. ZIEGLER: The Leadership meeting lasted for two hours this morning. Congressman Ford will begin the report today, and Senator Scott will also report to you on that meeting.

I should say that after the press conference with the Senator and Congressman Ford, Secretary Butz will be here at 11:00 o'clock to brief on the child nutrition program. He will meet with the President at 10:45, and we will have a picture of that session with the President.

Congressman Ford.

CONGRESSMAN FORD: Thank you, Ron.

Two major issues were discussed this morning: First, the revenue sharing bill which is in the Committee on Ways and Means; and secondly, the status of the welfare reform legislation in the Senate Finance Committee.

We brought the President up to date on the situation in the Committee on Ways and Means. Congressman Byrnes, the ranking Republican, was present. It was clearly pointed out that there is a substantial majority on the Republican side in the Committee on Ways and Means who are for a revenue sharing bill. We have 10 members; the Democrats have 15.

A majority of the Republicans have introduced the President's proposal. I think more than a simple majority on the Republican side is available to report out legislation, so the hang-up, if there is one in the committee, is to get a majority of the Democrats to support some legislation.

I believe that 10 members, including Chairman Mills, have introduced Chairman Mills' proposal. So if we get the kind of initiative in the Committee on Ways and Means that we expect, there is no question in my mind that the legislation can be approved by the committee.

Once the bill is out of the committee and on the Floor of the House, I am sure there would be a substantial majority for the legislation in the House of Representatives. But right at the moment, there is no doubt we have a majority of the Republicans on the committee who are ready to report out a bill, and I hope that a majority of the Democrats will do the same.

MORE

SENATOR SCOTT: The first precinct is in from Dixville Notch, New Hampshire, and the President has skimmed through by a vote of 11 to nothing.

There was much talk today about the pension bill, the portability of pensions, whereby the pension system can be extended and broadened to both self-employed and otherwise employed, and that one could carry his pension from one job to another. The President expressed strong interest in having action in this Congress in both Houses on the pension bill as soon as possible.

There were hopeful indications, with Senator Bennett being present, and Secretary Richardson, that we should get a bill from the Finance Committee in reporting H.R. 1, the welfare reform bill, probably during the month of April, and there was general discussion of other legislation pending, but most of the talk was on revenue sharing, welfare reform, and the pension bill.

Q Congressman Ford, is the revenue sharing bill that you expect to get to the Floor and passed an Administration bill or Chairman Mills' bill?

CONGRESSMAN FORD: It appears from the report given by Byrnes and Conable that something in between the Administration bill and the Mills bill will emerge from the committee. The differences are not too significant. The differences can be compromised. With that kind of compromise, I am sure it will be overwhelmingly approved by the House.

SENATOR SCOTT: The Senate Finance Committee is primarily considering at this time the social security aspects of H.R. 1. It is thought that they will soon turn to the other section having to do with welfare, catastrophic illness and other sections.

Q Was there any discussion this morning of a news report from Tokyo quoting a North Korean spokesman there suggesting it is time for normalization of relations with the United States by North Korea?

SENATOR SCOTT: No discussion of foreign policy this morning at all.

Q Any discussion of the ITT merger case?

SENATOR SCOTT: No discussion at all. It is well in hand by those members of the Judiciary Committee, who know what they are doing.

Q What are they doing? (Laughter)

SENATOR SCOTT: You will discover that basically they are stalling, but you will find action later.

Q Did you discuss the school busing situation?

CONGRESSMAN FORD: In the follow-up reports by Senator Scott and myself on the legislation situation in the House and Senate, I brought up the fact that the emergency school aid bill and the higher education bill would be sent to conference on Wednesday, and that the Republicans were going to move to instruct the House conferees to insist that our conferees stand up for the Broomfield amendment, which was approved when the House considered and approved the legislation.

From that we had a broader discussion. The President reiterated his interest in getting action to change the current situation as far as school busing is concerned. He pointed out that he met yesterday with a number of the high-ranking black leaders in the Administration. It was pointed out that George Shultz and, I believe, Ed Morgan have consulted with a number of legislators in both House and Senate on what ought to be done.

The President will make his report after further consultation, and his recommendations; but he re-emphasized that he was not satisfied with the status quo, and would propose some action in this area, but did not define what he had in mind.

Q Senator Scott, if I may pursue the matter of ITT a little more seriously, could you give us your evaluation as to whether it is due to stalling or whether it is due to the fact that the committee has actually found something, but your evaluation of the chances for Mr. Kleindienst now being confirmed by the Senate?

SENATOR SCOTT: I will begin with one rather pointed illustration. I took a special note yesterday that in over two hours, the name of Kleindienst was not once mentioned by Senators or witnesses. In the hareing off after any remote possibility they can, certain Democratic Senators, Senator Kennedy in particular, asked a number of questions of the doctor which brought out information which could only be favorable to the Administration's point of view; namely, that Mrs. Beard rejects much of the content of the memorandum, and that she rejected it in the presence of witnesses and rejected it on numerous occasions, and that the Attorney General had rebuffed Mrs. Beard in very strong terms and indicated the impropriety of her even attempting to approach him.

All this was brought out through the skill of Senator Kennedy's cross-examination.

Yes, I think Mr. Kleindienst will be confirmed, if we can give Senator Kennedy more time during the hearings to ask more questions.

THE PRESS: Thank you very much.
